Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week will be the farewell one in this city of the jolly comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, more popularly known as "Karl Gardner," from the long run he made East in his eight years comedy success of "Karl the Peddler." In this play Mr. Gardner first achieved fame and fortune, and it will prove all the more attractive from the fact that this will be its first production on the Pacific Coast. He will also give an entire change of songs, including his world-famed lullaby, retaining, by request, his beautiful "Lilac" song, which he sings in the fourth act.

Mr. Gardner is justly credited with a geniality of feeling that charms his audiences with his mingled pathos and humor, and also with being "the sweetest singer of Tyrolean melodies on the stage." "Karl" gives him a fine opportunity in its sunshine and shade to depict the love of home, the kindly virtues, the healthy humor, and strength of character that the German nature is capable of. His new songs command general recalls.

Mr. Gardner brings with him a well selected company, that render ample support in various lines of characters. The ladies do excellent work in "Karl." Messrs. Dannemiller and Garey give us good characterizations, and La Petite Louie, the child actress, is very clever.

Next week we are to have Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week we have "The Lorgaire," an Irish drama. The action takes place on the old sod. It is a new play to us, though it had a successful run in New York. Its principal scenes are: The Beggars' Gathering at Kilcolgan the Manor House, the Seagull's Cliff and Leap for Life, the Hedge School and the Christening Party. We have Irish life and Irish characters as found in the fishing village of Kilcolgan, and also the "real gentlemen" as seen in the Manor House.

Mr. Harrigan, as the detective, assumes several disguises, the Frenchman being particularly effective. Mrs. Yeamans has another fine part as has also our favorite Fanny Young. The school scene is very amusing, and takes greatly with the audience. All the company appear to great advantage in the piece.

"The Lorgaire" might well be called a musical comedy, for there are twenty choruses in it. The songs are all catchy, especially so—The Milkmaid's song and "La Plus Belle France."

We call attention to the cast and synopsis of incidents on our first page.

Next week "Squatter Sovereignty" will be given, for the first time here, since its elaboration from a slight sketch.

New California Theatre.

This week Fred. Marsden's beautiful play, "Sorry Gow," and one of the best of Mr Murphy's pieces, is the attraction; it is touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and is meeting with its old time success, full houses.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty pic-called "the funniest play of them all." Bert & Sissons have purchased the coast rights to his most popular play and standard success, and have engaged one of the best of Eastern dialect comedians, Mr. Frank Howard, to play the leading comedy role. "Over the Garden Wall" has the advantage of a strong cast, new music, new costumes and scenery in this production, and as it is played at popular prices we look for it to repeat the success of Bert & Sissons' "Peck's Bad Boy" weeks at this house.

Miss Freddie Stockmeyer is included in the cast. Between the acts Matt Morgan's tableau vivants or living pictures are shown under the direction of Mr. J. F. Raymond.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week the attraction will be the sensational melodrama, in a prologue and three acts, by James Carden, entitled "Two Roads."

Mr. Chapelle assumes the role of a man made crazy by the wrongs inflicted on him by those nearest and dearest to him, but everything is at the last made right and peace comes to his disturbed mind.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and next week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will make her first appearance this week in the new burlesque, written by herself, entitled "The Viceroy's Favorite." Mr. John McCullough is the other new claimant for a share of the popular favor.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue, Alice Mansfield and Lulu Powers as the new faces.

Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring remain.

Ned Nestell's sensational burlesque, "The Daughter of Satan," will be produced each evening.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, Pat Killen's Pugilistic Combination will appear. Mr. Killen will give $100 to any man who will stand up before him for four rounds.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Wrong Man," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Landlord," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Byrnes, John Cook, Bessie Armstrong Stella Merriam, Nellie Henry and Lou Cook.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akerman.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Blanche Stetson, Maud Stetson, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akerman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful super-

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price.. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

$3 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sauel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State. Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A.M and reach Ukiah at 11 45 Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Ment on the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No. 2 New Montgomery street, or at the the Tiburon ferry office.

If history repeats itself at the Orpheum Geo. S. Knight's very funny farce-comedy, "Over the Garden Wall," presented under the management of Bert & Sisson, who produced "Peck's Bad Boy" there, will throng that house this week. They have purchased the coast rights to the play and have engaged Frank Howard, the popular Eastern comedian, and a good company to appear in it. It is a good commencement for the switch-off in seasons for the Orpheum.

"The Lorgaire" or "The Detective" will be presented this week for the first time in San Francisco, and will fill out Harrigan's sixth week at the Alcazar. "The Lorgaire" is a picture of Irish life in Ireland, and is a departure for Mr. Harrigan, whose talents have always been confined to depicting life in New York, with the single exception of "Pete," his plantation-life play. It was produced last Winter at his New York theatre.

"Among the grandmothers now on the stage," says the New York Mercury, "are Modjeska, Sara Bernhardt, Ellen Terry, Lydia Thompson Mrs. John Drew, Rose Eytinge, Louise Eldridge and Mrs. W. J. Florence." Among those who are not, as far as FIGARO knows, are Lotta and Maggie Mitchell.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

We are sorry to learn that Tom Gossman, so long property man of the old California Theatre, and Harry Deaver, another old San Francisean, lost all their savings in their Mount Morris Museum, New York. They opened it in April, and were closed out deeply in debt July 20th.

Ned Foster sold his four-in-hand Shetland pony teams, outfit and all, to G. V. Phinney, of Seattle, for a road turnout for his wife. The lady can congratulate herself upon having the most novel and beautiful road establishment in the Union. The price paid was $1800.

Ted Marks, formerly a resident of the coolest Summer city in the Union, and the warmest Winter one—need we add San Francisco—leaves London in charge of Prof. Herrmann's Transatlantic Vaudeville, which will open at the Bijou, N. Y., on the 19th, and at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre in November. Mr. Marks is positive in the assertion that this combination of attractions is the greatest of the kind that ever visited America.

Wm. and Nettie Behren, musical sketch artists, make their first appearance at the Eureka Music Hall this week in their original comedy sketch, "Pastimes."

Mr. Fred Solomon's original burlesque, "Banditti," had its first production at Koster & Bial's Theatre, New York, on August 5th.

Martin & Lonsdale, sketch artists, conclude their successful engagement at Foy's Lyceum Theatre, Ogden, this week.

Ross & Fenton will join Filson & Errol at Portland, Or., August 12th, to play in a new farce comedy, entitled The Chicks, under the management of John Cort.

Pat Killen's Pugilistic Combination will appear at the Cremorne Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, headed by Pat Killen, whose fame as a pugilist is world-wide, and makes a standing offer of $100 to any man who will stand up before him for four rounds. Killen comes here matched to meet Joe Muvulff, the California heavy-weight champion, in this city next September. We congratulate Manager Ned Homan upon securing so big an attraction. They will be red letter nights at the Cremorne.

Lively times at the boxing nights, Tuesday and Friday, at the Cremorne.

Gilbert & Sullivan are at work upon a new comic opera dealing with sixteenth century "fads."

The Grismer season opens at the Bush Street Theatre August 12th. Mr. Grismer presents "The Burglar," by George Thomas, an elaboration of the celebrated sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Burnett, authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The piece is now running at the Madison Square Theatre to crowded houses, and is the latest New York success. Mr. Grismer has the sole right of production of the piece on this coast.

"La Plus Belle France," one of the pretty melodies of "The Lorgaire," has caught on. It had to be repeated three times Monday night.

An inspired prophet has a large following of colored people in Georgia who believe that the world will come to an end on August 16th, and some wide awake swindler has sold already 150 pairs of "angel wings" at $10 a pair. Only a few days left. Are there any angel wings in town?

History repeats itself at the Orpheum. Geo. S. Knight's very funny farce-comedy, "Over the Garden Wall," presented under the management of Bert & Sisson, who produced "Peck's Bad Boy" there, is thronging that house this week. They have purchased the coast rights to the piece and have Frank Howard, a popular Eastern comedian, and a good company in it. It is a good commencement for the switch-off in seasons for the Orpheum.

Thos. H. Andrews, the popular stage machinist and custodian of the Grand Opera House, will be tendered a benefit by his professional and other friends on Sunday evening, September 8th, when a big bill of attractions will be presented.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Ward have

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Gardner as the German Karl plays the dual role of a Frenchman this week; Joseph Murphy puts on simulated characters in "Kerry Gow;" Edward Harrigan as the Detective (the Lorgaire) assumes the parts of a commercial traveler, a village schoolmaster and the French captain of a smuggler in his play; and Rose Coghlan changes her woman's petticoats for the breeches, fights a duel with rapiers and kills her adversary in "Jocelyn." These are not your one part actors. They are all full of vacillating versatility.

"Kerry Gow," one of Joseph Murphy's earliest plays, has been touched up with improvements, particularly in the concluding and racing scenes. It draws full houses.

"Jocelyn" is a heavy-weight play that even Alvin's diamonds would not lighten up. Miss Coghlan is overweighted with it, and will appear in "Masks and Faces" next week, putting Joce on the retired list. John T. Sullivan and all the support are held down with its coat of armor of blank, blank verse, its thees and thous, etc., and are unable to raise an inspiration out of its befogged ideas.

Miss Melville and Mr. Mainhall are especially commendable for their support in "Kerry Gow."

That black-eyed, black haired soubrette, Miss Alice Irving, makes a merry success of her part in "Karl" this week. But don't the gallery boys go for the Gypsy, though.

John "Falstaff" Jack will show us the qualities of his Falstaff in the near future in a performance at the Baldwin given for the benefit of Chas. R. Thorne, the veteran.

C. J. Edmonds has given Murphy good support all through his engagement at the California.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush by-and-by, as it plays the coast under M. B. Leavitt's management.

Charlotte Tittel is East. She will play Eleanor in E. H. Sothern's Lord Chumley Co., under the Lyceum management.

Katie Putnam has scored a hit as Lena, the Madcap, in Melbourne, and her season in Australia is likely to be a decided success.

J. J. Wallace, a good and conscientious actor, will leave us for the East shortly. He has been engaged for Lawrence Barrett's company next season, and has been cast for a strong part in "Ganelon," Mr. Barrett's new play.

Joseph Haworth, an excellent actor, comes to us at the Bush later on in "Paul Kauvar," with Louise Rial and a strong company in support.

The following well known attractions will play a California and Western tour under the management of Mr. M. B. Leavitt this season: Aronson's Casino Opera Co., sixteen weeks; Jos. Haworth in "Paul Kauvar," fourteen weeks; John H. Russell and David Henderson's Criterion Comedy Company, ten weeks; Maggie Mitchell, twelve weeks; American Opera Co., fourteen weeks; Leavitt's spectacular production, "Spider and the Fly," fourteen weeks. This is a very strong bill of attractions. The fares alone it is estimated will cost Mr. Leavitt about $30,000, but the drawing qualities of the combinations are unquestionable, and the bigger the shows the more money there is in them is getting to be an axiom.

The Examiner justly says: "Miss Agnes Thomas, who plays the role of Duchess de Montaigne in 'Jocelyn,' made its individuality wonderfully distinct. She overdid nothing, but neglected no suggestion in the liner, and she made the part seem more natural and human—in spite of its inconsistencies—than most of the others. One of her charms is a very pure, clear and musical enunciation."

Lewis Morrison returned with his company from his Eureka tour and took cars for the East Monday night.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a different play will be given every week.

E. J. Buckley and Miss Isabel Morris, joint stars, open in "Gwynne's Oath" at the Alcazar on the 26th inst.

Charlie Reed will open the season with the "City Directory," August 12th, at Chicago. The company comes to the Bush Street Theatre.

Manager George Wallenrod, of the Alcazar, is going to open a new house, and will give a house-warming reception to his friends at Alcazar Cottage, 2618 Bryant street, assisted by Mrs. Wallenrod, on Saturday evening next at 8 o'clock. This house is to be his new home; and all who know him will, we are sure, heartily wish him a long life and a contented one within its portals. The Alcazar company, we learn, intend to be in at the christening. They will go out in carry-alls after the performance. They may unavoidably be a little late in starting, but they will drive their Stock-well along at a Blooming pace and Mark their way so directly that they will be there, if they have to ring the Midnight Bell to get in.

"A New Way to Pay Old Debts" will be given for Mr. Warner's benefit, August 11th, at the Baldwin Theatre, the beneficiary as Sir Giles Overreach. A large number of professionals have volunteered, including J. J. Jack, J. J. Wallace, Miss

The next week will be the last one of Joseph Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.

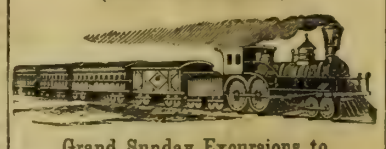
Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

Many a California milkman would fall in love with the pretty milkmaids at the Alcazar, and then in the goodness of his heart he would replace their heavy wooden pails with shiny tin ones and tell them they were nickel-plated.

Laurence & Conner's Musical Comedy Co., organized in this city, will open in Portland on the 19th, and make an extended tour through Washington Territory, Montana, Dakota and Minnesota. The company consists of Billy Courtright, Frank Calburt, Annie Whitney, Frank Valerga, Johnnie Williams, Billy Donnelly, Gilbert Girard, Fanny Yantis and Minnie Barquelle. Their standard pieces are "The Widow O'Brien" and "Barnum's Baby."

Mrs. Kendall, the ripened English actress that is coming here this year, comes of a family that has furnished seven generations to the stage.

Karl Gardner has a tenor voice of peculiar sweetness, purity and high range. He is the best Swiss singer or yodeler on the stage. His selections for this, his farewell week, are: "Come Down by Dot Gate," "Mer Father vos an Auctioneer," "French Convict," "Vienna Flower Girl," "Clock Vender," "Jack in the Box," "Alpine Guide," his beautiful "Lullaby" and in the fourth act he will sing by request his famous "Lilac" song.



Karl Gardner gives us his eight years comedy success in the East, "Karl, the Peddler," this week at the Bush, with an entire change of songs, including his famed lullaby.

The attraction at the Orpheum this week will be "Over the Garden Wall" Comedy Co.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week will be the farewell one in this city of the jolly comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, more popularly known as "Karl Gardner," from the long run he made East in his eight years comedy success of "Karl the Peddler." In this play Mr. Gardner first achieved fame and fortune, and it will prove all the more attractive from the fact that this will be its first production on the Pacific Coast. He will also give an entire change of songs, including his world-famed lullaby, retaining, by request, his beautiful "Lilac" song, which he sings in the fourth act.

Mr. Gardner is justly credited with a geniality of feeling that charms his audiences with his mingled pathos and humor, and also with being "the sweetest singer of Tyrolean melodies on the stage." "Karl" gives him a fine opportunity in its sunshine and shade to depict the love of home, the kindly virtues, the healthy humor, and strength of character that the German nature is capable of. His new songs command general recalls.

Mr. Gardner brings with him a well selected company, that render ample support in various lines of characters. The ladies do excellent work in "Karl." Messrs. Dannemiller and Garey give us good characterizations, and La Petite Louie, the child actress, is very clever.

Next week we are to have Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week we have "The Lorgaire," an Irish drama. The action takes place on the old sod. It is a new play to us, though it had a successful run in New York. Its principal scenes are: The Beggars' Gathering at Kilcolgan the Manor House, the Seagulls Cliff and Leap for Life, the Hedge School and the Christening Party. We have Irish life and Irish characters as found in the fishing village of Kilcolgan, and also the "real gentlemen" as seen in the Manor House.

Mr. Harrigar, as the detective, assumes several disguises, the Frenchman being particularly effective. Mrs. Yeamans has another fine part, as has also our favorite Fanny Young. The school scene is very amusing, and takes greatly with the audience. All the company appear to great advantage in the piece.

"The Lorgaire" might well be called a musical comedy, for there are twenty choruses in it. The songs are all catchy, especially so—The Milkmaid's song and "La Plus Belle France."

We call attention to the cast and synopsis of incidents on our first page.

Next week "Squatter Sovereignty" will be given, for the first time here, since its elaboration from a slight sketch.

New California Theatre.

This week Fred Maraden's beautiful play, 'Kerry Gow,' and one of the best of Mr Murphy's pieces, is the attraction; it is touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and is meeting with its old time success, full houses.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and sings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present a popular called "the funniest play of them all." Bert & Sissons have purchased the coast rights to his most popular play and standard success, and have engaged one of the best of Eastern dialect comedians, Mr. Frank Howard, to play the leading comedy role. "Over the Garden Wall" has the advantage of a strong cast, new music, new costumes and scenery in this production, and as it is played at popular prices we look for it to repeat the success of Bert & Sissons' "Peck's Bad Boy" weeks at this house.

Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, who is included in the cast, has made a distinct hit.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week the attraction will be the sensational melodrama, in a prologue and three acts, by James Carden, entitled "Two Roads."

Mr. Chapelle assumes the role of a man made crazy by the wrongs inflicted on him by those nearest and dearest to him, but everything is at the last made right and peace comes to his disturbed mind.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and next week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will make her first appearance this week in the new burlesque, written by herself, entitled "The Viceroy's Favorite." Mr. John McCullough is the other new claimant for a share of the popular favor.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue, Alice Mansfield and Lulu Powers as the new faces.

Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring remain.

Ned Nestell's sensational burlesque, "The Daughter of Satan," will be produced each evening.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, Pat Killen's Pugilistic Combination will appear. Mr. Killen will give $100 to any man who will stand up before him for four rounds.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Wrong Man," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Landlord," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Cook, Bessie Armstrong Stella Merriam, Nellie Henry and Lou Cook.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Blanche Stetson, Maud Stetson, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, put in first appearances this week.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

$3 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A.M. and reach Ukiah at 11 45 Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Ment on the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No. 2 New Montgomery street, or at the Tiburon ferry office.

"The Lorgaire" or "The Detective" will be presented this week for the first time in San Francisco, and will fill out Harrigan's sixth week at the Alcazar. "The Lorgaire" is a picture of Irish life in Ireland, and is a departure for Mr. Harrigar, whose talents have always been confined to depicting life in New York, with the single exception of "Pete," his plantation-life play. It was produced last Winter at his New York theatre.

Murphy revels this week in "Kerry Gow," and though no blacksmith as an actor he will play one, and shoe a horse on the stage in A 1 style.

August 12th, Wyatt's English Opera Company will inaugurate a season of English comic opera at the Orpheum.

Manager J. J Gottlob is happy in a lot of big bookings Among others the New York Casino Company come to the Bush by-and-by, and will play this coast under the management of M. B. Leavitt.

Joe Mount, who represented Manager John Maguire with the Goodyear, Cook & Dillon Minstrels, who played them as far as Omaha, is in town awaiting Mr. Maguire's coming. Mr. Mount will be one of the staff of the Grand Opera House under Maguire's management when it opens in October.

Edward Harrigan has telegraphed East for some leading people to join him here and play Eastward en route to New York.

Manager John H. Russell has made Miss "The Love Story," in which Miss Adelaide Moore will be seen at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Aug. 19 was originally produced in London May 23, 1888. It was a success.

"Mamma," H. Grattan Donnelly's new farce-comedy, will be produced early next season. The cast will include Frank Deshon, Amy Ames and Della Fox. W. F. Falk will be the manager.

Lizzie Evans will give "Fine Feathers" a few trial performances at the summer resorts on the Jersey coast near Asbury Park before beginning her regular season at the Globe Theatre, Boston, on Aug. 19.

Edward H. Van Veghten, at present with a comic opera company in Chicago, has been engaged by manager Frederick W. Bert for the comedy role in "Lost in Africa," the spectacular melodrama to be produced in New York city Sept. 2.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week will be the farewell one in this city of the jolly comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, more popularly known as "Karl Gardner," from the long run he made East in his eight years comedy success of "Karl the Peddler." In this play Mr. Gardner first achieved fame and fortune, and it will prove all the more attractive from the fact that this will be its first production on the Pacific Coast. He will also give an entire change of songs, including his world-famed lullaby, retaining, by request, his beautiful "Lilac" song, which he sings in the fourth act.

Mr. Gardner is justly credited with a geniality of feeling that charms his audiences with his mingled pathos and humor, and also with being "the sweetest singer of Tyrolean melodies on the stage." "Karl" gives him a fine opportunity in its sunshine and shade to depict the love of home, the kindly virtues, the healthy humor, and strength of character that the German nature is capable of. His new songs command general recalls.

Mr. Gardner brings with him a well selected company, that render ample support in various lines of characters. The ladies do excellent work in "Karl." Messrs. Dannemiller and Carey give us good characterizations, and La Petite Louie, the child actress, is very clever.

Next week we are to have Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week we have "The Lorgaire," an Irish drama. The action takes place on the old sod. It is a new play to us, though it had a successful run in New York. Its principal scenes are: The Beggars' Gathering at Kilcolgan, the Manor House, the Seagulls Cliff and Leap for Life, the Hedge School and the Christening Party. We have Irish life and Irish characters as found in the fishing village of Kilcolgan, and also the "real gentlemen" as seen in the Manor House.

Mr. Harrigan, as the detective, assumes several disguises, the Frenchman being particularly effective. Mrs. Yeamans has another fine part, as has also our favorite Fanny Young. The school scene is very amusing, and takes greatly with the audience. All the company appear to great advantage in the piece.

"The Lorgaire" might well be called a musical comedy, for there are twenty choruses in it. The songs are all catchy, especially so—The Milkmaid's song and "La Plus Belle France."

We call attention to the cast and synopsis of incidents on our first page.

Next week "Squatter Sovereignty" will be given, for the first time here, since its elaboration from a slight sketch.

New California Theatre.

This week Fred. Maraden's beautiful play "Kerry Gow," and one of the best of Mr Murphy's pieces, is the attraction; it is touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and is meeting with its old time success, full houses.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture.

Next week will be the last of Mr. Murphy's engagement in "Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue."

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present a popular comedy attraction this week in Geo. S. Knight's musical comedy of "Over the Garden Wall"—called "the funniest play of them all." Bert & Sissons have purchased the coast rights to his most popular play and standard success, and have engaged one of the best of Eastern dialect comedians, Mr. Frank Howard, to play the leading comedy role. "Over the Garden Wall" has the advantage of a strong cast, new music, new costumes and scenery in this production, and as it is played at popular prices we look for it to repeat the success of Bert & Sissons' "Peck's Bad Boy" weeks at this house.

Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, who is included in the cast, has made a distinct hit.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week the attraction will be the sensational melodrama, in a prologue and three acts, by James Carden, entitled "Two Roads."

Mr. Chapelle assumes the role of a man made crazy by the wrongs inflicted on him by those nearest and dearest to him, but everything is at the last made right and peace comes to his disturbed mind.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and next week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will make her first appearance this week in the new burlesque, written by herself, entitled "The Viceroy's Favorite." Mr. John McCullough is the other new claimant for a share of the popular favor.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue and Lulu Powers as the new faces.

Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring remain.

Ned Nestell's sensational burlesque, "The Daughter of Satan," will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Wrong Man," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Landlord," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Blanche Stetson, Maud Stetson, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, put in first appearances this week.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez, on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A.M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P.M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price.. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

$3 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State. Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A.M. and reach Ukiah at 11 45 Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Ment on the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No 2 New Montgomery street, or at the the Tiburon ferry office.

"The Lorgaire" or "The Detective" will be presented this week for the first time in San Francisco, and will fill out Harrigan's sixth week at the Alcazar. "The Lorgaire" is a picture of Irish life in Ireland, and is a departure for Mr. Harrigan, whose talents have always been confined to depicting life in New York, with the single exception of "Pete," his plantation-life play. It was produced last Winter at his New York theatre.

Edward Harrigan has telegraphed East for some leading people to join him here and play Eastward en route to New York.

Manager John H. Russell has made Miss Georgie Parker an offer to join his "City Directory" company.

"La Plus Belle France," one of the pretty melodies of "The Lorgaire," has caught on.

History repeats itself at the Orpheum. Geo. S. Knight's very funny farce-comedy, "Over the Garden Wall," presented under the management of Bert & Sisson, who produced "Peck's Bad Boy" there, is thronging that house this week. They have purchased the coast rights to the play and have Frank Howard, a popular Eastern comedian, and a good company in it. It is a good commencement for the switch-off in seasons for the Orpheum.

C. J. Edmonds has given Murphy good support all through his engagement at the California.

A new opera house has just been completed at Manasquan, N. J., and is to be dedicated next month by Lizzie Evans in "The Love Story," in which Miss Adelaide Moore will be seen at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Aug. 19 was originally produced in London May 23, 1888. It was a success.

"Mamma," H. Grattan Donnelly's new farce-comedy, will be produced early next season. The cast will include Frank Deshon, Amy Ames and Della Fox. W. F. Falk will be the manager.

Lizzie Evans will give "Fine Feathers" a few trial performances at the summer resorts on the Jersey coast near Asbury Park before beginning her regular season at the Globe Theatre, Boston, on Aug. 19.

Edward H. Van Vegbten, at present with a comic opera company in Chicago, has been engaged by manager Frederick W. Bert for the comedy role in "Lost in Africa," the spectacular melodrama to be produced in New York city Sept. 2.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Frost will make an extended tour of the California fairs again this season. Frank enters the tented fields with Prof. Paul and wife, Ed. Latelle, musical and banjo act, and other performers, and several good museum cards, including a female serpent charmer with imported snakes. Frank declares he don't want to have anything more to do with California snakes.

The Theatre Comique has an excellent bill this week. The Cooke, John and Lou. have become great favorites; Matt Trayers creates a lot of fun in his specialties, which are always new, topical and amusing. The two farces are well put on, and all the parts are well played.

Lew Dockstader had a gold watch sprung on him by a number of friends during a perf rmance last week.

Prof. Bushnell, with his troupe of dogs and pigeons, and Prof Gustave Peterson, necromancer, wizard, mesmerist, wire-walker, etc., are giving an entertainment by themselves, a "great show," a la Barnum, in the interior.

Pat Killen's Pugilistic Combination appear at the Cremorne Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, headed by Pat Killen, whose fame is world-wide. Killen comes here matched to meet Joe McAuliff, the California heavy-weight champion, in this city next September. We congratulate Manager Ned Homan upon securing so big an attraction. They will be red letter nights at the Cremorne.

We are sorry to learn that Tom Gossman, so long property man of the old California Theatre, and Harry Deaves, another old San Franciscan, lost all their savings in their Mount Morris Museum, New York. They opened it in April, and were closed out deeply in debt July 20th.

Ted Marks, formerly a resident of the coolest Summer city in the Union, and the warmest Winter one—need we add San Francisco—leaves London in charge of Prof. Herrmann's Transatlantic Vaudeville, which will open at the Bijou, N. Y., on the 19th, and at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre in November. Mr. Marks is positive in the assertion that this combination of attractions is the greatest of the kind that ever visited America.

Wm. and Nettie Behren, musical sketch artists, make their first appearance at the Eureka Music Hall this week in their original comedy sketch, "Pastimes."

Mr. Fred Solomon's original burlesque, "Banditti," had its first production at Koster & Bial's Theatre, New York, on August 5th.

The following well known attractions will play a California and Western tour under the management of Mr. M. B. Leavitt this season: Aronson's Casino Opera Co., sixteen weeks; Jos. Haworth in "Paul Kauvar," fourteen weeks; John H. Russell and David Henderson's Criterion Comedy Company, ten weeks; Maggie Mitchell, twelve weeks; American Opera Co., fourteen weeks; Leavitt's spectacular production, "Spider and the Fly," fourteen weeks. This is a very strong bill of attractions. The fares alone it is estimated will cost Mr. Leavitt about $30,000, but the drawing qualities of the combinations are unquestionable, and the bigger the shows the more money there is in them is getting to be an axiom.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a different play will be given every week.

E. J. Buckley and Miss Isabel Morris, joint stars, open in "Gwynne's Oath" at the Alcazar on the 26th inst.

"A New Way to Pay Old Debts" will be given for Mr. Warner's benefit, August 11th, at the Baldwin Theatre, the beneficiary as Sir Giles Overreach. A large number of professionals have volunteered, including J. J. Jack, J. J. Wallace, Miss Clyde Herron and Miss Ida Lansom (a pupil of Mr. Warner's).

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44"

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager M. B. Leavitt will this season control the Pacific Coast tours of fifteen strong attractions.

Charles Bowser has made a big hit in 'Cheek.' Dick Smythe, the cheeky newspaper reporter, is a part that fits him down to the ground.

It is said that John C. Heenan left his widow, Sara Stevens, $42,000, which she lost in a theatrical speculation. She is now a member of the Grismer-Davies combination.

Mr. Leon Mayor, who is mayor of Evans & Hoey's "A Parlor Match" Co., at least, is in town paving the way—all mayors are in the paving way—for its coming at the California. Evans & Hoey follow Murphy on the 19th.

Arthur Carmody, well known to managers and professionals as the telegraphic correspondent of the New York Clipper, and one of the best accountants on the coast, has been called upon in the last capacity to make out an annual statement from the books of the California Athletic Club. Nothing wrong, you know, only the accounts have been knocked out of time by not being in condition. They needed an expert to train them into shape.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. open at the Orpheum August 12th. They will sing "Iolanthe" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings; "Virginia" Thursday and Friday evenings, and 'Patience" Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matinee. Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

Ezra Kendall is to reassume next season the character of Dr. Mulo Medicus in "We, Us & Co." [It is a year of calamities.]

"Clover has entered its third month at Palmer's, N. Y. It continues to draw large audiences.

The European artists engaged for "Kajanka" sailed for this country Aug. 7th on the City of New York.

The Pinard Family, fantastic pantomimists, will be members of Herrmann's Transatlantic Vaudevilles.

Rehearsals of "Kajanka" begin Aug. 25th at the Metropolitan and Grand Opera House in Columbus, O. The dramatic and specialty portions will rehearse on different stages at first.

The Irish drama, with Murphy and Harrigan at the head, continues to draw big business. Murphy is actually turning people away at the California in the third week of his engagement, and Harrigan has drawn full houses for six weeks in his round of pieces at the Alcazar. Is it an epidemic?

The friends of Mme. Gerster, says the London Figaro, will be glad to hear that she has so far recovered from the illness which at one time threatened to end in total extinction of voice that she was able to appear at Kruli's Theatre, Berlin, last week in "Lucia." The Continental papers aver her voice is better than ever, and we shall all hope that the assertion is not actuated by mere politeness.

John T. Malone has been engaged to play Iago to Salvini's Othello, and corresponding parts in other plays in the Italian tragedian's repertoire.

The long standing quarrel between the two brothers, Imre and Bolossy Kiralfy, is at an end, and after the coming season they will join forces again and work together in the production of spectacular pieces in New York and throughout the country. The reconciliation is so complete that Imre has decided not to compete with his brother this season.

Nasr-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, when in London took a fancy to Mrs. Shaw, the American whistler, says a contemporary, and gravely offered to buy her. He was willing to 'pay dear for his whistle," though he never heard of the proverb.

Willie Edouin opened the Comedy Theatre, London, recently, in a new 3-act comedy, called 'Our Flat." The piece is well spoken of and said to be very funny.

Gardner as the German Karl plays the dual role of a Frenchman this week; Joseph Murphy puts on simulated characters in "Kerry Gow;" Edward Harrigan as the Detective (the Lorgaire) assumes the parts of a commercial traveler, a village schoolmaster and the French captain of a smuggler in his play; and Rose Coghlan changes her woman's petticoats for the breeches, fights a duel with rapiers and kills her adversary in "Jocelyn." These are not your one part actors. They are all full of vacillating versatility.

"Kerry Gow," one of Joseph Murphy's earliest plays, has been touched up with improvements, particularly in the concluding and racing scenes. It draws full houses.

"Jocelyn" is a heavy-weight play that even Alvin's diamonds would not lighten up. Miss Coghlan is overweighted with it, and will appear in "Masks and Faces" next week, putting Joce on the retired list.

Joseph Haworth, an excellent actor, comes to us at the Bush later on in "Paul Kauvar," with Louise Rial and a strong company in support.

That black-eyed, black haired soubrette, Miss Alice Irving, makes a merry success of her part in "Karl" this week. But don't the gallery boys go for the Gypsy, though.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush by and by, as it plays the coast under M.

ENTIRE CHANGE of SONGS

Including his World-Famed

LULLABY.

Matinees: Wednesday and Saturday.

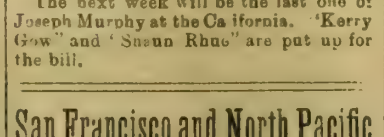
The Grismer season opens at the Bush Street Theatre August 12th. Mr. Grismer presents "The Burglar," by George Thomas, an elaboration of the celebrated sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Burnett, authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The piece is now running at the Madison Square Theatre to crowded houses, and is the latest New York success. Mr. Grismer has the sole right of production of the piece on this coast. Read the New York press endorsements in an extra programme space on another page.

Karl Gardner has a tenor voice of peculiar sweetness, purity and high range. He is the best Swiss singer or yodeler on the stage. His selections for this week include his beautiful "Lullaby" and in the fourth act he will sing by request his famous "Lilac" song.

Thos. H. Andrews, the popular stage machinist and custodian of the Grand Opera House, will be tendered a benefit by his professional and other friends on Sunday evening, September 8th, when a big bill of attractions will be presented.

Miss Melville and Mr. Mainhall are especially commendable for their support in "Kerry Gow."

John 'Falstaff" Jack will show us the qualities of his Falstaff in the near future in a performance at the Baldwin given for the benefit of Chas. R. Thorne, the veteran.



Charlotte Tittel is East. She will play Eleanor in E. H. Sothern's Lord Chumley Co., under the Lyceum management.

J. J. Wallace, a good and conscientious actor, will leave us for the East shortly. He has been engaged for Lawrence Barrett's company next season, and has been cast for a strong part in "Ganelon," Mr. Barrett's new play.

The next week will be the last one of Joseph Murphy at the California. 'Kerry Gow" and 'Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY.....AUGUST 9, 1889

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

James Reilly, a former Emerson Minstrel, who lately returned here to play an engagement at the Orpheum, leaves for the East Monday. Mr. Reilly will open in his new piece, 'The Broom-maker," at Atlantic City, Sept. 5th, with thirty-two weeks booked ahead.

Raymon Moore has won triple encores for his vocal turn, as has Freddie Stockmeyer for her song and dance in "Over the Garden Wall" at the Orpheum this week.

Frank Frost will make an extended tour of the California fairs again this season. Frank enters the tented fields with Prof. Paul and wife, Ed. Latelle, musical and banjo act, and other performers, and several good museum cards, including a female serpent charmer with imported snakes. Frank declares he don't want to have anything more to do with California snakes.

The Theatre Comique has an excellent bill this week. The Cooke, John and Lou. have become great favorites; Matt Trayers creates a lot of fun in his specialties, which are always new, topical and amusing. The two farces are well put on, and all the parts are well played.

Pat Killen's Pugilistic Combination appear at the Cremorne Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, headed by Pat Killen, whose fame is world-wide. Killen comes here matched to meet Joe McAuliff, the California heavy-weight champion, in this city next September.

We are sorry to learn that Tom Gossman, so long property man of the old California Theatre, and Harry Deaves, another old San Francisean, lost all their savings in their Mount Morris Museum, New York. They opened it in April, and were closed out deeply in debt July 20th.

Ted Marks, formerly a resident of the coolest Summer city in the Union, and the warmest Winter one—need we add San Francisco—leaves London in charge of Prof. Herrmann's Transatlantic Vaudeville, which will open at the Bijou, N. Y., on the 19th, and at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre in November. Mr. Marks is positive in the assertion that this combination of attractions is the greatest of the kind that ever visited America.

Lively times at the boxing nights, Tuesday and Friday, at the Cremorne.

The following well known attractions will play a California and Western tour under the management of Mr. M. B. Leavitt this season: Aronson's Casino Opera Co., sixteen weeks; Jos. Haworth in "Paul Kauvar," fourteen weeks; John H. Russell and David Henderson's Criterion Comedy Company, ten weeks; Maggie Mitchell, twelve weeks; American Opera Co., fourteen weeks; Leavitt's spectacular production, "Spider and the Fly," fourteen weeks. This is a very strong bill of attractions. The fares alone it is estimated will cost Mr. Leavitt about $30,000, but the drawing qualities of the combinations are unquestionable, and the bigger the shows the more money there is in them is getting to be an axiom.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a diff rent play will be given every week.

"A New Way to Pay Old Debts" will be given for Mr. Warner's benefit, Sunday night, at the Baldwin Theatre, the beneficiary as Sir Giles Overreach. A large number of professionals have volunteered, including J. J. Jack, J. J. Wallace, Miss Clyde Herron and Miss Ida Lansom (a pupil of Mr. Warner's).

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

That black-eyed, black haired soubrette, Miss Alice Irving, makes a merry success her part in "Karl" this week. But don't the gallery boys go for the Gypsy, though.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"Peck's Bad Boy" will open his budget of pranks at the Los Angeles Theatre on the 15th, and will do the Southern circuit afterwards under Wyatt's management.

Walter Matthews, the young tragedian in the Eastern fields, is the son of W. S. Matthews, the tobacco king of Louisville, Ky. He is said to have paid the author $5,000 for his new play, "Aramis, the Master Mind."

Jennie Lee, who made such a success in "Little Jo," is revisiting Australia.

George C. Milne is doing fine business in the interior towns of Australia. Eight or ten years ago Milne was one of the sensational preachers of Chicago. He left the pulpit for the stage, and achieved only a very questionable position as a tragedian in this country. He had intelligence, education, emotion, voice and a good stage presence in his favor, but he was crude. His acting was uneven and his emotions too pronounced to win him a leading position on the stage here. From his late great success in Hamlet and other Shakespearean roles in Melbourne we may arrive at the conclusion that Mr. Milne has conquered himself, subdued the excessive mental excitements of nature, and developed into an unusually strong, magnetic and even actor. His four weeks of Hamlet in Melbourne and his runs in other plays could not have been accidental successes.

A current professional joke: It is no longer Rich Foote, but Rich Head since his engagement at the Alcazar.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening, the 17th. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill with Geo. Y. Stevens as Snorkey, and a well known resident physician, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, debuting as Judge Bowling A large number of popular performers have volunteered for the occasion as will be seen by referring to programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

Miss Hattie Moore and Miss Fanny Bowman have been engaged to accompany Mr. Harrigan on his tour East.

Jay Rial is hesitating between taking a number of successful plays out on a tour of the Pacific Slope and accepting the management of the San Francisco Grand Opera House. In either case his success is to be hoped for. There are mighty few men like Jay Rial.

Georgie Parker has danced herself into "The City Directory."

Frank Daniels and company are booked in "Little Puck" for the entire season of thirty-seven weeks. Thirty-four of these are week stands. Tour extends from Maine to California.

Lewis Morrison will open his season at the Amphion Academy, Brooklyn. His tour has been booked for the entire season.

Margaret Mather's engagement with Manager Al Hayman extends over fifteen weeks.

Effie Shannon plays a little Yankee heart-breaker in 'Shenandoah." Viola Allen plays a little Rebel heart-breaker in the same piece. "Shenandoah" is booked as one of the New California attractions.

When "Said Pasha" was first produced at the Tivoli, musical people generally thought the musical score was poor; and at this late day Richard Stahl writes to the New York Dramatic News acknowledging it to be "trash," and says that he wrote it in a hurry for the San Francisco production. What did the San Francisco dog ever do to Maestro Stahl?

Louis Aldrich testified in court, the other day, that he made $200,000 in five years out of "My Partner," and was out $8,000 in "The Koffic Diamond." The old story. Got rich and invested in diamonds.

Edward Harrigan will give his fiftieth performance at the Alcazar on Monday night, and the event will be marked by elegant souvenir satin programmes.

"Henry IV" will be the bill for the benefit tendered to that veteran of the stage, Charles R. Thorne, at the Baldwin on Sunday evening, August 25th, with John Jack in his star part of Falstaff. John W. Thompson will play Henry IV, and the cast will be a strong one.

Cherubino, in the London Figaro, sneers at "Otello," the libretto, the music, the singers, the orchestra and the chorus, in spiteful fashion. He says Tamagno, the celebrated tenor, emulates the bull of Bashan. London seems on the whole, however, to have taken more kindly to Verdi's opera than did New York.

Mr. Leon Mayor, who is mayor of Evans & Hoey's "A Parlor Match" Co., at least, is in town paving the way—all mayors are in the paving way—for its coming at the California. Evans & Hoey follow Murphy on the 19th.

Arthur Carmody, well known to managers and professionals as the telegraphic correspondent of the New York Clipper, and one of the best accountants on the coast, has been called upon in the last capacity to make out an annual statement from the books of the California Athletic Club. Nothing wrong, you know, only the accounts have been knocked out of time by not being in condition. They needed an expert to train them into shape.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. open at the Orpheum August 12th. They will sing "Iolanthe" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings; "Virginia" Thursday and Friday evenings, and 'Patience" Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matinee. Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

Manager M. B. Leavitt will this season control the Pacific Coast tours of fifteen

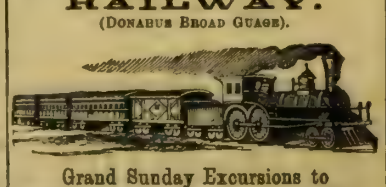
The Grismer season opens at the Bush Street Theatre August 12th. Mr. Grismer presents "The Burglar," by George Thomas, an elaboration of the celebrated sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Burnett, authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The piece is now running at the Madison Square Theatre to crowded houses, and is the latest New York success. Mr. Grismer has the sole right of production of the piece on this coast. Read the New York press endorsements in an extra programme space on another page.

Miss Melville and Mr. Mainhall are especially commendable for their support in "Kerry Gow."

Charlotte Tittel is East. She will play Eleanor in E. H. Sothern's Lord Chumley Co., under the Lyceum management.

The next week will be the last one of Joseph Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.



Nasr-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, when in London took a fancy to Mrs. Shaw, the American whistler, says a contemporary, and gravely offered to buy her. He was willing to "pay dear for his whistle," though he never heard of the proverb.

Willie Edouin opened the Comedy Theatre, London, recently, in a new 3-act comedy, called 'Our Flat." The piece is well spoken of and said to be very funny.

Gardner as the German Karl plays the dual role of a Frenchman this week; Joseph Murphy puts on simulated characters in "Kerry Gow;" Edward Harrigan as the Detective (the Lorgaire) assumes the parts of a commercial traveler, a village schoolmaster and the French captain of a smuggler in his play; and Rose Coghlan changes her woman's petticoats for the breeches, fights a duel with rapiers and kills her adversary in "Jocelyn." These are not your one part actors. They are all full of vacillating versatility.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week will be the farewell one in this city of the jolly comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, more popularly known as "Karl Gardner," from the long run he made East in his eight years comedy success of "Karl the Peddler." In this play Mr. Gardner first achieved fame and fortune, and it will prove all the more attractive from the fact that this will be its first production on the Pacific Coast. He will also give an entire change of songs, including his world-famed lullaby, retaining, by request, his beautiful "Lilac" song, which he sings in the fourth act.

Mr. Gardner is justly credited with a geniality of feeling that charms his audiences with his mingled pathos and humor, and also with being "the sweetest singer of Tyrolean melodies on the stage." "Karl" gives him a fine opportunity in its sunshine and shade to depict the love of home, the kindly virtues, the healthy humor, and strength of character that the German nature is capable of. His new songs command general recalls.

Mr. Gardner brings with him a well selected company, that render ample support in various lines of characters. The ladies do excellent work in "Karl." Messrs. Dannemiller and Garey give us good characterizations, and La Petite Louie, the child actress, is very clever.

Next week we are to have Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week we have "The Lorgaire," an Irish drama. The action takes place on the old sod. It is a new play to us, though it had a successful run in New York. Its principal scenes are: The Beggars' Gathering at Kilcolgan the Manor House, the Seagulls Cliff and Leap for Life, the Hedge School and the Christening Party. We have Irish life and Irish characters as found in the fishing village of Kilcolgan, and also the "real gentlemen" as seen in the Manor House.

Mr. Harrigan, as the detective, assumes several disguises, the Frenchman being particularly effective. Mrs. Yeamans has another fine part, as has also our favorite Fanny Young. The school scene is very amusing, and takes greatly with the audience. All the company appear to great advantage in the piece.

"The Lorgaire" might well be called a musical comedy, for there are twenty choruses in it. The songs are all catchy, especially so—The Milkmaid's song and "La Plus Belle France."

We call attention to the cast and synopsis of incidents on our first page.

Next week "Squatter Sovereignty" will be given, for the first time here, since its elaboration from a slight sketch.

New California Theatre.

This week Fred. Marsden's beautiful play "Merry Gow" and one of the best of Mr Murphy's pieces, is the attraction; it is touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale of every kind, there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and is meeting with its old time success, full houses.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack the jockey, makes a jaunty picture.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening, August 17th, for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, Fanny Young, Kate Dalgreigh, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, Jennie Lamont, Lillie Lawrence, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others in the cast. Stevens will play Snorkey, and Dr. Chaigneau—a well known resident physician—will face the footlights for the first time on this occasion as Judge Bowling. The olio scenes will be enlivened by the Great Ellwood, John Blackford, Willie Drum and L. J. Picquett in specialties. The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present a popular comedy attraction this week in Geo. S. Knight's musical comedy of "Over the Garden Wall"—called "the funniest play of them all." Bert & Sissons have purchased the coast rights to his most popular play and standard success, and have engaged one of the best of Eastern dialect comedians, Mr. Frank Howard, to play the leading comedy role. "Over the Garden Wall" has the advantage of a strong cast, new music, new costumes and scenery in this production, and as it is played at popular prices we look for it to repeat the success of Bert & Sissons' "Peck's Bad Boy" weeks at this house.

Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, who is included in the cast, has made a distinct hit.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week the attraction will be the sensational melodrama, in a prologue and three acts, by James Carden, entitled "Two Roads."

Mr. Chapelle assumes the role of a man made crazy by the wrongs inflicted on him by those nearest and dearest to him, but everything is at the last made right and peace comes to his disturbed mind.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and next week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will make her first appearance this week in the new burlesque, written by herself, entitled "The Viceroy's Favorite." Mr. John McCullough is the other new claimant for a share of the popular favor.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue and Lulu Powers as the new faces.

Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring remain.

Ned Nestell's sensational burlesque, "The Daughter of Satan," will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Wrong Man," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Landlord," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Blanche Stetson, Maud Stetson, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, put in first appearances this week.

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 11th, grand picnic of the Carlton Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

$3 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State. Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A M and reach Ukiah at 11 45 Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Menton the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No 2 New Montgomery street, or at the the Tiburon ferry office.

The Irish drama, with Murphy and Harrigan at the head, continues to draw big business. Murphy is actually turning people away at the California in the third week of his engagement, and Harrigan has drawn full houses for six weeks in his round of pieces at the Alcazar. Is it an epidemic?

Rehearsals of "Kajanka" begin Aug. 25th at the Metropolitan and Grand Opera House in Columbus, O. The dramatic and specialty portions will rehearse on different stages at first.

Ezra Kendall is to reassume next season the character of Dr. Mulo Medicus in "We, Us & Co." [It is a year of calamities.]

EVENING EDITION

SATURDAY.....AUGUST 10, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

LETTER FROM BERNARD DYLLYN.

London, England, July 20, 1889.

DEAR FIGARO: I have not forgotten the old-time and reliable FIGARO which afforded me valuable reading theatrically in days gone by, when I was struggling around the different variety theatres in San Francisco in 1873 74 (I would be pleased to receive a copy at this very moment). I have been in London for the past four weeks. I shall remain here one week longer, then run over to Paris to take in the Exposition, Bill Cody's Wild West Show, etc, and return to America in August.

I commence my season at Trenton, N. J., Sept 9th, with Monroe & Rice's "My Aunt Bridget" Co., a musical comedy by Scott Marble, author of 'Over the Garden Wall." I have purchased three excellent songs here, which I think will be the greatest goes I have ever sung—and I have sung a few in my time. One is entitled "Before the Judge." I do five different dialect and character bits. The other songs are character and comic.

I have met several California boys since I have been here, among them Ted Marks, representing Herrmann, the magician, securing attractions for his Vaudeville Co.; Marcus Mayer, acting for Abbey, after big game, bagging Patti and other rare singing birds, and Mr. Frank Unger, who is here for pleasure. I also met Evans & Hoey, of the "Parlor Match" Co. They returned home last week and will make direct for the Pacific Coast, opening in San Francisco in August; Geo. W. Lederer, formerly with M. B. Leavitt; Smiley Walker, representing Annie Pixley; Jack Hamilton, of the Dramatic News; Spencer Cone, Kate Claxton's brother; A. M. Palmer and J. C. Jarrett; George Floyd, Kate Forsythe's manager; Tony Pastor, pastor of a New York theatre; Steve Conly Harris, representative of the Howard Athenæum Co; Fred Hallen, of Hallen & Hart; Armory Knox, of the Texas Sifting-, and others. There is a bigger American contingent in London than ever this Summer.

The Inman Sisters, of San Francisco, are playing here and doing nicely, also P. C. Thertis, banjoist. Salaries are very low here at present. Tom O'Brien, formerly Kelly & O'Brien, is doing immensely here with his wife (O'Brien & Redding). They play three halls a night. Best wishes to all Californians.

Yours Truly,

BERNARD DYLLYN.

P. S.—"Never Take the Horseshoe From the Door."

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a different play will be given every week.

"A New Way to Pay Old Debts" will be given for Mr. Warner's benefit, Sunday night, at the Baldwin Theatre, the beneficiary as Sir Giles Overreach. A large number of professionals have volunteered, including J. J. Jack, J. J. Wallace, Miss Clyde Herron and Miss Belle Chippendale.

That black-eyed, black haired soubrette, Miss Alice Irving, made a merry success of her part in "Karl" this week. But don't the gallery boys go for the Gypsy, though.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush by-and-by, as it plays the coast under M. B. Leavitt's management.

Miss Melville and Mr. Mainhall are especially commendable for their support in "Kerry Gow."

The next week will be the last one of Joseph Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" and 'Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.

Manager M. B. Leavitt will this season control the Pacific Coast tours of fifteen strong attractions.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Theatricals are dull in Los Angeles. McCarthy added to the caloric weather with his fire piece at the Grand Opera House. The Los Angeles Theatre is closed, and W. C. Crosby is playing to light business at the People's Theatre with a stock company.

John J. Ruddy comes here shortly in advance of John H. Russell's new farce-comedy, "The City Directory," that comes to the Bush.

Manager Hayman, restored to health, is doing the seaside at Long Branch.

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" and "Old Lavender" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

The cast of "The Burglar," as produced at the New Bush Street Theatre by the Grismer-Davies Co, includes J. S. Grismer, Posie Davies, Harry Davenport, Edgar Weir, Hugo Toland, Geo. H. Trader, Isabel Archer, Louisa Aurlis and little Mabel Bowman. Active preparations are being made for the production of "The Tigress."

Rosina Vokes has gone to Europe a very sick woman, another victim of nervous prostration.

Margaret Mather opens in her best play, "Romeo and Juliet," at the Baldwin Theatre.

Our prolific dramatist is at work on a melodrama of startling capabilities, entitled "The Revolt at Hawaii," title and subject copyrighted, with the use of real Kanakas as principal dramatis personæ in the play.

Adelina Patti, in speaking of her career, is reported to have said: "I am not beautiful but I pass for pretty, that's one; I am tolerably graceful, that's two; I am a good dresser, that's three; I have a way with me that is piquant, that's four; I like my public that's five, for my public like me because I like them and never tire of pleasing them; I have a good voice, that's six; I know how to sing well—my way—that's seven; I always know my music, that gives comfort to the audience and may count as eight; I act fairly well with the roles I sing, that's nine. What more could one want in a singer?"

"Peck's Bad Boy" will open his budget of pranks at the Los Angeles Theatre on the 15th, and will do the Southern circuit afterwards under Wyatt's management.

Walter Matthews, the young tragedian in the Eastern fields, is the son of W. S. Matthews, the tobacco king of Louisville, Ky. He is said to have paid the author $5 000 for his new play, "Aramis, the Master Mind."

Jennie Lee, who made such a success in 'Little Jo," is revisiting Australia.

George C. Milne is doing fine business in the interior towns of Australia. Eight or ten years ago Milne was one of the sensational preachers of Chicago. He left the pulpit for the stage, and achieved only a very questionable position as a tragedian in this country. He had intelligence, education, emotion, voice and a good stage presence in his favor, but he was crude. His acting was uneven and his emotions too pronounced to win him a leading position on the stage here. From his late great success in Hamlet and other Shakespearean roles in Melbourne we may arrive at the conclusion that Mr. Milne has conquered himself, subdued the excessive mental excitements of nature, and developed into an unusually strong, magnetic and even actor. His four weeks of Hamlet in Melbourne and his runs in other plays could not have been accidental successes.

A current professional joke: It is no longer Rich Foote, but Rob Head since his engagement at the Alcazar.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening, the 17th. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill with Geo. Y. Stevens as Snorkey, and a well known resident physician, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, debuting as Judge Bowling. A large number of popular performers have volunteered for the occasion as will be seen by referring to programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

Miss Hattie Moore and Miss Fanny Bowman have been engaged to accompany Mr. Harrigan on his tour East.

Jay Rial is hesitating between taking a number of successful plays out on a tour of the Pacific Slope and accepting the management of the San Francisco Grand Opera House. In either case his success is to be hoped for. There are mighty few men like Jay Rial.

Georgie Parker has danced herself into "The City Directory."

Frank Daniels and company are booked in "Little Puck" for the entire season of thirty-seven weeks. Thirty-four of these are week stands. Tour extends from Maine to California.

Lewis Morrison will open his season at the Amphion Academy, Brooklyn. His tour has been booked for the entire season.

Margaret Mather's engagement with Manager Al Hayman extends over fifteen weeks.

Effie Shannon plays a little Yankee heart-breaker in 'Shenandoah." Viola Allen plays a little Rebel heart breaker in the same piece. "Shenandoah" is booked as one of the New California attractions.

Edward Harrigan will give his fiftieth performance at the Alcazar on Monday night, and the event will be marked by elegant souvenir satin programmes.

"Henry IV" will be the bill for the benefit tendered to that veteran of the stage, Charles R. Thorne, at the Baldwin on Sunday evening, August 25th, with John Jack in his star part of Falstaff. John W. Thompson will play Henry IV, and the cast will be a strong one.

Mr. Tommy Rosa has returned from the North in fine health and spirits. He reports that business is good and that his engagement was a successful one all through.

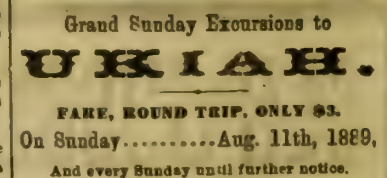
Raymon Moore has been engaged for the Primrose & West Minstrels as tenor singer.

John Cort's New Standard Theatre, Seattle, will be ready for opening in September.

Blondin, the hero of Niagara, has wagered $20 000 that he can walk on a cable from the top of the Eiffel Tower to the central dome of the Exposition Building in less than five minutes.

James Reilly, a former Emerson Minstrel, who lately returned here to play an engagement at the Orpheum, leaves for the East Monday. Mr. Reilly will open in his new piece, 'The Broom-maker," at Atlantic City, Sept. 5th, with thirty-two weeks booked ahead.

Raymon Moore has won triple encores for his vocal turn, as has Freddie Stockmeyer for her song and dance in "Over the Garden Wall" at the Orpheum this week.



The Theatre Comique has an excellent bill this week. The Cooke, John and Lou. have become great favorites; Matt Trayers creates a lot of fun in his specialties, which are always new, topical and amusing. The two farces are well put on, and all the parts are well played.

Lively times at the boxing nights, Tuesday and Friday, at the Cremorne.

Mr. Leon Mayer, who is mayor of Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co., at least, is in town paving the way—all mayors are in the paving way—for its coming at the California. Evans & Hoey follow Murphy on the 19th.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week will be the farewell one in this city of the jolly comedian and sweet singer, Charles A. Gardner, more popularly known as "Karl Gardner," from the long run he made East in his eight years comedy success of "Karl the Peddler." Mr. Gardner has played a fine two weeks' business in "Fatherland" and "Karl," his houses holding out well for the last nights.

His play of "Karl" gives him a fine opportunity in its sunshine and shade to depict the love of home, the kindly virtues, the healthy humor, and strength of character that the German nature is capable of. His songs are always welcome.

Next week we are to have Joseph B. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

The reserve seat take is large.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"The Lorgaires" has its last performance on Sunday night. We have Irish life and Irish characters as found in the fishing village of Kilcolgan, and also the "real gentlemen" as seen in the Manor House.

Mr. Harrigan, as the detective, assumes several disguises, the Frenchman being particularly effective. Mrs. Yeamans has another fine part, as has also our favorite Fanny Young. The school scene is very amusing, and takes greatly with the audience. All the company appear to usual advantage in the piece, and it has drawn well.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the first time here next week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the Macintyres. The play abounds in lively, laughable scenes, and good music.

New California Theatre.

This week Fred. Marsden's beautiful play "Kerry Gow," and one of the best of Mr. Murphy's pieces, is the attraction; it is touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and is meeting with its old time success, full houses.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture.

Next week will be the last of Mr. Murphy's engagement, "Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue" will be the plays for the week.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening, August 17th, for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, Fanny Young, Kate Dalgreigh, Dr. V. A. Obaigneau, Jennie Lamont, Lillie Lawrence, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others in the cast. Stevens will play Snorkey, and Dr. Obaigneau—a well known resident physician—will face the footlights for the first time on this occasion as Judge Bowling. The olio scenes will be enlivened by the Great Ellwood, John Blackford, The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 11th, grand picnic of the Carlton Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A.M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P.M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P.M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

$3 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State. Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A.M. and reach Ukiah at 11.45. Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P.M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30.

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Ment on the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No. 2 New Montgomery street, or at the the Tiburon ferry office.

The Grismer season opens at the Bush Street Theatre August 12th. Mr. Grismer presents "The Burglar," by George Thomas, an elaboration of the celebrated sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Burnett, authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The piece is now running at the Madison Square Theatre to crowded houses, and is the latest New York success. Mr. Grismer has the sole right of production of the piece on this coast. Read the New York press endorsements in an extra programme space on another page.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. open at the Orpheum August 12th. They will sing "Iolanthe" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings; "Virginia" Thursday and Friday evenings, and "Patience" Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matinee. Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

When "Said Pasha" was first produced at the Tivoli, musical people generally thought the musical score was poor; and at this late day Richard Stahl writes to the New York Dramatic News acknowledging it to be "trash," and says that he wrote it in a hurry for the San Francisco production. What did the San Francisco dog ever do to Maestro Stahl?

Charles Bowser has made a big hit in "Cheek." Dick Smythe, the cheeky

The Irish drama, with Murphy and Harrigan at the head, continues to draw big business. Murphy is actually turning people away at the California in the third week of his engagement, and Harrigan has drawn full houses for six weeks in his round of pieces at the Alcazar. Is it an epidemic?

Ezra Kendall is to reassume next season the character of Dr. Mulo Medicus in "We, Us & Co." [It is a year of calamities.]

Edward Harrigan has telegraphed East for some leading people to join him here and play Eastward en route to New York.

Manager John H. Russell has made Miss Georgie Parker an offer to join his "City Directory" company.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present a popular comedy attraction this week in Geo. S. Knight's musical comedy of "Over the Garden Wall"—called "the funniest play of them all." Bert & Sissons have purchased the coast rights to his most popular play and standard success, and have engaged one of the best of Eastern dialect comedians, Mr. Frank Howard, to play the leading comedy role. "Over the Garden Wall" has the advantage of a strong cast, new music, new costumes and scenery in this production, and as it is played at popular prices we look for it to repeat the success of Bert & Sissons' "Peck's Bad Boy" weeks at this house.

Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, who is included in the cast, has made a distinct hit.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week the attraction will be the sensational melodrama, in a prologue and three acts, by James Carden, entitled "Two Roads."

Mr. Chapelle assumes the role of a man made crazy by the wrongs inflicted on him by those nearest and dearest to him, but everything is at the last made right and peace comes to his disturbed mind.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and next week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Bella Union Theatre.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will make her first appearance this week in the new burlesque, written by herself, entitled "The Viceroy's Favorite." Mr. John McCullough is the other new claimant for a share of the popular favor.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Next week Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue and Lulu Powers as the new faces.

Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring remain.

Ned Nestell's sensational burlesque, "The Daughter of Satan," will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Wrong Man," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Landlord," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Cook, Bessie Armstrong Stella Merriam, Nellie Henry and Lou Cook.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Blanche Stetson, Maud Stetson, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY.....AUGUST 12, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

LETTER FROM BERNARD DYLLYN.

London, England, July 20, 1889.

DEAR FIGARO: I have not forgotten the old-time and reliable FIGARO which afforded me valuable reading theatrically in days gone by, when I was struggling around the different variety theatres in San Francisco in 1873-74 (I would be pleased to receive a copy at this very moment). I have been in London for the past four weeks. I shall remain here one week longer, then run over to Paris to take in the Exposition, Bill Cody's Wild West Show, etc., and return to America in August.

I commence my season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 9th, with Monroe & Rice's "My Aunt Bridget" Co., a musical comedy by Scott Marble, author of 'Over the Garden Wall." I have purchased three excellent songs here, which I think will be the greatest goes I have ever sung—and I have sung a few in my time. One is entitled "Before the Judge." I do five different dialect and character bits. The other songs are character and comic.

I have met several California boys since I have been here, among them Ted Marks, representing Herrmann, the magician, securing attractions for his Vaudeville Co.; Marcus Mayer, acting for Abbey, after big game, bagging Patti and other rare singing birds, and Mr. Frank Unger, who is here for pleasure. I also met Evans & Hoey, of the "Parlor Match" Co. They returned home last week and will make direct for the Pacific Coast, opening in San Francisco in August; Geo. W. Lederer, formerly with M. B. Leavitt; Smiley Walker, representing Annie Pixley; Jack Hamilton, of the Dramatic News; Spencer Cone, Kate Claxton's brother; A. M. Palmer and J. C. Jarrett; George Floyd, Kate Forsythe's manager; Tony Pastor, pastor of a New York theatre; Steve Cooly Harris, representative of the Howard Athenæum Co; Fred Hallen, of Hallen & Hart; Armory Knox, of the Texas Siftings, and others. There is a bigger American contingent in London than ever this Summer.

The Inman Sisters, of San Francisco, are playing here and doing nicely, also P. C. Thertis, banjoist. Salaries are very low here at present. Tom O'Brien, formerly Kelly & O'Brien, is doing immensely here with his wife (O'Brien & Redding). They play three halls a night. Best wishes to all Californians.

Yours Truly,

BERNARD DYLLYN.

P. S.—"Never Take the Horseshoe From the Door."

Effie Shannon plays a little Yankee heart-breaker in 'Shenandoah." Viola Allen plays a little Rebel heart breaker in the same piece. "Shenandoah" is booked as one of the New California attractions.

Edward Harrigan will give his fiftieth performance at the Alcazar this, Monday night, and the event will be marked by elegant souvenir satin programmes.

"Henry IV" will be the bill for the benefit tendered to that veteran of the stage, Charles R. Thorne, at the Baldwin on Sunday evening, August 25th, with John Jack in his star part of Falstaff. John W. Thompson will play Henry IV, and the cast will be a strong one.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a different play will be given every week.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush by-and-by, as it plays the coast under M. B. Leavitt's management.

This week will be the last one of Mr. Joseph Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" and 'Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mr. Neil Warner was the recipient of a very good benefit at the Baldwin last night. He sustained the trying part of Sir Giles Overreach in "A New Way to Pay Old Debts" very effectively, especially in his passion-torn death scene in the last act. Foiled in his schemes Sir Giles falls to the stage in a frenzy of temper, and rising with a withered arm, unable to draw his sword, he struggles against death itself with indomitable will until he falls paralyzed on the stage. His death scene was grand. John Jack was excellent as Justice Greedy and J. J. Wallace did good old-time work as Marall. Mrs. Neil Warner as Margaret, Miss Clyde Herron as Lady Allworth and the company generally acquitted themselves creditably. Mr. Warner and his wife leave on Wednesday to take residence in Montreal, where he has been appointed instructor of elocution in several colleges located in that city, and we have probably seen the last of one of the best living representatives of the strong and manly old school of actors.

If Mr. George Wallenrod and his hospitable wife had a house ten times as large it would have been too small to accommodate the host of friends who went to their house-warming at Alcazar Cottage Saturday evening. It was a notable event. The guests began to arrive at 8 P. M., and from that time until near midnight the host stood at the open door welcoming them with a hearty handshake and cordial request to enter. He was assisted in this pleasant duty by Mrs. Wallenrod and Mr. L. R. Stockwell. After a short stop at the cottage the guests were escorted to Mangel's Hall, where a bountiful feast was spread, with champagne and wine to lighten the heads, hearts and heels of the merry company. Toasts were drank to the host and hostess, Mark Thall, who was a most efficient floor manager, and to Miss Fanny Bowman, whose marriage with Mr. John Sparks is an event in the near future. Dancing was kept up until 5 o'clock in the morning, and all present were a happy lot of Bohemians. Nobody cared whether his associates' pants bagged at the knees, and each and everyone wished a long and prosperous life to the owners of Alcazar Cottage.

"Over the Garden Wall" did a big week's business at the Orpheum. It starts out on its interior season in about two weeks.

Theatricals are dull in Los Angeles. McCarthy added to the caloric weather with his fire piece at the Grand Opera House. The Los Angeles Theatre is closed, and W. C. Crosby is playing to light business at the People's Theatre with a stock company.

John J. Ruddy comes here shortly in advance of John H. Russell's new farce-comedy, "The City Directory," that comes to the Bush.

Manager Hayman, restored to health, is doing the seaside at Long Branch.

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" and "Old Lavender" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

The cast of "The Burglar," as produced at the New Bush Street Theatre by the Grismer-Davies Co. includes Jas. R. Grismer, Phœbe Davies, Harry Davenport, Edgar Weir, Hugo Toland, Geo. H Trader, Isabel Archer, Louise Aurlis and little Mabel Bowman. Active preparations are being made for the production of "The Tigress."

Rosina Vokes has gone to Europe a very sick woman, another victim of nervous prostration.

Margaret Mather opens in her best play, "Romeo and Juliet," at the Baldwin Theatre.

Our prolific dramatist is at work on a melodrama of startling capabilities, entitled "The Revolt at Hawaii," title and subject copyrighted, with the use of real Kanakas as principal dramatis personæ in the play.

Adelina Patti, in speaking of her career, is reported to have said: "I am not beautiful but I pass for pretty, that's one; I am tolerably graceful, that's two; I am a good dresser, that's three; I have a way with me that is piquant, that's four; I like my public, that's five, for my public like me because I like them and never tire of pleasing them; I have a good voice, that's six; I know how to sing well—my way—that's seven; I always know my music, that gives comfort to the audience and may count as eight; I act fairly well with the roles I sing, that's nine. What more could one want in a singer?"

Margaret Mather's engagement with Manager Al Hayman extends over fifteen weeks.

Walter Matthews, the young tragedian in the Eastern field, is the son of W. S. Matthews, the tobacco king of Louisville, Ky. He is said to have paid the author $5,000 for his new play, "Aramis, the Master Mind."

Jennie Lee, who made such a success in "Little Jo," is revisiting Australia.

George C Milne is doing fine business in the interior towns of Australia. Eight or ten years ago Milne was one of the sensational preachers of Chicago. He left the pulpit for the stage, and achieved only a very questionable position as a tragedian in this country. He had intelligence, education, emotion, voice and a good stage presence in his favor, but he was crude. His acting was uneven and his emotions too pronounced to win him a leading position on the stage here. From his late great success in Hamlet and other Shakespearean roles in Melbourne we may arrive at the conclusion that Mr. Milne has conquered himself, subdued the excessive mental excitements of nature, and developed into an unusually strong, magnetic and even actor. His four weeks

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Mr. Tommy Rosa has returned from the North in fine health and spirits. He reports that business is good and that his engagement was a successful one all through.

Raymon Moore has been engaged for the Primrose & West Minstrels as tenor singer.

John Cort's New Standard Theatre, Seattle, will be ready for opening in September.

Blondin, the hero of Niagara, has wagered $20 000 that he can walk on a cable from the top of the Eiffel Tower to the central dome of the Exposition Building in less than five minutes.

James Reilly, a former Emerson Minstrel, who lately returned here to play an engagement at the Orpheum, left for the East to-day. Mr. Reilly will open in his new piece, 'The Broom-maker," at Atlantic City, Sept. 5th, with thirty-two weeks booked ahead.

The Theatre Comique has an excellent bill this week. The Cooke, John and Lou, have become great favorites; Matt Trayers creates a lot of fun in his specialties, which are always new, topical and amusing. The two farces are well put on, and all the parts are well played.

Lively times at the boxing nights, Tuesday and Friday, at the Cremorne.

Georgie Parker has danced herself into "The City Directory."

Frank Daniels and company are booked in "Little Puck" for the entire season of thirty-seven weeks. Thirty-four of these are week stands. Tour extends from Maine to California.

Lewis Morrison will open his season at the Amphion Academy, Brooklyn. His tour has been booked for the entire season.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY.....AUGUST 12, 1889

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

This week we are to have Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar"—not a title that would win favor, but some scenes of the play as seen in the original sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," are as charming bits of comedy as there are on the stage. If the Madison Square Theatre was not dated ahead "The Burglar" would stay there through the Winter. As it is, its managers are bidding for another New York theatre. Mr. Grismer, in his visit East, bought the rights of the play for the Pacific Coast.

This popular comedy-drama is the clever dramatic work of Mr. Gus Thomas, and is founded on that author's famous sketch of "Editha's Burglar."

The reserve seat take is large.

See New York press endorsement in extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the first time here this week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the McIntyres. The play abounds in lively, laughable scenes, and good music.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar next week in "4-11-44."

New California Theatre.

The great success of "Kerry Gow" has demanded its continuance for the first four nights of this week. It is a touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and has filled the California to its doors.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy, where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture.

Last "Kerry Gow" matinee on Wednesday.

Fred Marsden's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" will be revived for Mr. Murphy's last performances, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee, which according to present indications promises to yield the largest four weeks' receipts he ever played to.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in their farcical comedy of "A Parlor Match."

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening next for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, Fanny Young, Kate Dalgreigh, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, Jennie Lamont, Lillie Lawrence, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others in the cast. Stevens will play Snorkey, and Dr. Chaigneau—a well known resident physician—will face the footlights for the first time on this occasion as Judge Bowling. The olio scenes will be enlivened by the Great Ellwood, John Blackford, Willie Drum and L. J. Picquett in specialties. The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company, playing under the management of H. C. Wyatt, the Los Angeles manager, commences a season at the Orpheum this week. The principal artists are Mrs. Padelford, late prima donna of the Conried Company, that was at the Grand Opera House some three months ago, Miss Emma Berg, Miss Anna Dacre, Miss Rita Mann, Messrs. W. F. Rochester, C. M. Cornell, F. E. Reynolds, W. F. Kavar and Byron Browne. There is also a grand chorus of thirty voices.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Iolanthe" is the bill for the first three nights of the week.

Stephens & Solomon's opera, "Virginia," will be the bill on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" will be given on Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matinee.

The prices will not be raised. General seats, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher. At these prices the Orpheum should be crowded to the doors.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue Lulu Powers, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring in new and pleasing selections.

The laughable farces of "The Green-Eyed Monster" and "Slippery Days" will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Mr. John Merritt and Steve Carroll are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing specialties.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Two Drummers," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Runaways," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Merritt, Steve Carroll, Bessie Armstrong, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

The Great Wellington will make her first appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Wellington, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketch, entitled "Mixtures."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 18th, grand picnic of the Emerald Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A. M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P. M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price.. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

Sunday Excursion to Ukiah.

83 Sunday excursion trains over the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway (Donahue broad gauge) will be run to Ukiah during the season. These give the participants a fine trip of 113 miles and return through the beautiful valleys of Sonoma, Healdsburg, Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah, and the 20-mile pass cut through the mountains by the Russian River, between Cloverdale and Ukiah. The route is one of the most picturesque in the State. Excursionists leave Tiburon ferry at 7 30 A.M. and reach Ukiah at 11.45 Four hours at Ukiah gives time to dine, see the town, go to the famed Vichy Springs, and visit the only Indian rancheria left in the State, if desired. All aboard at 4 o'clock P.M. and back again in San Francisco at 8 30.

These excursions will be under the experienced supervision of Colonel Mento the road's popular excursion manager. Tickets can be procured at the office, No. 2 New Montgomery street, or at the the Tiburon ferry office.

The Grismer season opens at the Bush Street Theatre this week. Mr. Grismer presents "The Burglar," by George Thomas, an elaboration of the celebrated sketch, "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Burnett, authoress of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." It is the latest New York success. Mr. Grismer has the sole right of production of the piece on this coast. Read the New York press endorsements in an extra programme space on another page.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. opens at the Orpheum this week. They will sing "Iolanthe" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings; "Virginia" Thursday and Friday evenings, and 'Patience" Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matinee. Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

When "Said Pasha" was first produced at the Tivoli, musical people generally thought the musical score was poor; and at this late day Richard Stahl writes to the New York Dramatic News acknowledging it to be 'trash," and says that he wrote it in a hurry for the San Francisco production. What did the San Francisco dog ever do to Maestro Stahl?

Charles Bowser has made a big hit in 'Cheek." Dick Smythe, the cheeky newspaper reporter, is a part that fits him down to the ground.

"Peck's Bad Boy" will open his budget of pranks at the Los Angeles Theatre on the 15th, and will do the Southern circuit afterwards under Wyatt's management.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening next. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill with Geo. Y. Stevens as Snorkey, and a well known resident physician, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, debuting as Judge Bowling A large number of popular performers have volunteered for the occasion as will be seen by referring to programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Rose Coghlan appears to much better advantage this week at the Baldwin in "Masks and Faces." She is the best of Peg Woffingtons.

"The Burglar" has only had three innings: Boston, New York and San Francisco. It will be seen in Chicago and other small towns later on.

Geo. Osbourne and wife (Helen Mason) are in New York, and will make that city their headquarters at present.

The Russell Comedy Company in the "City Directory" commence their twelve weeks' tour under the management of M. B. Leavitt at Omaha, August 15th.

Mr. Bush, the Denver millionaire, has returned from his extended tour in Europe, and work on his new Broadway Theatre, Denver, of which Manager M. B. Leavitt is lessee, will be pushed forward at once.

Eben Plympton at the close of his term with Julia Marlowe will appear in a new drama of the American Revolution, written by himself and Prof. A. Corbett. [If we know anything about Plympton he will not be anybody smaller than General Washington in the play.]

A report comes from London that Richard Mansfield and Beatrice Cameron became man and wife before their departure for this country.

Hyde & Behman will probably reopen Harrigan's Park Theatre, N. Y., as a combination house, under Wm. Dunlevy's management.

A late Paris letter states that Imre Kiralfy has engaged Garvena, a celebrated Russian tragedian, and Karati, the London ballet master, for America. The front rows may be able to fully appreciate Karati's work, but we fear Garvena will be left out in the cold.

Josie Lecounte, a soubrette, recently caused the arrest of William H. Goodwin, who is said to be indirectly connected with Hoyt & Thomas' comedy venturer, for obtaining from her by false representations personal jewels valued at $150 and then pawning them.

Genuine trees are now employed in garden scenes on the London stage, and when they want a bark in a robber scene they have a trained dog to do the barking.

Edward Harrigan gave his fiftieth performance at the Alcazar on Monday night, and the event was marked by elegant souvenir satin programmes.

"Henry IV" will be the bill for the benefit tendered to that veteran of the stage, Charles R. Thorne, at the Baldwin on Sunday evening, August 25th, with John Jack in his star part of Falstaff. John W. Thompson will play Henry IV, and the cast will be a strong one.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two cities mentioned a different play will be given every week.

Gustav Hinrich's American Opera Co. is the biggest kind of a success at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, and is testing the seating capacity of the immense house, though it is the mid-Summer season. The company is a very strong one. We shall have it at the Bush by-and-by, as it plays the coast under M. B. Leavitt's management.

This week will be the last one of Mr. Joseph Murphy at the California. 'Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue" are put up for the bill.

The following well known attractions will play a California and Western tour under the management of Mr. M. B. Leavitt this season: Aronson's Casino Opera Co., sixteen weeks; Jos. Haworth in "Paul Kauvar" fourteen weeks; John H. Russell and David Henderson's Criterion Comedy Company, ten weeks; Maggie Mitchell, twelve weeks; American Opera Co., fourteen weeks; Leavitt's spectacular production, "Spider and the Fly," fourteen weeks. This is a very strong bill of attractions. The fares alone it is estimated will cost Mr. Leavitt about $30,000, but the drawing qualities of the combinations are unquestionable, and the Manager Frank Goodwin, of the late "White Elephant" venture at the Bijou, N. Y., states that the animal will be repaired and sent on the road in good shape.

Belle Bilton, of the Bilton Sisters, well known London serio-comic singers, was lately married to Viscount Dunlo, eldest son of the Earl of Clancarty. The bride and bridegroom are respectively 21 years old and are now en route for Australia.

Duncan Harrison, who injured his leg while playing "The Paymaster," has been compelled to close his season, and it is reported that his leg must be amputated.

Niblo's Garden, N. Y., will reopen on the 17th with Bolossy Kiralfy's magnificent production of "Antiope," for which Mr. Parke, a London dramatist, has written the speaking parts. "Antiope" is a grand Roman ballet spectacle which will be presented there as an extravaganza by a picked company.

Manager Henry E. Abbey has purchased "Aunt Jack," the late Court Theatre, London, success. It is said to be a very laughable comedy, which derives its title from Joan Bryson's (Aunt Jack) suit for $25,000 damages for breach of promise. In her bill of particulars she claims $10,000 for blighted hopes, $7 500 for loss of faith in the male sex, $5 000 for loss of future prospects, so far as at present can be foreseen, and the remaining $7,500 for the worry, bother and anxiety in making up her case.

Harry Pfaff Girard, of New York, is likely to become a competitor for Otto Hegler's piano honors. Young Girard was born in St. Louis and is now in his twelfth year, and is a brilliant executant of Bach, Mendelssohn and Rubenstein's most difficult compositions.

Mr. Neil Warner was the recipient of a very good benefit at the Baldwin Sunday night. He sustained the trying part of Sir Giles Overreach in "A New Way to Pay Old Debts" very effectively, especially in his passion-torn death scene in the last act. Foiled in his schemes Sir Giles falls to the stage in a frenzy of temper, and rising with a withered arm, unable to draw his sword, he struggles against death itself with indomitable will until he falls paralyzed on the stage. His death scene was grand. John Jack was excellent as Justice Greedy and J. J. Wallace did good old-time work as Morall. Mrs. Neil Warner as Margaret, Miss Clyde Herron as Lady Allworth and the company generally acquitted themselves creditably. Mr. Warner and his wife leave on Wednesday to take residence in Montreal, where he has been appointed instructor of elocution in several colleges located in that city, and we have probably seen the last of one of the best living representatives of the strong and manly old school of actors.

If Mr. George Wallenrod and his hospitable wife had a house ten times as large it would have been too small to accommodate the host of friends who went to their house-warming at Alcazar Cottage Saturday evening. It was a notable event. The guests began to arrive at 8 P. M., and from that time until near midnight the host stood at the open door welcoming them with a hearty handshake and cordial request to enter. He was assisted in this pleasant duty by Mrs. Wallenrod and Mr. L. R. Stockwell. After a short stop at the cottage the guests were escorted to Mangel's Hall, where a bountiful feast was spread, with champagne and wine to lighten the heads, hearts and heels of the merry company. Toasts were drank to the host and hostess, Mark Thal', who was a most efficient floor manager, and to Miss Fanny Bowman, whose marriage with Mr. John Sparks is an event in the near future. Dancing was kept up until 5 o'clock in the morning, and all present were a happy lot of Bohemians. Nobody cared whether his associates' pants bagged at the knees, and each and everyone wished a long and prosperous life to the owners of Alcazar Cottage.

"Over the Garden Wall" did a big week's business at the Orpheum. It starts out on its interior season in about two weeks.

Theatricals are dull in Los Angeles. McCarthy added to the caloric weather with his fire piece at the Grand Opera House. The Los Angeles Theatre is closed, and W. C. Crosby is playing to light business at the People's Theatre with a stock company.

John J. Ruddy comes here shortly in advance of John H. Russell's new farce-comedy, "The City Directory," that comes to the Bush.

Manager Hayman, restored to health, is doing the seaside at Long Branch.

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" and "Old Lavender" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

The cast of "The Burglar," as produced at the New Bush Street Theatre by the Grismer-Davies Co. includes Jas. R. Grismer, Phoebe Davies, Harry Davenport, Edgar Weir, Hugo Toland, Geo. H Trader, Isabel Archer, Louisa Aurlis and little Mabel Bowman.

Rosina Vokes has gone to Europe a very sick woman, another victim of nervous prostration.

Margaret Mather opens in her best play, "Romeo and Juliet," at the Baldwin Theatre.

Our prolific dramatist is at work on a melodrama of startling capabilities, entitled "The Revolt at Hawaii," title and subject copyrighted, with the use of real Kanakas as principal dramatis personæ in the play.

Margaret Mather's engagement with Manager Al Hayman extends over fifteen weeks.

Jennie Lee, who made such a success in "Little Jo," is revisiting Australia.

Frank Daniels and company are booked [illegible] for the entire season of

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The success of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar." It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world, going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaniety in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantel as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and sets her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of years, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre was crowded. The success of the play won generous applause and recalls, and the complimentary floral tributes even placed the ladies of the private boxes as donners in their corsage boquets.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the last time here this week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the McIntyres.

The first act of the piece is full of fun. Mr. Harrigan does another fine bit of Irish character as the eccentric astronomer and making love to the girls who answer his matrimonial advertisements. Mrs. Yeamans is always clever no matter how small the part. All the parts are acceptably played, and the music is the best Braham has written.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's stay engagement. He will close his eight weeks' season at the Alcazar next week. "Old Lavender will be given three nights and "4-11 [illegible] for the rest of the week.

New California Theatre.

The great success of "Kerry Gow" has demanded its continuance for the first four nights of this week. It is a touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and has filled the California to its doors.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture, and her song and dance run in accord with the clink of the hammer on the anvil as the shoe is forged, adds much to the beauty and effectiveness of the closing scenes.

Last "Kerry Gow" matinee on Wednesday.

Fred Marsden's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" will be revived for Mr. Murphy's last performances, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee, which according to present indications promises to yield the largest four weeks' receipts he ever played to.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in their farcical comedy of "A Parlor Match."

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening next for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, Fanny Young, Kate Daigreigh, Dr. V. A. Chaignean, Jennie Lamont, Lillie Lawrence, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others in the cast. Stevens will play Snorkey, and Dr. Chaignean—a well known resident physician—will face the footlights for the first time on this occasion as Judge Bowling. The olio scenes will be enlivened by the Great Ellwood, John Blackford, Willie Drum and L. J. Picquett in specialties. The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company, playing under the management of H. C. Wyatt, the Los Angeles manager, commences a season at the Orpheum this week. The principal artists are Mrs. Padelford, late prima donna of the Conried Company, that was at the Grand Opera House some three months ago, Miss Emma Berg, Miss Anna Dacre, Miss Rita Mann, Messrs. W. F. Rochester, C. M. Cornell, F. E. Reynolds W. F. Kavar and Byron Browne. There is also a grand chorus of thirty voices.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Iolanthe" is quite successful. Mrs. Padelford sings very well, and some other clever people are included in the cast.

Stephens & Solomon's opera, "Virginia," will be the bill on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" will be given on Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matine.

The prices will not be raised. General seats, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher. At these prices the Orpheum should be crowded to the doors.

Next week it is intimeted that a fine specialty company will open at the Orpheum.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Mr. Chapelle does some admirable work as Nevada, the wanderer, and shows painstaking and conscientious work in all that he attempts. Conchita is a favorite at this house of the biggest kind and in scene second, where she as Moselle, the pet of the mine, Julie and Win-Eye do their specialties, they bring down the house. Master James Carden reads his lines very well and gives his part very acceptably.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor Jaimes, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue Lulu Powers, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Bertha Waring in new and pleasing selections.

The laughable farces of "The Green-Eyed Monster" and "Slippery Days" will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Mr. John Merritt and Steve Carroll are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing specialties.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Two Drummers," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Runaways," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Merritt, Steve Carroll, Bessie Armstrong, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

The Great Wellington will make her first appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Wellington, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketch, entitled "Mixtures."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 18th, grand picnic of the Emerald Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquinez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be hundred for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A. M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P. M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Bulletin says of "The Burglar" at the Bush: "It furnished an evening of rare entertainment, and is probably destined to have as great a run here as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.' It abounds in strong situations, is fertile of dramatic effect, pathos, humor and all the things which go to make up a strong and successful drama. Like 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' the interest centers mainly upon the situations, the spectators losing the thread of the story in the intense interest of the action."

Jos. J Levy, for many years business manager for Lawrence Barrett, and laterly for the Booth-Barrett Co., who has been Summering with his parents in San Francisco since the close of the Booth-Barrett season, leaves for New York on the 21st inst. to meet Mr. Lawrence Barrett on his arrival from Germany. Mr. Levy will act as business manager for the Booth-Modjeska Co. next season.

This week is the last one of Mr. Joe. Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" has its last performance Thursday night. "Shaun Rhue" will be revived for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee.

The electric light in "The Burglar" is Harry Davenport's light comedy flashes, that lighten up the whole play.

"La Tempte," Thomas' new ballet, has been given at the Paris Opera at last. The plot is uninteresting, and the music lacks novelty and inspiration; the mise-en-scene is magnificent, and the stage machinery, including the much-talked-of ship, worked exceedingly well. The execution was good. The press is benevolent, but not as enthusiastic as was expected.

Emma Abbott is proud and happy. She has thirty new dresses from Worth and Felix, a mantle that is the mate to the one ordered for the Queen of Portugal, only better, and a decision to appear in four new operas. Emma is going to do the opera tra-a-la-la in great style.

Rose Cogblan appears to much better advantage this week at the Baldwin in "Masks and Faces." She is the best of Peg Woffingtons.

"The Burglar" has only had three innings: Boston, New York and San Francisco. It will be seen in Chicago and other small towns later on.

John J. Ruddy comes here shortly in advance of John H. Russell's new farce-comedy, "The City Directory," that comes to the Bush.

The Russell Comedy Company in the "City Directory" commence their twelve weeks' tour under the management of M. B. Leavitt at Omaha, August 15th.

Mr. Bush, the Denver millionaire, has returned from his extended tour in Europe, and work on his new Broadway Theatre, Denver, of which Manager M. B. Leavitt is lessee, will be pushed forward at once.

Eben Plympton at the close of his term with Julia Marlowe will appear in a new drama of the American Revolution, written by himself and Prof. A. Corbett. [If we know anything about Plympton he will not be anybody smaller than General Washington in the play.]

Hyde & Behman will probably reopen Harrigan's Park Theatre, N. Y., as a combination house, under Wm. Dunlevy's management.

A late Paris letter states that Imre Kiralfy has engaged Garvena, a celebrated Russian tragedian, and Karati, the London ballet master, for America. The front rows may be able to fully appreciate Karati's work, but we fear Garvena will be left out in the cold.

"Henry IV" will be the bill for the benefit tendered to that veteran of the stage, Charles R Thorne, at the Baldwin on Sunday evening, August 25 h, with Joan Jack in his star part of Falstaff. John W. Thompson will play Henry IV, and the cast will be a strong one.

Mr. Harrigan at the close of his successful engagement at the Alcazar will play the principal cities on his way East. He will take the journey very leisurely, playing three weeks at St. Louis and six at Chicago. "Old Lavender" and "Cordelia's Aspirations" will be given at the one and two night stands. At the two [illegible] will be [illegible] play will be

Charles R. Thorne, who has been a resident of San Francisco for a number of years, will have a benefit tendered him at the Baldwin on Sunday night. The bill can be found in announcement elsewhere in our columns. It will be Mr. Thorne's 80th birthday on Sunday. He is one of the oldest American actors living, and the oldest American manager. There are not many of our readers that may remember Mr. Thorne's first appearance, but if any should we will refresh their memories of the occasion by copying a record of it from the Annals of the New York Stage; in which it is duly set down that, "Chas. Robt. Thorne, son of a respectable citizen of New York, and since widely known as an actor and manager, made his stage debut [at the old Park] on the 23 i (April, 1829) as Octavian, being simply announced as a young gentleman!"—but that classification was made over sixty years ago.

There are a good many bright lines in Mr. Grismer's latest stage capture, and while there is not much "fine" writing, "The Burglar" language is clear, concise and forcible.

If Rose Coghlan could not make "Jocelyn" go, how Langtry would have appeared in it.

Isabel Morris will take "Matthew Culver" Wheatcroft's (The Wife) play, "Gwynne's Oath," on a tour after her Alcazar engagement. Mr. Wheatcroft has put a great deal of time and patience into this pet play of his, and it is to be hoped that Miss Morris' venture will be successful. 'Gwynne's Oath" could not be in more capable and intelligent keeping.

Sidney Drew (John's brother) was the Edward Bainbridge of "The Burglar" New York cast. Harry Davenport takes the young lawyer here. Emma Sheridan was Alice. Phœbe Davies is our Alice. John T. Sullivan was the editor. Edgar Weir plays this role at the Bush. Minnie Dupree was Fannie. Isabel Archer is our Alice's sister.

Murphy's plays have been mounted at the California with fine new scenery. The Green Island never looked so handsome on any San Francisco stage before.

Karl Gardner takes in all the more important interior towns.

A New York photographer says that he still sells thousands of copies of Adelaide Neilson's pictures, and she never asked a cent for them. He paid Sara Bernhardt $1500 for a sitting, however, gave Patti $1 000 and Langtry $1500. He does not say anything about the Widow Bedott pictures.

Lawrence Barrett's glandular swelling on his neck has been greatly reduced by the German waters. He remains in Germany until September 1st.

The New York Bowery will lose a low-price "combination" and vaudeville theatre next season, for the National is soon to become the Roumania Opera House again. A Hebrew stock company will occupy its boards as before.

Manager Frank Goodwin, of the late "White Elephant" venture at the Bijou, N. Y., states that the animal will be repaired and sent on the road in good shape.

Belle Bilton, of the Bilton Sisters, well known London serio-comic singers, was lately married to Viscount Dunlo, eldest son of the Earl of Clancarty. The bride and bridegroom are respectively 21 years old and are now en route for Australia.

Duncan Harrison, who injured his leg while playing "The Paymaster," has been compelled to close his season, and it is reported that his leg must be amputated.

Niblo's Garden, N. Y, will reopen on the 17th with Bolossy Kiralfy's magnificent production of "Antiope," for which Mr. Parke, a London dramatist, has written the speaking parts. "Antiope" is a grand Roman ballet spectacle which will be presented there as an extravaganza by a picked company.

Manager Henry E. Abbey has purchased "Aunt Jack," the late Court Theatre, London, success. It is said to be a very laughable comedy, which derives its title from Joan Bryson's (Aunt Jack) suit for $25,000 damages for breach of promise. In her bill of particulars she claims $10,000 for blighted hopes, $7 500 for loss of faith in the male sex, $5 000 for loss of future prospects, so far as at present can be foreseen, and the remaining $7,500 for the worry, bother and anxiety in making up her case.

Geo. Osbourne and wife (Helen Mason) are in New York, and will make that city their headquarters at present.

Edward Harrigan produces "4-11-44" and "Old Lavender" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

The cast of "The Burglar," the great success at the Bush Street Theatre by the Grismer-Davies Co. includes Jas. R. Grismer, Phœbe Davies, Harry Davenport, Edgar Weir, Hugo Toland, Geo. H Trader, Isabel Archer, Louisa Aurlis and little Mabel Bowman.

Rosina Vokes has gone to Europe a very sick woman, another victim of nervous prostration.

Margaret Mather opens in her best play, "Romeo and Juliet," at the Baldwin Theatre.

Margaret Mather's engagement with Manager Al Hayman extends over fifteen weeks.

Frank Daniels and company are booked in "Little Puck" for the entire season of thirty-seven weeks. Thirty-four of these are week stands. Tour extends from Maine to California.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening next. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill with Geo. Y. Stevens as Snorkey, and a well known resident physician, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, debuting as Judge Bowling A large number of popular performers have volunteered for

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The success of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar." It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingeniousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre was crowded. The success of the play won generous applause and recalls, and the complimentary floral tributes even placed the ladies of the private boxes as donors of their corsage boquets.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the first time here this week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the McIntyres.

The first act of the piece is full of fun. Mr. Harrigan does another fine bit of Irish character as the curbstone astronomer and making love to the girls who answer his matrimonial advertisements. Mrs. Yeamans is always clever, no matter how small the part. All the parts are acceptably played, and the music is the best Braham has written.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-

New California Theatre.

The great success of "Kerry Gow" has demanded its continuance for the first four nights of this week. It is a touching story of Life and Love, an every-day tale in every land; there are some very exciting scenes in the piece, the third and fourth acts being notably strong. The piece is finely mounted and finely played all through, and has filled the California to its doors.

Mr. Murphy has a great scene in the smithy where he shoes the favorite racehorse and brings to grief the villain. Miss Idalene Cotton as Jack, the jockey, makes a jaunty picture, and her song and dance run in accord with the clink of the hammer on the anvil as the shoe is forged, adds much to the beauty and effectiveness of the closing scenes.

Fred Marsden's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" will be revived for Mr. Murphy's last performances, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee, which according to present indications promises to yield the largest four weeks' receipts he ever played to.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in their farcical comedy of "A Parlor Match."

Baldwin Theatre—Chas. R. Thorne's Benefit.

As hale and hearty Charles R. Thorne, one of the oldest living American actors, and the oldest American manager, rounds his eightieth birthday on Sunday next, he will be the recipient of a testimonial benefit at the Baldwin Theatre, tendered jointly by the members of the profession and his many friends. Shakespeare's good old play of "Henry IV" will be produced for the occasion, with John Jack—the last and one of the best of Falstaffs—as that famed rotund knight, John W. Thompson as Henry IV, a part he can do justice to; Annie Firmin as Prince Hal, and a cast generally that will be an effective one.

Box office open on Friday.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening next for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dobring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, Fanny Young, Kate Dalgreigh, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, Jennie Lamont, Lillie Lawrence, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others in the cast. Stevens will play Snorkey, and Dr. Chaigneau—a well known resident physician—will face the footlights for the first time on this occasion as Judge Bowling. The olio scenes will be enlivened by the Great Ellwood, John Blackford, Willie Drum and L. J. Picquett in specialties. The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company, playing under the management of H. C. Wyatt, the Los Angeles manager, appear at their best at the Orpheum this week. The principal artists are Mrs. Padelford, late prima donna of the Conried Company, that was at the Grand Opera House some three months ago, Miss Emma Berg, Miss Anna Dacre, Miss Rita Mann, Messrs. W. F. Rochester, C. M. Cornell, F. E. Reynolds W. F. Kavar and Byron Browne. There is also a grand chorus of thirty voices.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Iolanthe" was rendered with good effect on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Mrs. Padelford, Miss Berg and Miss Dacre have fine voices, and the male support and choruses are good.

Stephens & Solomon's opera, "Virginia," will be the bill this Thursday and Friday evenings.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" will be given on Saturday and Sunday evenings and Sunday matine.

The prices will not be raised. General seats, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher. At these prices the Orpheum should be crowded to the doors.

Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Mr. Chapelle does some admirable acting as Nevada, the wanderer, and shows painstaking and conscientious work in all that he attempts. Conchita is a favorite at this house of the biggest kind and in scene second, where she as Moselle, the pet of the mine, Jube and Win-Eye do their specialties, they bring down the house. Master James Carden reads his lines very well and gives his part very acceptably.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor James, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Philadelphia theatres will open their Fall and Winter seasons on the following dates and with the following attractions: The National with "The Stowaways," 24th; the Arch, "The Burglar," 31st; Walnut, Sept. 2nd, "Hands Across the Sea;" Opera House, Sept. 2nd, "The Exiles;" Chestnut, August 26th, "The Beautiful Slave" The two new houses, Broad and Park, Sept. 16th. Marie Wainwright is the Broad's, and Annie Pixley the Park's opening attraction. Both the theatres are handsome additions to the city. The Broad has been entirely reconstructed, only the old walls being used. The interior decorations will be very handsome. It has strong bookings. The Park has some excellent attractions, and is situated in a new district.

During Vernona Jarbeau's San Francisco date she will adopt Rosina Vokes' style of performance, giving three short pieces.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. at the Orpheum this week only, in Gilbert & Sullivan's 'Patience." Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

A London dispatch states that Frau Schultz, the noted actress of the Furst Theatre, Vienna, suicided on the 14th by shooting herself on the stage of that theatre with a revolver immediately after the fall of the curtain. Cause, unrequited affection.

Minnie Conway (Mrs. Osmond Tearle), who added an infant son to the domestic circle on July 4th, wants to give him an American name. FIGARO suggests Independence Day Tearle.

The Bulletin says of "The Burglar" at the Bush: "It furnished an evening of rare entertainment, and is probably destined to have as great a run here as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.' It abounds in strong situations, is fertile of dramatic effect, pathos, humor and all the things which go to make up a strong and successful drama. Like 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' the interest centers mainly upon the situations, the spectators losing the thread of the story in the intense interest of the action."

Jos. J. Levy, for many years business manager for Lawrence Barrett, and laterly for the Booth-Barrett Co., who has been Summering with his parents in San Francisco since the close of the Booth-Barrett season, leaves for New York on the 21st inst. to meet Mr. Lawrence Barrett on his arrival from Germany. Mr. Levy will act as business manager for the Booth-Modjeska Co. next season.

This week is the last one of Mr. Jos. Murphy at the California. "Kerry Gow" has its last performance this evening. "Shaun Rue" will be revived for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee.

Murphy's plays have been mounted at the California with fine new scenery. The Green Isles never looked so handsome on any San Francisco stage before.

"La Tempte," Thomas' new ballet, has been given at the Paris Opera at last. The plot is uninteresting, and the music lacks novelty and inspiration; the mise-en-scene is magnificent, and the stage machinery, including the much-talked-of ship, worked exceedingly well. The execution was good. The press is benevolent, but not as enthusiastic as was expected.

Emma Abbott is proud and happy. She has thirty new dresses from Worth and Felix, a mantle that is the mate to the one ordered for the Queen of Portugal, only better, and a decision to appear in four new operas. Emma is going to do the opera tra-a-la-la in great style.

Rose Coghlan appears to much better advantage this week at the Baldwin in "Masks and Faces." She is the best of Peg Woffingtons.

"The Burglar" has only had three innings: Boston, New York and San Francisco. It will be seen in Chicago and other small towns later on.

The Russell Comedy Company in the "City Directory" commence their twelve weeks' tour under the management of M. B. Leavitt at Omaha, to-night.

Mr. Bush, the Denver millionaire, has returned from his extended tour in Europe, and work on his new Broadway October 14th will be an important theatrical evening in New York, as on that date Booth and Modjeska will open at the Broadway in "Hamlet," and the Jefferson-Florence combination will be seen at the Star.

The Donazetti's, seven in number, who are startling and novel acrobats, have been engaged for 'Kajanka."

A. M. Palmer writes from London that there is at present a singular dearth of strong plays. He will return on the new steamer Teutonic early in September.

Robert Mantell presents "Monbars" in Salt Lake City Aug. 16th and 17th, reaching Denver for the week of Aug. 26th and Kansas City Sept. 9th for a week.

The following are the attractions this week in New York: "The Oolah" at the Broadway Theatre; "The Brigands" at the Casino; "Clover" at Palmer's Theatre; "The Lion and the Lamb" at the Bijou Theatre; "Bootle's Baby" at the Madison Square and "Our Boarding House" at Tony Pastor's Theatre.

Antonio Bottesini, the Paganini of the contra bass, died lately in Parma, Italy, aged 66 He was not only the greatest contra bass soloist of the century, but was also an opera composer of no mean order.

Brander Matthews, the successful dramatist, married one of Lydia Thompson's dashing blondes, which was the beginning of his interest in the drama. He is a great lover of the French drama, placing Moliere above Shakespeare in knowledge of the actor's art.

Rhea's next tour will open Sept. 2nd at Buffalo, when she will test her new historical play, "Josephine."

"Hands Across the Sea" will be one of the important melodramatic productions of the present season. The play is in five acts, divided into twelve scenes, and in each scene there is an episode of interest. Though the pathetic elements predominate, light comedy is prominent enough to lighten up the gloom and sensation will stir the blood to action. Rehearsals began in New York this week.

The redecoration of the New York Fourteenth Street Theatre is nearly completed and the house reopens Aug. 19th with an unusually elaborate production of Paul Merritt and George Conquest's melodrama, entitled 'Mankind." One of the sensational scenes will show a huge steamboat occupying the entire stage. During a dense fog the steamboat disappears and the heroine is seen struggling in the water. The hero sails in on a full rigged fishing smack with all sails set, manned by a large crew, rescues his loved heroine, takes his little smack and sails away to sea.

Charles R. Thorne, who has been a resident of San Francisco for a number of years, will have a benefit tendered him at the Baldwin on Sunday night. The bill can be found in announcement elsewhere in our columns. It will be Mr. Thorne's 80th birthday on Sunday. He is one of the oldest American actors living, and the oldest American manager. There are not many of our readers that may remember Mr. Thorne's first appearance, but if any should we will refresh their memories of the occasion by copying a record of it from the Annals of the New York Stage; in which it is duly set down that, "Chas. Robt. Thorne, son of a respectable citizen of New York, and since widely known as an actor and manager, made his stage debut [at the old Park] on the 23d (April, 1829) as Octavian, being simply announced as a young gentleman!"—but that classification was made over sixty years ago.

There are a good many bright lines in Mr. Grismer's latest stage capture, and while there is not much "fine" writing, "The Burglar" language is clear, concise and forcible.

If Rose Coghlan could not make "Jocelyn" go, how would Langtry have appeared in it.

Sidney Drew (John's brother) was the Edward Balsbridge of "The Burglar" New York cast. Harry Davenport takes the young lawyer here. Emma Sheridan was Alice. Pauline Davies is our Alice. John T. Sullivan was the editor. Edgar Weir plays this role at the Bush. Minnie Dupree was Fannie. Isabel Archer is our Alice's sister.

The electric light in "The Burglar" is Harry Davenport's light comedy flashes, that lighten up the whole play.

A New York photographer says that he still sells thousands of copies of Adelaide Neilson's pictures, and she never asked a cent for them. He paid Sara Bernhardt $1500 for a sitting, however, gave Patti $1 000 and Langtry $1500. He does not say anything about the Widow Bedott pictures.

Lawrence Barrett's glandular swelling on his neck has been greatly reduced by the German waters. He remains in Germany until September 1st.

The New York Bowery will lose a low-price "combination" and vaudeville theatre next season, for the National is soon to become the Roumania Opera House again. A Hebrew stock company will occupy its boards as before.

Edward Harrigan produces "Old Lavender" and '4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

Frank Daniels and company are booked in "Little Puck" for the entire season of thirty-seven weeks. Thirty-four of these are week stands. Tour extends from Maine to California.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening next. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill with Geo. Y. Stevens as Snorkey, and a well known resident physician, Dr. V. A. Chaigneau, debuting as Judge Bowling A large number of popular performers have volunteered for

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar." It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglers and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give "The Burglar" a good name.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the first time here this week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the McIntyres.

The first act of the piece is full of fun. Mr. Harrigan does another fine bit of Irish character as the curbstone astronomer and making love to the girls who answer his matrimonial advertisements. Mrs. Yeamans is always clever, no matter how small the part. All the parts are acceptably played, and the music is the best Braham has written.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's [illegible]

New California Theatre.

This is the last night of "Kerry Gow." It has drawn good houses for ten days.

Fred Marsden's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" closes Mr. Murphy's fourth week at the California on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee. According to present indications this engagement promises to yield the largest four weeks' receipts he ever played to.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening next for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, E. J. Holden, F. Sumerfield, Kate Daigleish, Rose Thorne, Jennie Lamont, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others. (See cast in programme announcement on another page.)

The olio scenes will be enlivened by James E. Black, the legless dancer; Wm. DeOme and his performing dog Josh, and Gibbons & Ford in specialties. Miss Mabel Prahl will also contribute her graceful Sailors' Hornpipe.

The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

FIGARO will be the house programme.

Baldwin Theatre—Chas. R. Thorne's Benefit.

As hale and hearty Charles R. Thorne, one of the oldest living American actors, and the oldest American manager, rounds his eightieth birthday on Sunday next, he will be the recipient of a testimonial benefit at the Baldwin Theatre, tendered jointly by the members of the profession and his many friends. Shakespeare's good old play of "Henry IV" will be produced for the occasion, with John Jack—the last and one of the best of Falstaffs—as that famed rotund knight, John W. Thompson as Henry IV, a part he can do justice to; Annie Firmin as Prince Hal, and a cast generally that will be an effective one.

Box office open on Friday.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company, playing under the management of H. C. Wyatt, the Los Angeles manager, appear at their best at the Orpheum this week. The principal artists are Mrs. Padelford, late prima donna of the Conried Company, that was at the Grand Opera House some three months ago, Miss Emma Berg, Miss Anna Dacre, Miss Rita Mann, Messrs. W. F. Rochester, C. M. Cornell, F. E. Reynolds W. F. Kavar and Byron Browne. There is also a grand chorus of thirty voices.

Mrs. Padelford, Miss Berg and Miss Dacre have fine voices, and the male support and choruses are good.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" will be given this evening and until further notice.

The prices will not be raised. General seats, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher. At these prices the Orpheum should be crowded to the doors.

Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Mr. Chapelle does some admirable acting as Nevada, the wanderer, and shows painstaking and conscientious work in all that he attempts. Conchita is a favorite at this house of the biggest kind and in scene second, where she as Moselle, the pet of the mine, Jube and Win-Eye do their specialties, they bring down the house. Master James Carden reads his lines very well and gives his part very acceptably.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Next week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom."

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Joe Natus in new and pleasing selections.

The laughable farces of "The Green-Eyed Monster" and "Slippery Days" will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Mr. John Merritt and Steve Carroll are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing specialties.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Two Drummers," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Runaways," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Merritt, Steve Carroll, Bessie Armstrong, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

The Great Wellington will make her first appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Wellington, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketch, entitled "Mixtures."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 18th, grand picnic of the Emerald Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquinez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town [illegible] rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10 15 A.M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P.M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price.. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Sheridan Dramatic Club produce "Held by the Enemy" at Saratoga Hall on Sunday evening.

E. J. Henley, recently here in the Booth-Barrett Company, is to be the heavy villain in "Chointa," Clay Greene's new play.

A Seattle paper thus speaks irreverently of the best Juliet on the stage: "Margaret Mather talks love nonsense from a second-story balcony and shows us her best dress at the theatre to-night."

Our two California girls, Ada and Rillie Deaves, celebrate Admission Day (September 9th) by producing their new play, "Chaos Flat," in Waterbury, Conn.

Manager Bush-Street Leavitt is getting up the pantomimic spectacle of "The Spider and the Fly" in gorgeous style. It is expected to make one of the season's hits.

James Coughlin, late stage manager of the Palace Varieties in this city, occupies a similar position at the Gem Theatre, Missoula, Montana.

The story of "Shenandoah," Bronson Howard's new play, begins at the very opening of the war with the firing of the first shot at Fort Sumter, and deals not only with panoply of battle, but presents the tenderest phase of human sentiment and tells a sweet love story. Mr. Howard is now putting the finishing touches on the play, which opens at the Star Theatre, N. Y., September 9th.

The Philadelphia theatres will open their Fall and Winter seasons on the following dates and with the following attractions: The National with "The Stowaways," 24th; the Arch, "The Burglar," 31st; Walnut, Sept. 2nd, "Hands Across the Sea;" Opera House, Sept. 2nd, "The Exiles;" Chestnut, August 26th, "The Beautiful Slave." The two new houses, Broad and Park, Sept. 16th. Marie Wainwright is the Broad's, and Annie Pixley the Park's opening attraction. Both the theatres are handsome additions to the city. The Broad has been entirely reconstructed, only the old walls being used. The interior decorations will be very handsome. It has strong bookings. The Park has some excellent attractions, and is situated in a new district.

During Vernona Jarbeau's San Francisco date she will adopt Rosina Vokes' style of performance, giving three short pieces.

The Wyatt English Opera Co. at the Orpheum this week only, in Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience." Mrs. Padleford, Emma Berg, Anna Dacre, W. F. Rochester, F. E. Reynolds and C. M. Cornell are included in the cast.

A London dispatch states that Frau Schultz, the noted actress of the Furst Theatre, Vienna, suicided on the 14th by shooting herself on the stage of that theatre with a revolver immediately after the fall of the curtain. Cause, unrequited affection.

Minnie Conway (Mrs. Osmond Tearle), who added an infant son to the domestic circle on July 4th, wants to give him an American name. FIGARO suggests Independence Day Tearle.

The Bulletin says of "The Burglar" at the Bush: "It furnished an evening of rare entertainment, and is probably destined to have as great a run here as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.' It abounds in strong situations, is fertile of dramatic effect, pathos, humor and all the things which go to make up a strong and successful drama. Like 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' the interest centers mainly upon the situations, the spectators losing the thread of the story in the intense interest of the action."

This week is the last one of Mr. Joe. Murphy at the California. "Shaun Rhue" will be revived for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee.

Murphy's plays have been mounted at the California with fine new scenery. The Green Island never looked so handsome on any San Francisco stage before.

"The Burglar" has only had three innings: Boston, New York and San Francisco. It will be seen in Chicago and other small towns later on.

Mr. Bush, the Denver millionaire, has returned from his extended tour in Europe, and work on his new Broadway [illegible] of which Manager M[illegible]

"The Burglar" has only ten characters, but they are all characters with individuality to them—no dummies. The company is excellently selected to fit the parts.

Idalene Cotton has taken seven steps up the dramatic ladder in her jockey in "Kerry Gow," and her Tim, the poor peasant boy of "Shaun Rhue." Royal Ben is naturally proud of his clever daughter. And it his friend Joe of years agon that brought her out, too. How we run across each other's pathways in this little world in the voyage of life.

Our young Californians fill in the dramatic ranks as others graduate in promotion. Miss Mabel Keith is the illustration, in the manner in which she acquits herself as Belle Parker in Harrigan's piece this week at the Alcazar.

Dates of Wyatt's English Opera Co.; Oakland, 19th and 20th; Santa Rosa, fair week, balance of the week; sail for Victoria, 26th, and take in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Northwest generally afterwards.

"How was the audience at your rendition of 'Hamlet' last night?' was asked of a barnstormer. "Very, very poor." "What seems to be the trouble?" "I don't know; but I suppose I shall have to rewrite the play before the people up here will like it."

Bronson Howard's "One of Our Girls" had its first regular performance in London at the Strand Theatre on August 15th. The theatre is under the management of Willie Edouin, whose wife, Alice Atherton, played the part written for Miss Dauvray.

T. Wilmot Eckert, musical director of the Wyatt Opera Co., was married yesterday to Miss Emma Schultzberg, a member of the same company.

James Albery, the English dramatic author, is dead.

October 14th will be an important theatrical evening in New York, as on that date Booth and Modjeska will open at the Broadway in "Hamlet," and the Jefferson-Florence combination will be seen at the Star.

The Donszetti's, seven in number, who are startling and novel acrobats, have been engaged for "Kajanka."

Robert Mantell presents "Monbars" in Salt Lake City Aug. 16th and 17th, reaching Denver for the week of Aug. 26th and Kansas City Sept. 9th for a week.

The following are the attractions this week in New York: "The Oolah" at the Broadway Theatre; "The Brigands" at the Casino; "Clover" at Palmer's Theatre; "The Lion and the Lamb" at the Bijou Theatre; "Bootle's Baby" at the Madison Square and "Our Boarding House" at Tony Pastor's Theatre.

Brander Matthews, the successful dramatist, married one of Lydia Thompson's dashing blondes, which was the beginning of his interest in the drama. He is a great lover of the French drama, placing Moliere above Shakespeare in knowledge of the actor's art.

Rhea's next tour will open Sept. 2nd at Buffalo, when she will test her new historical play, "Josephine."

"Hands Across the Sea" will be one of the important melodramatic productions of the present season. The play is in five acts, divided into twelve scenes, and in each scene there is an episode of interest. Though the pathetic elements predominate, light comedy is prominent enough to lighten up the gloom and sensation will stir the blood to action. Rehearsals began in New York this week.

The redecoration of the New York Fourteenth Street Theatre is nearly completed and the house reopens Aug. 19th with an unusually elaborate production of Paul Merritt and George Conquest's melodrama, entitled "Mankind." One of the sensational scenes will show a huge steamboat occupying the entire stage. During a dense fog the steamboat disappears and the heroine is seen struggling in the water. The hero sails in on a full rigged fishing smack with all sails set, manned by a large crew, rescues his loved heroine, takes his little smack and sails away to sea.

Charles R. Thorne, who has been a resident of San Francisco for a number of years, will have a benefit tendered him at the Baldwin on Sunday night. The bill can be found in announcement elsewhere in our columns. It will be Mr. Thorne's 80th birthday on Sunday. He is one of the oldest American actors living, and the oldest American manager. There are not many of our readers that may remember Mr. Thorne's first appearance, but if any should we will refresh their memories of the occasion by copying a record of it from the Annals of the New York Stage; in which it is duly set down that, "Chas. Robt. Thorne, son of a respectable citizen of New York, and since widely known as an actor and manager, made his stage debut [at the old Park] on the 23 i (April), 1829) as Octavian, being simply announced as a young gentleman!"—but that classification was made over sixty years ago.

Sidney Drew (John's brother) was the Edward Balsbridge of "The Burglar" New York cast. Harry Davenport takes the young lawyer here. Emma Sheridan was Alice. Phœbe Davies is our Alice. John T. Sullivan was the editor. Edgar Weir plays this role at the Bush. Minnie Dupree was Fannie. Isabel Archer is our Alice's sister.

The electric light in "The Burglar" is Harry Davenport's light comedy flashes, that lighten up the whole play.

Edward Harrigan produces "Old Lavender" and "4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on August 19th.

The attachees of the Bijou will have a joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening. "Under the Gaslight" will form the bill. A large number of popular performers have volunteered for the occasion as will be seen by referring to

Prof. Aug. Thornton will give a grand series of stereopticon exhibitions at the Metropolitan Temple for the week of August 26th, with valuable prizes by allotment awarded to the audience. See to-morrow's FIGARO.

Wilson Barrett will not dispose of the American rights to any more of his plays until he has produced them here himself. He sold the rights for the United States for "Hoodman Blind" and "The Silver King," and when he came on here two years ago he found that both of these plays had been killed for this country, so far as he was concerned.

Maurice Barrymore, the Burglar of New York, sees so much promise in the play that he wants A. M. Palmer to release him so he can go starring as the housebreaker.

The American Opera Company have been playing a phenomenal engagement in Philadelphia. Last week they packed the immense Grand Opera House. Natali is an extraordinary female singer. Vetta and Stoddard are the best of the men. "Der Freischutz" filled the week. The opera goes on and the improvements that were contemplated in the ceiling of the house have been postponed until next February.

If Rose Coghlan could not make "Jocelyn" go, how would Langtry have appeared in it.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar." It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, fits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give "The Burglar" a good name.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the first time here this week. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes. We have had the matter in sketch act form by variety companies, but they fell far below Harrigan's real version of the difficulties between the Maguires and the McIntyres.

The first act of the piece is full of fun. Mr. Harrigan does another fine bit of Irish character as the curbstone astronomer and making love to the girls who answer his matrimonial advertisements. Mrs. Yeamans is always clever, no matter how small the part. All the parts are acceptably played, and the music is the best Braham has written.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar next week with "Old Lavender" given Monday and Tuesday.

New California Theatre.

Fred Maredon's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" closes Mr. Murphy's fourth week at the California on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and Saturday matinee. According to present indications this engagement promises to yield the largest four weeks' receipts he ever played to.

Murphy is inimitable in his round of Irish characters, and this is the last chance to see him in one of his best parts.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou on Saturday evening next for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, Wm. Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, E. J. Holden, F. Sumerfield, Kate Daigleish, Rose Thorne, Jennie Lamont, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others. (See cast in programme announcement on another page.)

The olio scenes will be enlivened by James E. Black, the legless dancer; Wm. DeOme and his performing dog Josh, and Gibbons & Ford in specialties. Miss Mabel Prahl will also contribute her graceful Sailors' Hornpipe.

The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

FIGARO will be the house programme.

Baldwin Theatre—Chas. R. Thorne's Benefit.

As hale and hearty Charles R. Thorne, one of the oldest living American actors, and the oldest American manager, rounds his eightieth birthday on Sunday next, he will be the recipient of a testimonial benefit at the Baldwin Theatre, tendered jointly by the members of the profession and his many friends. Shakespeare's good old play of "Henry IV" will be produced for the occasion, with John Jack—the last and one of the best of Falstaffs—as that famed rotund knight, John W. Thompson as Henry IV, a part he can do justice to; Annie Firmin as Prince Hal, and a cast generally that will be an effective one.

Box office open on Friday.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company, playing under the management of H. C. Wyatt, the Los Angeles manager, appear at their best at the Orpheum this week. The principal artists are Mrs. Padelford, late prima donna of the Conried Company, that was at the Grand Opera House some three months ago, Miss Emma Berg, Miss Anna Dacre, Miss Rita Mann, Messrs. W. F. Rochester, C. M. Cornell, F. E. Reynolds W. F. Kavar and Byron Browne. There is also a grand chorus of thirty voices.

Mrs. Padelford, Miss Berg and Miss Dacre have fine voices, and the male support and choruses are good.

Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" will be given the rest of the week, including Sunday matinee.

The prices will not be raised. General seats, 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher. At these prices the Orpheum should be crowded to the doors.

Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Miss Tony Straub, Du Bell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, the Elite Trio, and Duncan and Montie, gymnastic premiers.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Mr. Chapelle does some admirable acting as Nevada, the wanderer, and shows painstaking and conscientious work in all that he attempts. Conchita is a favorite at this house of the biggest kind and in scene second, where she as Moselle, the pet of the mine, Jube and Win-Eye do their specialties, they bring down the house. Master James Carden reads his lines very well and gives his part very acceptably.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Next week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom."

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor James, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill including acts

Tuesday and Friday nights are the boxing meeting nights at the Bella Union, and are notable for the lively matches that come off there.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Joe Natus in new and pleasing selections.

The laughable farces of "The Green-Eyed Monster" and "Slippery Days" will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Mr. John Merritt and Steve Carroll are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing specialties.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Two Drummers," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Runaways," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Merritt, Steve Carroll, Bessie Armstrong, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

The Great Wellington will make her first appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Wellington, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketch, entitled "Mixtures."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in the latest and greatest New York success, "The Burglar." It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and sots her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give "The Burglar" a good name.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Squatter Sovereignty" will be given for the last time Sunday night. This is one of Harrigan's early and most pronounced successes.

The first act of the piece is full of fun. Mr. Harrigan does another fine bit of Irish character as the curbstone astronomer and making love to the girls who answer his matrimonial advertisements. Mrs. Yeamans is always clever, no matter how small the part. All the parts are acceptably played, and the music is the best Braham has written.

This is the last week but one of Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar next week with his incomparable "Old Lavender" given Monday and Tuesday, and "4-11-44" for the rest of the week.

New California Theatre.

Fred Marsden's stirring drama of "Shaun Rhue" closes Mr. Murphy's fourth week at the characters, and this is the last chance to see him in one of his best parts.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California next week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance will be given at the Bijou this, Saturday evening, for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, William Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill will be Augustin Daly's play of New York life, "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, E. J. Holden, F. Sumerfield, Kate Daigleish, Rose Thorne, Jennie Lamont, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others. (See cast in programme announcement on another page.)

The olio scenes will be enlivened by James E. Black, the legless dancer; Wm. DeOme and his performing dog Josh, and Gibbons & Ford in specialties. Miss Mabel Prahl will also contribute her graceful Sailors' Hornpipe.

The bill is a very full one and a full house will see it.

FIGARO will be the house programme.

Baldwin Theatre—Chas. R. Thorne's Benefit.

As hale and hearty Charles R. Thorne, one of the oldest living American actors, and the oldest American manager, rounds his eightieth birthday on Sunday next, he will be the recipient of a testimonial benefit at the Baldwin Theatre, tendered jointly by the members of the profession and his many friends. Shakespeare's good old play of "Henry IV" will be produced for the occasion, with John Jack—the last and one of the best of Falstaffs—as that famed rotund knight, John W. Thompson as Henry IV, a part he can do justice to; Annie Firmin as Prince Hal, and a cast generally that will be an effective one.

Box office open on Sunday.

Orpheum Opera House.

Wyatt's English Opera Company put in their last appearances on Sunday, matinee and evening, at the Orpheum in Gilbert & Sullivan's comic opera of "Patience."

They give a very good rendition of the opera, and have played to a good week's business.

Mrs. Padelford, Miss Berg and Miss Daore have fine voices, and the male support and choruses are good.

The prices will not be raised. General seats 25 cents; reserved seats, 50 cents. No higher.

Next week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Miss Tony Straub, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, the Elite Trio, and Duncan and Montie, gymnastic premiers.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Mr. Chapelle has been re-engaged, and this week the four-act drama of life in the mines, entitled "Nevada," will be the attraction.

Mr. Chapelle does some admirable acting as Nevada, the wanderer, and shows painstaking and conscientious work in all that he attempts. Conchita is a favorite at this house of the biggest kind and in scene second, where she as Moselle, the pet of the mine, Jube and Win-Eye do their specialties, they bring down the house. Master James Carden reads his lines very well and gives his part very acceptably.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Next week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom."

Bella Union Theatre.

This week Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist, and Joseph S. Williams, tenor vocalist, are the new people.

Cyrene, the terpsichorean queen, will remain this week, the second and last of her engagement. Cyrene is a peculiar eccentric specialty performer, and she is quite a feature in the bill.

The reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Blanche Long, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces next week.

The laughable burletta by George Drew and Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front

Reserved Seats now on

This week a strong specialty company will appear at the Cremorne, with Clifford & Hickey, Carrie Monroe, Frank La Mondue, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and Joe Natus in new and pleasing selections.

The laughable farces of "The Green-Eyed Monster" and "Slippery Days" will be produced each evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne next week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Mr. John Merritt and Steve Carroll are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing specialties.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Two Drummers," is the interlude act.

The laughable farce of "The Runaways," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, John Merritt, Steve Carroll, Bessie Armstrong, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Billy Akarman.

The Great Wellington will make her first appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Wellington, Wm. Behren, James Post and Billy Akarman make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Billy Akarman, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketch, entitled "Mixtures."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 18th, grand picnic of the Emerald Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquinez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The attaches of the Bijou had a fair joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening. "Under the Gaslight" formed the bill and was well rendered.

Edward Harrigan produces "Old Lavender" and "4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on this week.

Mr. Sam Thall goes out as advance representative of the Grismer-Davies Co. He will be welcomed in every town, for he has made himself a prime favorite wherever he has been.

Mr. Ed. Kilday retains for the coming season the responsible position he now hold, that of business manager and treasurer of the Grismer-Davies combination.

The Bush Street Theatre and the California had the call last week. Both houses being crowded to the doors at every performance, not even standing room left.

J. J. Wallace, the veteran actor, was lucky enough to have previously arranged for the Bush Street Theatre for a benefit on Wednesday night. Of course, "The Burglar" will be the bill, and he will be in the swim in its boom.

There was as good a piece of comedy love-making between Geo. H. Wood and Mrs. Yeamans in the "Squatter Sovereignty" last week as is often seen on the stage. Mr. Wood is doing excellent white-face business.

Charley Bacon is back here with us, after eight years of banishment in the East, as business representative of Rose Coghlan and company. He looks in fine condition, especially when it is considered that he has been for a portion of the time connected with the malarious management of Cons. E. Locke.

Mr. Alf. Ellinghouse represents the interests of Mr. E. J. Buckley and Miss Isabel Morris during their two weeks' engagement at the Alcazar, commencing August 26th, opening in "The Galley Slave." At the close of the Alcazar engagement Miss Morris will make an extended tour supported by a strong company, engaged by the wide-awake managers, Mark Thall and Alf. Ellinghouse

The Sheridan Dramatic Club played "Held by the Enemy" at Saratoga Hall on Sunday evening very creditably.

E. J. Henley, recently here in the Booth-Barrett Company, is to be the heavy villain in "Choinea," Clay Greene's new play.

A Seattle paper thus speaks irreverently of the best Juliet on the stage: "Margaret Mather talks love nonsense from a second-story balcony and shows us her best dress at the theatre to-night."

Our two California girls, Ada and Rillie Deaves, celebrate Admission Day (September 9th) by producing their new play, "Chaos Flat," in Waterbury, Conn.

Manager Bush-Street Leavitt is getting up the pantomimic spectacle of 'The Spider and the Fly' in gorgeous style. It is expected to make one of the season's hits.

The story of "Shenandoah," Bronson Howard's new play, begins at the very opening of the war with the firing of the first shot at Fort Sumter, and deals not only with panoply of battle, but presents the tenderest phase of human sentiment and tells a sweet love story. Mr Howard is now putting the finishing touches on the play, which opens at the Star Theatre, N. Y., September 9th.

The Parisian theatres will open their Fall and Winter seasons on the following dates and with the following attractions: The National with "The Stowaway," 24th; the Arch, "The Burglar," 31st; Walnut, Sept. 2nd, "Hands Across the Sea;" Opera House, Sept 2nd, "The Exiles;" Chestnut, August 26th, "The Beautiful Slave." The two new houses, Broad and Park Sept. 16th. Marie Wainwright is the Broad's, and Annie Pixley the Park's opening attraction. Both the theatres are handsome additions to the city. The Broad has been entirely reconstructed, only the old walls being used. The interior decorations will be very handsome. It has strong bookings. The Park has some excellent attractions, and is situated in a new district.

Robert Mantell presents "Monbars" in

Charles R. Thorne, who has been a resident of San Francisco for a number of years, had a good benefit at the Baldwin on Sunday night. It was Mr. Thorne's 80th birthday on Sunday. He is one of the oldest American actors living, and the oldest American manager. There are not many of our readers that may remember Mr. Thorne's first appearance, but if any should we will refresh their memories of the occasion by copying a record of it from the Annals of the New York Stage; in which it is duly set down that, "Chas. Robt. Thorne, son of a respectable citizen of New York, and since widely known as an actor and manager, made his stage debut [at the old Park] on the 23d (April, 1829) as Octavian, being simply announced as a young gentleman!"—but that classification was made over sixty years ago. May he live still young in heart and sound in health to have his ninetieth birthday testimonial.

Robert McWade and Harry Edwards are both en route for Australia to act in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" under Wesley Sisson's management.

A Philadelphian writes that Charles Fechter's grave in that city has fallen into a state of decay. Fechter was the greatest romantic actor of the century, yet he is so soon forgotten.

A new theatre is to be built in St. Louis, to be jointly managed by John W. Norton and David Henderson, of Chicago.

Burnand's new comedy, called "The Headless Man," written for Chas. Wyndham's company, will be played during his coming tour. The hero is a lawyer with a bad memory, which he seeks to remedy by a scientific system, and much merriment is created by his blunders in business matters.

Lillian Nordica has been engaged to sing on the Tamagno nights of the Patti opera season next March.

A late London paper, commenting upon what it calls the "American statue boom," asks why representative American women should not be thus immortalized and wickedly suggests that Mrs. Cleopatra Brown Potter would look handsome done up in brass.

A report is current that Manager E. G. Gilmore has abandoned his project of starring Mrs. Leslie Carter. Hope so; for the credit of the stage.

Charles Haslam, a well known business manager, died suddenly at Pleasure Bay, N. J. He was recently with Arthur Reban's Comedy Company.

The American Opera Company have been playing a phenomenal engagement in Philadelphia. Last week they packed the immense Grand Opera House. Natali is an extraordinary female singer. Vetta and Stoddard are the best of the men. "Der Freischutz" filled the week. The opera goes on and the improvements that were contemplated in the ceiling of the house have been postponed until next February.

Adelina Patti will sail from Havre for New York in November, and begin her Italian opera tour at Chicago, December 9th, under Henry E. Abbey's management.

James Albery, the English dramatic author, is dead.

The Bulletin says of "The Burglar" at the Bush: "It furnished an evening of rare entertainment, and is probably destined to have as great a run here as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.' It abounds in strong situations, is fertile of dramatic effect, pathos, humor and all the things which go to make up a strong and successful drama. Like 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' the interest centers mainly upon the situations, the spectators losing the thread of the story in the intense interest of the action."

"The Burglar" has only ten characters but they are all characters with individuality to them—no dummies. The company is excellently selected to fit the parts.

Idalene Cotton has taken seven steps up the dramatic ladder in her jockey in "Kerry Gow," and her Tim, the poor peasant boy of "Shamus Rhue." Royal Ben is naturally proud of his clever daughter. And it his friend Joe of years agon that brought her out, too. How we run across each other's pathways in the little world of ours in the voyage of life.

Our young Californians fill in the dramatic ranks as others graduate in promotion. Miss Mabel Keith is the illustrator, in the way in which she acquitted herself as Belle Parker in Harrigan's piece this week at the Alcazar.

Dates of Wyatt's English Opera Co.: Sing in Oakland, 19-20, and sail for Victoria, 26th, and take in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Northwest generally afterwards.

"How was the audience at your rendition of 'Hamlet' last night?' was asked of a barnstormer. "Very, very poor." "What seems to be the trouble?" "I don't know; but I suppose I shall have to rewrite the play before the people up here will like it."

T. Wilmot Eckert, musical director of the Wyatt Opera Co., was married on the 15th to Miss Emma Schultzberg, a member of the same company.

October 14th will be an important theatrical evening in New York, as on that date Booth and Modjeska will open at the Broadway in 'Hamlet,' and the Jefferson-Florence combination will be seen at the Star.

During Vernona Jarbeau's San Francisco date she will adopt Rosina Vokes' style of performance, giving three short pieces.

Elizabeth Lirka, the Russian giantess, is one of the current sights in Paris. She is six feet, six inches in height and measures forty-seven inches round the bust and thirty-seven and one-half inches around the waist, and only 11 years old. Her parents are of the ordinary stature and none of her five brothers and sisters are of more than average proportions.

The Donazetti's, seven in number, who are startling and novel acrobats, have been engaged for 'Kajanka."

Prof. Aug. Thornton will give a grand series of stereopticon exhibitions at the Metropolitan Temple for the week of August 26th, with valuable prizes by allotment awarded to the audience. See Monday's FIGARO.

Maurice Barrymore, the Burglar of New York, sees so much promise in the play that he wants A. M. Palmer to release him so he can go starring as the housebreaker.

If Rose Coghlan could not make "Joselyn" go, how would Langtry have appeared in it.

Sara Bernhardt, supported by M. Damala, will begin her season in New York at the end of November under Henry E. Abbey.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in "The Burglar," is announced for its last week. It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phœbe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. H. Trader is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give 'The Burglar" a good name.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory."

Alcazar Theatre.

This is the last week of Edward Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight week's season at the Alcazar this week with his incomparable "Old Lavender" given Monday and Tuesday, and "4 11 44" for the rest of the week.

"4 11 44" has its first production in this city Wednesday. In this piece Harrigan sketches and introduces quite plunging practicales of the new comers of New York's population, the Italians with graphic character drawings and humorous events and incidents, so characteristic of his plays. Like all his pieces it is absorbing and entertaining.

New California Theatre.

Lyons & Hoey take the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy — its fourth visit to San Francisco — interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors especially to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, and has been a favorite ever since. Lyons & Hoey have surrounded themselves with a strong company, and the production will be given with all the scenic and mechanical effects that have characterized their former visits.

Bijou Theatre.

A special performance was given at the Bijou on Saturday evening, for the joint benefit of Al. Walcott, William Dove, Frank Donovan, E. N. Keyt, Frank Burkhard and Chas. Dohring, attachees of the Bijou. The bill was Augustin Daly's play of New York life "Under the Gaslight," with George Y. Stevens, E. J. Holden, F. Sumerfield, Maggie Frances Rose Thorne, Mabel Prahl, C. M. Gray and others.

The olio scenes were enlivened by James E. Black, the legless dancer; Wm. DeOme and his performing dog Josh, and Gibbons & Ford in specialties. Miss Mabel Prahl also contributed her graceful Sailors' Hornpipe.

The performance went off well and the result was satisfactory.

Baldwin Theatre—Chas. R. Thorne's Benefit.

As hale and hearty Charles R. Thorne, one of the oldest living American actors, and the oldest American manager, rounded his eightieth birthday on Sunday, he was made the recipient of a testimonial benefit at the Baldwin Theatre; which we are sorry to chronicle was but lightly attended. Shakespeare's good old play of "Henry IV" was produced for the occasion, with John Jack—the last and one of the best of Falstaffs—as that famed rotund knight, John W. Thompson as Henry IV, a part he can do justice to; Annie Firmin as Prince Hal, well sustained and spiritedly acted and a cast generally that was an effective one.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Miss Tony Straub, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, the Elite Trio, and Duncan and Montie, gymnastic premiers.

The Orpheum has given a week of farce-comedy, followed by a week of English opera, and this week presents again its staple attraction, a fine specialty combination in a varied programme of novelties. Surely, Managers Walter & Co. give the spice of variety to their amusement bill of fare.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition. Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half-dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business.

There is almost a new company this week consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. R. Brooks, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knolton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite Thos. Conway.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Blanche Long, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces this week.

The laughable burletta by George Drew and Tay on Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," is retained on the bill.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, 'Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Wallerstein runs a very respectable show under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Stella Morrison, the popular balladist, puts in a reappearance this week.

Miss Lena Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Minnie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Bob McDonald, the efficient stage manager.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous Davenport Bros.' rope-tying cabinet feat.

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 25th, grand picnic of the Eclipse Social Club at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquinez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves.

A. M., and returning, leaves Vallejo at 4.30 arriving in the Straits at 5.30 P. M. Round trip, 50 cents; children under 12 years, 25 cents. The U. S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursionists will be looked after by the management of P. H. Hinck and his corps of assistants.

The Society of Independents noted for its social events, will hold a union at Wildwood Grove, Sausalito, on Sunday, when the programme will consist of a general aspect, for that day, and the coming events of this society. Excursion on steamer Tamalpais to Vallejo, Mare Island and Crockett, bulls head breakfast in the grove, musical performance in the afternoon, and banquet in December.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....AUGUST 20, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The automatic opera-glass case has been introduced into the front rows of the balcony at the Orpheum. Iron cases, with a little window in showing the glasses, are fastened on the balcony rail. You drop a dime in the slot and the little door swings open and you take your glass. It would be a very valuable invention if it could be made applicable to any kind of glasses. Many people would prefer the other kind of glasses for a dime.

Gus Hill's World of Novelties is drawing like a porous plaster at the Orpheum.

Six new people head the bill at the Wigwam besides the favorites retained. Manager Meyer caters with liberal energy.

Hopper & Hall, a clever sketch team, Miss Lia Conway and Miss Berth Weston are the new cards at Burns & Trayers' Theatre Comique this week.

Annie Ryner, the song and dance favorite; Blanche Long, soprano vocalist; Joe Natus, the tenor, and others put in new appearances at the Bella Union.

Gibson & Boyle, break-neck song and dance team; Chas. Morrell, the California banjoist, Belle Almont and Kittie King are new at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They parade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Palace Variety Theatre celebrates its ninth anniversary on Thursday with the usual double bill of company and volunteers. Capt. Obermeyer marks the milestones as he passes them with a big entertainment and social cheer.

Elizabeth Liska, the Russian giantess, is one of the current sights in Paris. She is six feet, six inches in height and measures forty-seven inches round the bust and thirty-seven and one-half inches around the waist, and only 11 years old. Her parents are of the ordinary stature and none of her five brothers and sisters are of more than average proportions.

The Donszetti's, seven in number, who are startling and novel acrobats, have been engaged for 'Kajanka."

The attachees of the Bijou had a fair joint benefit at that theatre on Saturday evening. "Under the Gaslight" formed the bill and was well rendered.

Edward Harrigan produces "Old Lavender" and "4-11-44" for his eighth and last week at the Alcazar on this week.

Mr. Sam Thall goes out as advance representative of the Grismer-Davies Co. He will be welcomed in every town, for he has made himself a prime favorite wherever he has been.

Mr. Ed. Kilday retains for the coming season the responsible position he now holds, that of business manager and treasurer of the Grismer-Davies combination.

The Bush Street Theatre and the California had the call last week. Both houses being crowded to the doors at every performance, not even standing room left.

J. J. Wallace, the veteran actor, was lucky enough to have previously arranged for the Bush Street Theatre for a benefit on Wednesday night. Of course, "The Burglar" will be the bill, and he will be in the swim in its boom.

Charley Bacon is back here with us, after eight years of banishment in the East as business representative of Rose Coghlan and company. He looks in fine condition, especially when it is considered that he has been for a portion of the time connected with the malarious management of Conrad E. Locke.

Mr. Alf. Ellinghouse represents the interests of Mr. E. J. Buckley and Miss Lotta Morris during their two weeks' engagement at the Alcazar, commencing August 26th, opening in 'The Galley Slave.' At the close of the Alcazar engagement Miss Morris will make an extended tour supported by a strong company, engaged by the well-known managers, Mark Thall and Alf. Ellinghouse.

Manager Bush Street Leavitt is getting up the pantomimic spectacle of 'The Sister and the Fay' in gorgeous style. It is expected to make one of the season's hits.

During Vernona Jarbeau's San Francisco stay she will adopt Rosina Vokes'

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

There are women pilots, engineers, doctors and lawyers all over the Union, but it is for San Francisco to put out the banner claim for the only lady bill-poster on the American Continent. Mrs. Annie T. Dunphy has been granted permission to carry on the business of bill-poster, taking up the reins dropped by her husband on account of illness. Mrs. Dunphy does not yet drive a four-in-hand, but she is driving a rushing business and is the sole owner of every bill stand of any importance in San Francisco.

John J. Ruddy, the live agent who was for many years with Hoyt & Thomas, is in town as advance for Russell's farce-comedy company and "The City Directory," the latest thing on the top wave of success in the East. It comes to the Bush next week.

New York is shocked by learning that Den Thompson—good old Uncle Joshua Whitcomb—has been a loser to near the sum of $100 000 by remaining in that broiling city during the Summer, and inflaming his blood by bucking against the tiger. Thompson is no novice at cards. He learned to play before he learned to act; and like Keane Buchanan he plays best at faro. He has had a long siege against the New York green tables, and the cards have run against him lately. That's all.

Mr. Thomas H. Davis, known throughout the land as 'Hustling" Davie, will arrive this week. He is the advance representative of the latest Eastern melodramatic success, "The Stowaway," that opens at the California Theatre on Sept. 2nd. As Mr. Davis has filled the position of press agent for both Barnum and Forepaugh's circus, he may be considered a live man, and not one who will stowaway his attraction under a bushel of do nothings. He will let the people know "The Stowaway" is coming.

The telegraph briefly closes a romantic episode in the great French tragedienne's life by telling us that M. Damala, the ex-husband of Sara Bernhardt, died in Paris on the 18th of cerebral congestion; attributed, so the latest dispatch says, to an overdose of morphine and cocaine. Damala was an attache at the Greek Embassy at Paris, and made the acquaintance of Sara Bernhardt in August, 1881. The dashing young fellow became the object of Sara's romance. She took him as a protege in her company, at first in minor parts. His progress beat Claude Melnotte's, for he rose from the ranks in one year to the important position of husband of the great actress; but, like Fritz in the 'Grand Duchess," he fell, when he did fall, with precipitous rapidity. Their marriage in St. Andrew's Church, London, in 1882, was almost an elopement in sensation. They arrived from Naples unheralded, were married the next morning, and left London the same night for Spain. Here the romance culminated. Damala's life as the husband and companion of the impetuous woman whose intellect so far eclipsed his own, proved most unhappy. He indulged in dissipated extravagances as a relief. The law was appealed to. A divorce shortly followed. Damala fell never to rise again. He became a victim to morphine and lost all energy. He is described latterly as being thin, pale, hollow-eyed and broken-down—and he died from an over indulgence in that which had ruined him.

Edwin Thorne has departed for New York, via Panama, to seek opportunities in the Eastern dramatic fields.

Laura Clews will be the Little Editha in 'The Burglar" at Wednesday's matinee.

Neil Warner and wife left on Sunday, via Canadian Pacific Railroad, for Montreal, where he will take a lucrative professorship in elocution and declamation in one of the leading institutions of learning.

Mr. R. E. Johnston, who was here as manager with Ovide Musin, will, in February, bring Jules Levy, the cornetist, to this coast, with Stella Levy, the soprano; Rose Linde, contralto; William J. Lavin, the tenor; Shonert, pianist, in support.

Joseph Murphy closed a four-weeks engagement at the California Theatre on the 18th that rounded up equal to the best four weeks he ever played. The total receipts were actually over $30,000. There were no new plays given. "Donagh" was his first week's bill. 'Shaun Rhue" his second, 'Kerry Gow." filled his third and a half of his fourth week, and "Shaun Rhue" was revived for his last nights. The result is exceedingly complimentary to Mr. Murphy's popularity in this, his home city.

Robert Mantell presents "Monbars" in Denver for the week of Aug. 26th and Kansas City Sept 9th for a week.

The electric light in "The Burglar" is Harry Davenport's light comedy flashes, that lighten up the whole play.

The Sheridan Dramatic Club played "Held by the Enemy' at Saratoga Hall on Sunday evening very creditably.

Robert McWade and Harry Edwards are both en route for Australia to act in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" under Wesley Sisson's management.

A Philadelphian writes that Charles Fechter's grave in that city has fallen into a state ot decay. Fechter was the greatest romantic actor of the century, yet he is so soon forgotten.

A new theatre is to be built in St. Louis, to be jointly managed by John W. Norton and David Henderson, of Chicago.

Lillian Nordica has been engaged to sing on the Tamagno nights of the Patti opera season next March.

A late London paper, commenting upon what it calls the "American statue boom," asks why representative American women should not be thus immortalized and wickedly suggests that Mrs. Cleopatra Brown

"Pop" Reed, father of Roland Reed, who has been stage doorkeeper of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, for near a half century, used to declare that he would leave his skull to that playhouse as a property to be used in "Hamlet." But he has recanted and will be buried all over, when he dies, because "there are no real tragedians on the stage to-day, except Booth, and he doesn't intend to have his figurehead handled promiscuously by duffers." "Pop" has soured on the present generation of tragedians.

"The Burglar" has only ten characters but they are all characters with individuality to them—no dummies. The company is excellently selected to fit the parts.

Dates of Wyatt's English Opera Co.: Sing in Oakland, 19-20, and sail for Victoria, 26th, and take in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Northwest generally afterwards.

Prof. Aug. Thornton will give a grand series of stereopticon exhibitions at the Metropolitan Temple for the week of August 26th, with valuable prizes by allotment awarded to the audience. See Monday's FIGARO.

Maurice Barrymore, the Burglar of New York, sees so much promise in the play that he wants A. M. Palmer to release him so he can go starring as the housebreaker.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in "The Burglar," is announced for its last week. It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phœbe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Little Laura Crews will face the burglar as Editha at Wednesday's matinee.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. M. Hermance is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give "The Burglar" a good name.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory."

Alcazar Theatre.

This is the last week of Edward Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar this week with his incomparable "Old Lavender" given Monday and Tuesday, and "4-11-44" for the rest of the week.

"4-11-44" has its first production in this city Wednesday. In this piece Harrigan sketches out the old-time policy plunging proclivities of certain classes of New York's population, interlarded with graphic character drawings and humorous events and incidents, so characteristic of his plays. Like all his pieces it is amusing and entertaining.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an inimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

The house was crowded.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Miss Tony Straub, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, the Elite Trio; Duncan and Montie, gymnastic premiers, and Miss Hattie Atkinson, operatic vocalist.

The Orpheum has given a week of farce-comedy, followed by a week of English opera, and this week presents again its staple attraction, a fine specialty combination in a varied programme of novelties. Surely, Managers Walter & Co. give the spice of variety to their amusement bill of fare.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Monday night, albeit it is a bad night for Morosco's, showed the immense auditorium well filled with the steady patrons of this east side house.

The popular sensational life-drama, in prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. B. Brooke, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C Leary.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, 'Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Stella Merriam, the popular balladist, puts in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Bob McDonald, the efficient stage

EVENING EDITION

WEDNESDAY.....AUGUST 21, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

JOHN CORT'S NEW STANDARD THEATRE, SEATTLE.

The last Seattle Post Intelligencer has an account of John Cort's new Standard Theatre, now building in that city. It is to be an architecturally handsome three-story brick building, ornamented with terra cotta facings. It will have a frontage on Washington street of fifty-one feet and will extend south on South Second street eighty feet, and from an architectural standpoint will be a most complete theatre building.

The theatre entrance in the center of the building, on Washington street, will be ten feet in width, with a transom of figured brass work. On either side will be placed beveled plate glass theatre exhibition windows, so arranged when the main doors are swinging back at nighttime that the colored glass of the doors will slide in front of the windows, producing with the lights shining upon them all the colors of the rainbow. There will also be two other entrances on the side of the main entrance. These, while not so large, will be tastefully arranged and supplied with beautifully colored glass transoms. Directly above the doorways, and below the windows of the second story, extending across the front of the building, will appear the name of the theatre in terra cotta letters inclosed in a rich egganddart moulding.

The second story front will be ornamented with a large bay-window in the center, an imposing Roman female figure and band balconies. The third story will be finished with clustered Roman windows and a Spanish balcony in the center. The roof will have a large and imposing rounded tower of iron, covered with gold, on each side. Each tower will have a large flagstaff, around which will be entwined a huge dragon, head downwards, with feet resting on the dome. These two images, artistically made of pressed zinc, will attract much attention. There will be five basement stores fronting on South Second street.

The interior will be fitted up elaborately, and will combine novelty, convenience, beauty and durability. An especial feature will be the large dome in the center, similar to the Pantheon at Rome. The dome will be twenty-six feet six inches in diameter, in the friezs of which will be placed a series of 150 incandescent electric lights.

The basement for the structure is already completed and the first floor put in, and it is calculated that the builders will have theatre ready for opening by the middle of October. The ornamentation added since the first plans were drawn entails an expense of $10 000.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The automatic opera-glass case has been introduced into the front rows of the balcony at the Orpheum. Iron cases, with a little window in showing the glasses, are fastened on the balcony rail. You drop a dime in the slot and the little door swings open and you take your glass. It would be a very valuable invention if it could be made applicable to any kind of glasses. Many people would prefer the other kind of glasses for a dime.

Gus Hill's World of Novelties is drawing like a porous plaster at the Orpheum.

Six new people head the bill at the Wigwam besides the favorites retained. Manager Meyer caters with liberal energy.

Hopper & Hall, a clever sketch team, Miss Lia Conway and Miss Berth Wesson are the new cards at Burns & Trayers' Theatre Comique this week.

Annie Ryner, the song and dance favorite; Blanche Long, soprano vocalist; Joe Natus, the tenor, and others out in new appearances at the Bella Union.

Gibson & Boyle, break-neck song and dance team; Chas. Morrell, the California banjoist, Belle Almont and Kittie King are new at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Palace Variety Theatre celebrates its ninth anniversary on Thursday with the usual double bill of company and volunteers. Capt. Obermeyer marks the milestones as he passes them with a big entertainment and social cheer.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Grismer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma week of August 26th; Marysville, week of Sept. 2nd; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

Jeffreys-Lewis has been engaged to play the character of an adventuress in "The Spider's Web" for the coming season.

Charles B. Leach, an old-time theatrical man and brother of Stephen Leach, a pioneer actor and opera singer in this city, died recently in New York after a long illness. He was 74 years of age and as active as a man not half so old.

Full roster of Frederick Warde's Co.: Stella Rees, Mrs. Henry Vandenhoff, Kate Vandenhoff, Gertie Magill, Allie Magill, Frank McDonald, Clay Clement, L. F. Rand, Wilfred Clarke, H. C. Barton, J. C. Edson, Charles Clark, Robt. Benedict, H. W. Storm, Charles Duff, David P. Talbot, Robt. Brower, business manager; Chas. A. Keeshin, business agent. Open at Bradford, Pa., August 24th; at Grand Opera House, New York, Oct. 14th.

Annie Clark, of the Boston Museum, has been playing the disagreeable part of an adventuress, a real bad woman, so thoroughly that a little girl who was introduced to her afterward was astonished to find her quite amiable. After watching her for some time to make sure that she was really not vicious, she gravely advised her to tell the audience before beginning the play that she was not so bad as she seemed.

Lydia Thompson is talking about bidding farewell to the stage. Don't talk of it. Do it!

The site together with the foundations of A. H Wood's visionary West-end theatre, in the Harlem portion of New York, has been legally restored to its original owner. Maggie Mitchell. Maggie corrals her $5,000 forfeit money, has her restored lot excavated free of expense, and has several tons of bricks and mortar the best of it on this broken engagement.

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

There are women pilots, engineers, doctors and lawyers all over the Union, but it is for San Francisco to put out the banner claim for the only lady bill-poster on the American Continent. Mrs. Annie T. Dunphy has been granted permission to carry on the business of bill-poster, taking up the reins dropped by her husband on account of illness. Mrs. Dunphy does not yet drive a four-in-hand, but she is driving a rushing business and is the sole owner of every bill stand of any importance in San Francisco.

John J. Ruddy, the live agent who was for many years with Hoyt & Thomas, is in town as advance for Russell's farce-comedy company and "The City Directory," the latest thing on the top wave of success in the East. It comes to the Bush next week.

Edward Harrigan produces '4-11-44' for his last nights at the Alcazar.

New York is shocked by learning that Dan Thompson—good old Uncle Joshua Whitcomb—has been a loser to near the sum of $100 000 by remaining in that broiling city during the Summer, and inflaming his blood by bucking against the tiger. Thompson is no novice at cards. He learned to play before he learned to act; and like Keane Buchanan he plays best at faro. He has had a long siege against the New York green tables, and the cards have run against him lately. That's all.

Mr. Thomas H. Davis, known throughout the land as 'Hustling" Davis, will arrive this week. He is the advance representative of the latest Eastern melodramatic success, "The Stowaway," that opens at the California Theatre on Sept. 2nd. As Mr. Davis has filled the position of press agent for both Barnum and Forepaugh's circus, he may be considered a live man, and not one who will stowaway his attraction under a bushel of do nothings. He will let the people know "The Stowaway" is coming.

The telegraph briefly closes a romantic episode in the great French tragedienne's life by telling us that M. Damala, the ex-husband of Sara Bernhardt, died in Paris on the 18th of cerebral congestion; attributed, so the latest dispatch says, to an overdose of morphine and cocaine. Damala was an attache at the Greek Embassy at Paris, and made the acquaintance of Sara Bernhardt in August, 1881. The dashing young fellow became the object of Sara's romance. She took him as a protege in her company, at first in minor parts. His progress beat Claude Melnot's, for he rose from the ranks in one year to the important position of husband of the great actress; but, like Fritz in the 'Grand Duchess,' he fell, when he did fall, with precipitous rapidity. Their marriage in St. Andrew's Church, London in 1882, was almost an elopement in sensation. They arrived from Naples unheralded, were married the next morning, and left London the same night for Spain. Here the romance culminated. Damala's life as the husband and companion of the impetuous woman whose intellect so far eclipsed his own, proved most unhappy. He indulged in dissipated extravagances as a relief. The law was appealed to. A divorce shortly followed. Damala fell never to rise again. He became a victim to morphine and lost all energy. He is described latterly as being thin, pale, hollow-eyed and broken-down—and he died from an over indulgence in that which had ruined him.

Edwin Thorne has departed for New York, via Panama, to seek opportunities in the Eastern dramatic fields.

The Donzetti's, seven in number, who are startling and novel acrobats, have been engaged for 'Kajanka."

Laura Bellini's opera season was brief, and very early came to grief. The backer backed the wrong way, and was out of sight on pay day.

Joseph Murphy closed a four-weeks engagement at the California Theatre on the 18th that rounded up equal to the best four weeks he ever played. The total receipts were actually over $30,000. There were no new plays given. "Donagh" was his first week's bill. 'Shaun Rhue" his second, 'Kerry Gow" filled his third and a half of his fourth week, and "Shaun Rhue" was revived for his last nights. The result is exceedingly complimentary to Mr. Murphy's popularity in this, his home city.

"Pop" Reed, father of Roland Reed, who has been stage doorkeeper of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, for near a half century, used to declare that he would leave his skull to that playhouse as a property to be used in "Hamlet." But he has recanted and will be buried all over, when he dies, because "there are no real tragedians on the stage to-day, except Booth, and he doesn't intend to have his figurehead handled promiscuously by duffers." 'Pop" has soured on the present generation of tragedians.

Wyatt's English Opera Co. sail for Victoria, 26th, and take in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Northwest generally afterwards.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The hit of the season, Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies at the Bush, supported by a strong company, in "The Burglar," is announced for its last week. It is a forbidding title for a play, but some of its scenes, in the first, second and fourth acts, are as dainty bits of comedy as there are on the stage. Even the famed burglar's scene, where that outcasts only presents himself professionally, at midnight, at little Editha's home, and is interviewed in his operations by that adept little wonder, who has heard nursery stories of burglars and wants to see what he does, is one which has a mingling of comedy and emotion that is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

Mr. Grismer has evidently given the dual role of William Lewis, alias Bill the Burglar, careful study, and the result is a most effective and harmonious performance of the hero, as a man of the world going wrong, and, eventually, an outcast, banished from society, wife and child. Phoebe Davies, in her happy home, is most pleasing in her ingenuousness, and in after emotional scenes still carries the sympathies of all by her inspirational touches of feeling that sway her audiences to her moods.

Little Mabel Bowman is a real little heroine; a bright, clever little girl, that reads her lines most intelligently. There is a spontaneity in all she does that has the charm of innocent childhood and the naturalness of nature itself. She is a bud of bright promise.

Little Laura Crews will face the burglar as Editha at Wednesday's matinee.

Harry Davenport carries off one of the prizes of the piece as the young law student, prematurely wise in love and law. His acting is of the best bright comedy quality, enhanced by touches of refined humor that adds greatly to the completeness of its effect. It is the best work he has done, so far, and gives promise that in the future he may wear the mantle as well as the name of his honored father, E. L. Davenport.

Hugo Toland, who steps from the society amateur ranks into actual dramatic work as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, sustains his part admirably. Edgar Weir gives a conventional stage picture of an editor, and Geo. M. Hermance is good in a servant's role.

Miss Isabel Archer, a pretty and pleasing young lady, flits in and out in love-making scenes with the law student, and as a foil to the heroine's misery, and acts her part well and gracefully. A maid-of-all-work with nothing to do, and a groom about as useful, round out the characters.

Gus Thomas' Burglar is one of the most promising plays of the year, and we heartily congratulate Mr. Grismer upon securing its rights for the Pacific Coast States and territories.

The theatre is crowded. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences give "The Burglar" a good name.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory."

Alcazar Theatre.

This is the last week of Edward Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar with "4-11-44" for the rest of the week.

"4-11-44" has its first production in this city to-night. In this piece Harrigan sketches our the old-time policy plunging proclivities of certain classes of New York's population, interlarded with graphic character drawings and humorous events and incidents, so characteristic of his plays. Like all his pieces it is amusing and entertaining.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss A. a Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Eva.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an inimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

The house was crowded.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, James Black, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist; Rob't Harrison, eccentric comedian, and others.

The Orpheum has given a week of farce-comedy, followed by a week of English opera, and this week presents again its staple attraction, a fine specialty combination in a varied programme of novelties. Surely, Managers Walter & Co. give the spice of variety to their amusement bill of fare.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half-dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Monday night, albeit it is a bad night for Morosco's, showed the immense auditorium well filled with the steady patrons of this east side house.

The popular sensational life-drama, in prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. B. Brooks, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Blanche Long, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces this week.

The laughable burletta by George Drew and Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Stella Merriam, the popular balladist, puts in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Bob McDonald, the efficient stage manager.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Lenvitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies will close on Sunday night a splendid two-weeks' business at the Bush, in "The Burglar;" a strong and refined play, notwithstanding its theme and title. Even the famed burglar's scene is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

We have already credited Mr. Grismer and Phœbe Davies for the good work they do in their new play, and noticed the efficient support rendered.

Little Laura Crews faced the burglar as Editha at Wednesday's matinee, and sustained the interest of the part with great credit to herself. Mabel Bowman resumed the role in the evening.

The Bush was packed at both, matinee and evening. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences still give "The Burglar" a good name.

—o—

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme and is very amusing.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in its company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies, and are credited with being "five of the prettiest girls on the stage."

This farce-comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

"The City Directory" bids fair to equal the success of "The Burglar." The piece is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first-class.

Alcazar Theatre.

This is the last week of Edward Harrigan's fine engagement. He will close his eight-weeks' season at the Alcazar with "4-11-44" for the rest of the week.

"4-11-44" has its first production in this city to-night. In this piece Harrigan sketches out the old-time policy plunging proclivities of certain classes of New York's population, interlarded with graphic character drawings and humorous events and incidents, so characteristic of his plays. Like all his pieces it is amusing and entertaining.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey take the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an inimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a fine specialty company, will open at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, James Black, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist; Rob't Harrison, eccentric comedian, and others.

The Orpheum has given a week of farce-comedy, followed by a week of English opera, and this week presents again its staple attraction, a fine specialty combination in a varied programme of novelties. Surely, Managers Walter & Co. give the spice of variety to their amusement bill of fare.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Monday night, albeit it is a bad night for Morosco's, showed the immense auditorium well filled with the steady patrons of this east side house.

The popular sensational life-drama, in prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. B. Brooks, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces this week.

The laughable burletta by George Drew and Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

SEATS NOW ON SALE.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted. As a consequence, amateur night is one of the most popular innovations of the management.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Stella Merriam, the popular balladist, puts in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, under the careful supervision of Mr. Bob McDonald, the efficient stage manager.

EVENING EDITION

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 22, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"Conflict" has its last performance at the Baldwin Friday night. Miss Coghlan will appear in her original creation of Stephanie in "Forget-Me-Not" on Saturday night.

They tried a new Editha, in "The Burglar," on Wednesday matinee at the Bush, Laura Clews, who sustained the part very cleverly.

See the old "policy" way of doing it before the Louisiana came in vogue in '4 11 44" at the Alcazar.

"The Stowaway," that comes to the California Sept. 2nd, brings two reformed burglars in its company, McCoy and Hennessey, who are experts at safe-cracking. One of the sensations is the manner in which they open a safe on the stage.

Margaret Mather opens at the Baldwin Monday night in Juliet.

A double-header — the two packed houses at Wednesday matinee and in the evening at the Bush.

"Bootle's Baby" is getting healthier; it is now credited with being a "success" at the Madison Square Theatre by some of the New York papers.

"The White Elephant" and the "Lion and the Lamb" are like other menagerie stock—laid up for the Winter.

Duncan B. Harrison's "Paymaster" Co. has not closed its season, as reported.

Adelaide Moore has engaged an American company to support her in "The Love Story." As Adelaide is more than pretty, she found no difficulty in getting a leading support to play with her in the "Love Story."

Rose Forte, who made a success last Winter as Fantasma, has been reengaged for next season by the Hanlons.

Cora Tanner has returned from Europe. The handsome actress will try her captivating qualities in "Fascination" again this season.

Pauline Hall appears Sept. 23d at the New York Casino again.

"The statement that the mother of Ulric Akerstrom is or was a Swedish washerwoman in Chicago or elsewhere is a malicious falsehood." Her mother never washed.

Lawrence Barrett, with restored health and energy, sails for home August 28th. Rehearsals of his company have been called for Sept. 9th at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and for the Booth-Modjeska company for Sept. 16th at the same theatre.

Laura Bellini's opera season was brief, and very early came to grief. The backer backed the wrong way, and was out of sight on pay day.

Joseph Murphy closed a four-weeks engagement at the California Theatre on the 18th that rounded up equal to the best four weeks he ever played. The total receipts were actually over $30,000. There were no new plays given. "Donagh," was his first week's bill. 'Shaun Rhue" his second, 'Kerry Gow" filled his third and a half of his fourth week, and "Shaun Rhue" was revived for his last nights. The result is exceedingly complimentary to Mr. Murphy's popularity in this, his home city.

Wyatt's English Opera Co. sail for Victoria, 26th, and take in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Northwest generally afterwards.

The Gilsmer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma week of August 26th; Marysville, week of Sept. 2d; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

Effie Ellsler Lewis has been engaged to play the character of an adventuress in "The Spider's Web" for the coming season.

Charles B. Leach, an old-time theatrical manager and brother of Stephen Leach, a prominent actor and opera singer in this city, died recently in New York after a long illness. He was 74 years of age and active as a man not half so old.

Full roster of Frederick Warde's Co.: Nellie Rees, Mrs. Henry Vandenhoff, Kate Vandenhoff, Gertie Magill, Adie Magill, Frank McDonald, Clay Clement, L. F. Rand, Wilfred Clarke, H. C. Barton, J. E. Olson, Charles Clark, Robt. B. Benedict, W. W. Storm, Charles Duff, David P. Talbot, Robt. Brower, business manager; C. A. Keeshin, business agent. Open at Bradford, Pa., August 24th; at Grand Neil Burgess is all right. He opens his season in "The Country Fair" at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, Sept. 15th. Mr. Burgess will tour the country until the conclusion of the engagements of Helen Dauvray and Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, when he will appear there in "The Country Fair" for a long run.

"The Great Metropolis," which opens the season at Proctor's Twenty-Third St. Theatre, N. Y., August 31st, is rehearsed under the direction of Mr. Ben Teal. The cast will include such well known names as C. W. Couldock, Harry Meredith, Harry Hawk, Mrs. W. G. Jones, J. J. Holland, Mrs. Owen Marlowe, Newton Chisnell and Adele Palma.

Manager A. M. Palmer wires that Salvini's term at Palmer's Theatre will begin October 7th, and that he will be supported by May Brooklyn, Virginia Buchanan, Annie O'Neil, Genevieve Beaman, John Malone, Carl Ahrendt, L. F. Henderson, Fred Corlett, E. E. Delemater, A. Foster, E. L. Spader, G. C. Robinson and Edmund Day. On the off nights Alexander Salvini will appear.

Robert Grau, manager of various comic opera companies, who was jugged in a "dungeon cell" in Ludlow St. Jail, N. Y., for contempt of court for failing to appear before Judge Bookstaver in supplementary proceedings arising from Minnie Richards' suit for salary, excused himself and promised to be punctual at the next judicial rehearsal.

Edward C Black has been appointed receiver of the assets of the American Dramatic Fund Association and has been directed by the court to buy burial lots in two New York cemeteries for the members and then divide the residue of the fund among the members and beneficiaries.

A new "Uncle Tom" play, called "The Beautiful Slave," will be produced at Philadelphia Sept. 2nd.

It is estimated that 1500 native actors are now idle in New York without any prospect of being employed, while a couple of hundred English actors will land in that city within the next two months.

Florence St. John, in "Faust Up to Date" will appear at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., December 9th.

Manager A. M. Palmer has engaged Mr. and Mrs. William Stuart, leading man and leading lady, for the principal characters in "Marchande de Sourires." This is a strong society play of Japanese life and manners. [Not so unsavory as the French society plays, we hope.]

John J. Ruddy, the live agent who was for many years with Hoyt & Thomas, is in town as advance for Russell's farce-comedy company and "The City Directory," the latest thing on the top wave of success in the East. It comes to the Bush next week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See extra programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO for list of company.

Annie Clark, of the Boston Museum, has been playing the disagreeable part of an adventuress, a real bad woman, so thoroughly that a little girl who was introduced to her afterward was astonished to find her quite amiable. After watching her for some time to make sure that she was really not vicious, she gravely advised her to tell the audience before beginning the play that she was not so bad as she seemed.

Lydia Thompson is talking about bidding farewell to the stage. Don't talk of it. Do it!

The site together with the foundations of A. H. Wood's visionary West-end theatre, in the Harlem portion of New York, has been legally restored to its original owner, Maggie Mitchell. Maggie corrals her $5,000 forfeit money, has her restored lot excavated free of expense, and has several tons of bricks and mortar the best of it on this broken engagement.

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

There are women pilots, engineers, doctors and lawyers all over the Union, but it is for San Francisco to put out the banner claim for the only lady bill-poster on the American Continent. Mrs. Annie T. Dunphy has been granted permission to carry on the business of bill-poster, taking up the reins dropped by her husband on account of illness. Mrs. Dunphy does not yet drive a four-in-hand, but she is driving a rushing business and is the sole owner of every bill stand of any importance in San Francisco.

New York is shocked by learning that Den Thompson—good old Uncle Joshua Whitcomb—has been a loser to near the sum of $100 000 by remaining in that broiling city during the Summer, and inflaming his blood by bucking against the tiger. Thompson is no novice at cards. He learned to play before he learned to eat; and like Kearne Buchanan he plays best at faro. He has had a long siege against the New York green tables, and the cards have run against him lately. That's all.

Mr. Thomas H. Davis, known throughout the land as "Hustling" Davis, arrived on Tuesday. He is the advance representative of the latest Eastern melodramatic success, "The Stowaway," that opens at the California Theatre on Sept. 2nd. As Mr. Davis has filled the position of press agent for both Barnum and Forepaugh's circus, he may be considered a live man, and not one who will stowaway his attraction under a bushel of do nothings. He will let the people know "The Stowaway" is coming.

The automatic opera-glass case has been introduced into the front rows of the balcony at the Orpheum. Iron cases, with a little window in showing the glasses, are fastened on the balcony rail. You drop a dime in the slot and the little door swings open and you take your glass. It would be a very valuable invention if it could be made applicable to any kind of glasses. Many people would prefer the other kind of glasses for a dime.

Six new people head the bill at the Wigwam besides the favorites retained. Manager Meyer caters with liberal energy.

Hopper & Hall, a clever sketch team, Miss Ida Conway and Miss Berth Weston are the new cards at Burns & Trayers' Theatre Comique this week.

Annie Ryner, the song and dance favorite; Claudie Wes', soprano vocalist; Joe Natus, the tenor, and others put in new appearances at the Bella Union.

Gibson & Boyle, break-neck song and dance team; Chas. Morrell, the California banjoist, Belle Almont and Kittie King are new at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They pervade the stage, if they do not rule it.

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY.....AUGUST 23, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

They have a new Editha, in "The Burglar," at the Bush, Laura Clews, who sustained the part very cleverly on Thursday night, and will play Editha on Sunday, the last night of "The Burglar."

Hammerstein's Harlem Theatre will be ready for opening on September 2nd, and among the attractions booked are Booth and Modjeska, Fanny Davenport, Marie Wainwright, W. H. Crane and Stuart Robson.

Lotta will not travel professionally during the coming season.

Henry Carl Vanderluhe, known on the stage as Henry Carl Lewis, was lately held in the Yorkville Police Court in $1,000 bail on the charge of abandoning his wife, Louise St. Quintin, of Dixey's company. [Poor fellow! His fate was St. Quintin before he was tried.]

Hans Von Bulow will conduct the Hamburg Musical Festival, Sept. 9-10 11.

Fanny Davenport will open her Eastern season in Rochester, November 7th.

Bronson Howard's "Henrietta" and "Shenandoah" are both to be produced in London next Winter.

Blanch Mellon is "at liberty." She has severed her connection with the Karl Gardner company, and also with her husband, Neil Florence.

Henrietta Crosman has signed a three-years contract with Augustin Daly, having been released from her engagement with Frederick Warde.

Nat C. Goodwin has filed his answer to Irene Ackerman's claim to the copyright of "A Gold Mine," which he asserts is the work of Brander Matthews and Geo. H. Jessop.

Neil Burgess is all right. He opens his season in "The Country Fair" at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, Sept. 15th. Mr. Burgess will tour the country until the conclusion of the engagements of Helen Dauvray and Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, when he will appear there in "The Country Fair" for a long run.

"The Great Metropolis," which opens the season at Proctor's Twenty-Third St. Theatre, N. Y., August 31st, is rehearsed under the direction of Mr. Ben Teal. The cast will include such well known names as C. W. Couldock, Harry Meredith, Harry Hawk, Mrs. W. G. Jones, J. J. Holland, Mrs. Owen Marlowe, Newton Chisnell and Adele Palma.

Duncan B. Harrison's "Paymaster" Co. has not closed its season, as reported.

Adelaide Moore has engaged an American company to support her in "The Love Story." As Adelaide is more than pretty, she found no difficulty in getting a leading support to play with her in the "Love Story."

Rose Forte, who made a success last Winter as Fantasma, has been reengaged for next season by the Hanlons.

Cora Tanner has returned from Europe. The handsome actress will try her captivating qualities in "Fascination" again this season.

Pauline Hall appears Sept. 23d at the New York Casino again.

The statement that the mother of Ulric Akerstrom is or was a Swedish washerwoman in Chicago or elsewhere is a malicious falsehood." Her mother never was.

Lawrence Barrett with restored health and energy, will star some August 28th. Rehearsals of his company have been called for Sept. 9th at the Broadway Theatre New York, and for the Boston Museum company for Sept. 16th at the same theatre.

Laura Bellini's opera season was brief, and very early came to grief. The backer backed the wrong way, and was out of luck on pay day.

The Grismer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma week of August 26th; Marysville, week of Sept 2d; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

Jeffreys-Lewis has been engaged to play the character of an adventuress in "The Spider's Web" for the coming season.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the giant peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, of mountain glaciers and canyons, of gold and silver mining, and of the pastoral vallies and city scenes of our great state, will be a big feature of the Orpheum attraction next week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state or commonwealth in the world. Mr. Hutchings will give brief descriptions of the scenes.

Kellar, the magician, opens his season at Chicago on Sept. 15th. His route is solidly booked until May 1st. After a few weeks' rest he opens at the Bijou Theatre, New York, on June 2nd, 1890, for twelve weeks.

Edwin Mayo, Frank Mayo's son, opened his season at the People's Theatre, New York, this week, in "The Silver Age."

The Hanlons have put up a large building at Cohasset, Mass., in which to construct and rehearse their new pieces. It has all the appointments of a theatre. Its size is 80x100, 65 feet high, and is supplied with a huge paint-frame. The building will be put to many uses, including storage, etc. Professional people who have had some experience in Hanlon's way of breaking them in for their acrobatic business call this building "Hanlon's Cohasset Bone Breaker."

John Allen, one of our pioneer leaders, goes as leader with Frank Tannehill, Jr.'s play, "Bric-a-Brac," this season. By the way, John's four pretty daughters—three of them San Francisco girls—the Allen Sisters, have left both Kiralfys. Two of them go with Leavitt and two with "Kajanka" this season.

The New York Dramatic News says: "George Osbourne will probably take up his permanent residence in New York city. He is desirous of becoming a partner in some first-class amusement enterprise, and is on the lookout for a proper investment." Mr. Osbourne is one of the best actors and stage directors, and there should be a very desirable place for him among the entertainers of the East.

The Webster-Brady "After Dark" Co. opened its season at Bridgeport. "She," under the control of the same management, will fill a week's engagement at Miner's People's Theatre, opening Sept. 9th. Tois will be the first appearance of the Webster-Brady "She" in New York.

W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, is back from Europe.

A New York journal informs us that, "Miss Rose Coghlan has made a genuine success at the Baldwin Theatre in San Francisco in 'Jocelyn.' The popular actress is drawing large audiences and is being enthusiastically received nightly." Good!

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush next week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See extra programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO for list of company.

Manager A. M. Palmer wires that Salvini's term at Palmer's Theatre will begin October 7th, and that he will be supported by May Brooklyn, Virginia Buchanan, Annie O'Neil, Genevieve Beaman, John Malone, Carl Ahrendt, L. F. Henderson, Fred Corlett, E. E. Delemater, A. Foster, E. L. Spader, G. C. Robinson and Edmund Day. On the off nights Alexander Salvini will appear.

A new "Uncle Tom" play, called "The Beautiful Slave," will be produced at Philadelphia Sept. 2nd.

It is estimated that 1500 native actors are now idle in New York without any prospect of being employed, while a couple of hundred English actors will land in that city within the next two months.

Florence St. John, in "Faust Up to Date" will appear at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., December 9th.

Manager A. M. Palmer has engaged Mr. and Mrs. William Stuart, leading man and leading lady, for the principal characters in "Marchande de Sourires." This is a strong society play of Japanese life and manners. [Not so unsavory as the French society plays, we hope.]

Lydia Thompson is talking about bidding farewell to the stage. Don't talk of it. Do it!

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

"Conflict" has its last performance at the Baldwin Friday night. Miss Coghlan will appear in her original creation of Stephanie in "Forget-Me-Not" on Saturday night.

"The Stowaway," that comes to the California Sept. 2nd, brings two reformed burglars in its company, McCoy and Heenessey, who are experts at safe-cracking. One of the sensations is the manner in which they open a safe on the stage.

Margaret Mather opens at the Baldwin Monday night in Juliet.

A double-header — the two packed houses at Wednesday matinee and in the evening at the Bush.

"Bootle's Baby" is getting healthier; it is now credited with being a "success" at the Madison Square Theatre by some of the New York papers.

"The White Elephant" and the "Lion and the Lamb" are like other menagerie stock—laid up for the Winter.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knock-about comedians, appear at the Bella Union next week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam next week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Clair, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne next week.

Hopper & Hall, a clever sketch team, Miss Ida Conway and Miss Berth Weston are the new cards at Burns & Trayers' Theatre Comique this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The name of the man who invented the tin horn is not known, so he may escape punishment on earth, but it is soothing to know he cannot dodge the balance-sheet of eternal justice.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies will close on Sunday night a splendid two-weeks' business at the Bush, in "The Burglar;" a strong and refined play, notwithstanding its theme and title. Even the famed burglar's scene is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

We have already credited Mr. Grismer and Phœbe Davies for the good work they do in their new play, and noticed the efficient support rendered.

Little Laura Crews faced the burglar as Editha on Thursday evening, and sustained the interest of the part with great credit to herself. She will be the Editha for Sunday night, Mabel Bowman playing Saturday night.

"The Burglar" continues to draw good houses. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences still give "The Burglar" a good name.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme and is very amusing.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies, and are credited with being "five of the prettiest girls on the stage."

This farce-comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

"The City Directory" bids fair to equal the success of "The Burglar." The piece is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first-class.

Alcazar Theatre.

Edward Harrigan closes the last nights of his fine eight-weeks engagement at the Alcazar with a reproduction of "Old Lavender. In the title-role Mr. Harrigan is inimitable. The play has many good characters, all well sustained by the company, and as a dramatic work ranks as his best and most popular piece.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey have the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, opened at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, James Black, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist; Rob't Harrison, eccentric comedian, and others.

Arrangements have been made with J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yo-Semite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum next week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastorial and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings must prove very interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple — Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Monday night, albeit it is a bad night for Morosco's, showed the immense auditorium well filled with the steady patrons of this east side house.

The popular sensational life-drama, in prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. B. Brooke, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme announcement.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam next week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces this week.

Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here next week.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Aimont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards next week at the Cremorne. Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Elna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton-Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous Davenport Bros.' rope-tying cabinet feat.

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies will close on Sunday night a splendid two-weeks business at the Bush, in "The Burglar;" a strong and refined play, notwithstanding its theme and title. Even the famed burglar's scene is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright, innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

We have already credited Mr Grismer and Phoebe Davies for the good work they do in their new play, and noticed the efficient support rendered.

Little Laura Crews faced the burglar as Editha on Thursday evening, and sustained the interest of the part with great credit to herself. She will be the Editha for Sunday night, Mabel Bowman playing Saturday night.

"The Burglar" continues to draw good houses. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences still give "The Burglar" a good name.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme and is very amusing.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies, and are credited with being "five of the prettiest girls on the stage."

This farce comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S Mullaly, well known here composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

"The City Directory" bids fair to equal the success of "The Burglar." The piece is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first class.

Alcazar Theatre.

Edward Harrigan closes the last nights of his fine eight weeks engagement at the Alcazar with a reproduction of "Old Lavender. In the title-role Mr. Harrigan is inimitable. The play has many good characters, all well sustained by the company, and as a dramatic work ranks as his best and most popular piece.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmonre, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey have the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder that he must be as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new appropriations that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Hoot Mac," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, opened at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, James Black, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist; Rob't Harrison, eccentric comedian, and others.

Arrangements have been made with J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yo-Semite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum next week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastoral and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings must prove very interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale, beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction will be Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Monday night, albeit it is a bad night for Morosco's, showed the immense auditorium well filled with the steady patrons of this east side house.

The popular sensational life-drama, in prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. R. Brooks, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme announcement.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam next week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here next week.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards next week at the Cremorne. Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Elna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Laura Manning, Mr. May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Stella Walton, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woodstella Merriam, Wm. Behren, James Post, Geo. Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous Davenport Bros.' rope-tying cabin feat.

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Robt. M Eberle leaves us after twenty years unexceptional work—from the commencement of the old California Theatre's era—as the drilled mind that directed most of the plays produced at that house, and subsequently at the Baldwin Theatre. As a stage manager he has had no equal in California. He goes East to take the stage management of the Booth-Modjeska Company. For details of his testimonial benefit at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday see amusement notice on another page.

'A Woman of the People," a strong melodrama, is next week's bill at Moroco's, the popular people's theatre on the East side of town.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street near Market, will be a marked feature of next week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

Every seat was sold at the matinee at the Bush to-day, and Manager Gottlob dispensed with the usual orchestral services and filled the orchestra chairs with ladies.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the giant peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, of mountain glaciers and canyons, of gold and silver mining, and of the pastoral vallies and city scenes of our great state, will be a big feature of the Orpheum attraction next week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state or commonwealth in the world. Mr. Hutchings will give brief descriptions of the scenes.

Kellar, the magician, opens his season at Chicago on Sept. 15th. His route is solidly booked until May 1st. After a few weeks' rest he opens at the Bijou Theatre, New York, on June 2nd, 1890, for twelve weeks.

Edwin Mayo, Frank Mayo's son, opened his season at the People's Theatre, New York, this week, in "The Silver Age."

They have a new Editha, in "The Burglar," at the Bush, Laura Clews, who sustained the part very cleverly on Thursday night, and will play Editha on Sunday, the last night of "The Burglar."

Hammerstein's Harlem Theatre will be ready for opening on September 2nd, and among the attractions booked are Booth and Modjeska, Fanny Davenport, Marie Wainwright, W. H. Crane and Stuart Robson.

Lotta will not travel professionally during the coming season.

Henry Carl Vanderlube, known on the stage as Henry Carl Lewis, was lately held in the Yorkville Police Court in $1,000 bail on the charge of abandoning his wife, Louise St. Quintin, of Dixey's company. [Poor fellow! His fate was St. Quintin before he was tried.]

Fanny Davenport will open her Eastern season in Rochester, November 7th.

Bronson Howard's "Henrietta" and "Shenandoah" are both to be produced in London next Winter.

Blanch Mellon is 'at liberty." She has severed her connection with the Karl Gardner company, and also with her husband, Neil Florence.

Henrietta Crosman has signed a three-years contract with Augustin Daly, having been released from her engagement with Frederick Warde.

Nat C. Goodwin has filed his answer to Irene Ackerman's claim to the copyright of "A Gold Mine," which he asserts is the work of Brander Matthews and Geo. H. Jessop.

Duncan B. Harrison's "Paymaster" Co. has not closed its season, as reported.

Adelaide Moore has engaged an American company to support her in "The Love Story." As Adelaide is more than pretty, she found no difficulty in getting a leading support to play with her in the "Love Story."

Margaret Mather opens at the Baldwin

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends.

Rehearsals of "Hands Across the Sea" are now in progress at the Standard Theatre, N. Y. The new play will be given its first American production Aug. 31st in Philadelphia, and on Sept. 16th will be seen in New York. Manager Gustave Kahn has engaged a strong company, including W. J. Ferguson, Gustavus Levick, John C. Buckstone, William H. Wallis, Joseph Adelman, J. R. Furlong, William Nolan, Alois Booth, Edna Carey, Percy Haswell and Lizzie Scanlan. Mr. Pettit, the author, comes from London to superintend its production.

"Clover" has rounded its 100th performance at Palmer's Theatre, New York, and is still in the blossom of popularity.

Manager Frederick W. Bert has engaged the "Whirlwinds of the Desert," four Arabs, for his "Lost in Africa."

The rooster of "Kajanka" will fight the clown, and when the clown is knocked out he jumps upon the prostrate form of his human foe and crows.

Barry & Fay take possession of the Park, formerly Harrigan's Theatre, New York, in September, and are to continue there as long as it pays. They will be seen in "McKenna's Flirtation" and in a new comedy by J. J. McNally, entitled 'Little Lord McElroy." Mr. Wm. M. Dunlevy is their manager.

The Grismer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma week of August 26th; Marysville, week of Sept. 2nd; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

The Hanlons have put up a large building at Cohasset, Mass., in which to construct and rehearse their new pieces. It has all the appointments of a theatre. It is size is 80x100. 65 feet high, and is supplied with a huge paint-frame. The building will be put to many uses, including storage, etc. Professional people who have had some experience in Hanlon's way of breaking them in for their acrobatic business call this building 'Hanlon's Cohasset Bone Breaker."

John Allen, one of our pioneer leaders, goes as leader with Frank Tannehill, J.'s play, 'Bric-a-Brac," this season. By the way, John's four pretty daughters—three of them San Francisco girls—the Allen Sisters, have left both Kiralfys. Two of them go with Leavitt and two with "Kajanka" this season.

The New York Dramatic News says: "George Osbourne will probably take up his permanent residence in New York city. He is desirous of becoming a partner in some first-class amusement enterprise, and is on the lookout for a proper investment." Mr. Osbourne is one of the best actors and stage directors, and there should be a very desirable place for him among the entertainers of the East.

The Webster-Brady "After Dark' Co. opened its season at Bridgeport. "She," under the control of the same management, will fill a week's engagement at Miner's People's Theatre, opening Sept 9th. Tois will be the first appearance of the Webster-Brady "She" in New York.

W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, is back from Europe.

A New York journal informs us that, "Miss Rose Coghlan has made a genuine success at the Baldwin Theatre in San Francisco in 'Jocelyn.' The popular actress is drawing large audiences and is being enthusiastically received nightly." Good!

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush next week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See extra programme announcement elsewhere in FIGARO for list of company.

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

"The Stowaway," that comes to the California Sept. 2nd, brings two reformed burglars in its company, McCoy and Hennessey, who are experts at safe-cracking. One of the sensations is the manner in which they open a safe on the stage.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union next week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam next week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Clair, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne next week.

Hopper & Hall, a clever sketch team, Miss Ida Conway and Miss Berth Weston are the new cards at Burns & Trayers' Theatre Comique this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do

Col. W. H Menton, acting traveling and passenger agent of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad, has been appointed assistant general passenger agent of the company. The appointment was made by General Manager H. C. Whiting, and goes into effect at once. His popularity and efficiency won the promotion.

The steamer Tamalpais will make her usual Sunday excursion to-morrow to Mare Island, Vallejo, Crockett and return. The excursion will be under the management of P. H. Hink, which insures its success.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquenez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpias leaves Sausalito ferry at 10.15 A.M., and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P.M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music. The comfort of the excursions, under the management of P. H. Hink will be properly looked after.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies will close on Sunday night a splendid two-weeks' business at the Bush, in "The Burglar;" a strong and refined play, notwithstanding its theme and title. Even the famed burglar's scene is charming in its handling and sentiment. The contrasts of bright innocent childhood touching the hardened nature of man appeals to the audience with more sympathetic power than anything "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presents. In fact, "The Burglar" is more than the equal of its aristocratic colleague as a play in clever construction, terseness of language and vital interest.

We have already credited Mr Grismer and Phoebe Davies for the good work they do in their new play, and noticed the efficient support rendered.

Little Laura Crews faced the burglar as Editha on Thursday evening, and sustained the interest of the part with great credit to herself. She will be the Editha for Sunday night, Mabel Bowman playing Saturday night.

"The Burglar" continues to draw good houses. The success of the play wins generous applause and recalls, and both manager and audiences still give "The Burglar" a good name.

—o—

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the stage next week in another new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme and is very amusing.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company, W. F. Mack who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous, he was the original William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Chas. Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star in the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Castoo Opera Companies, and are credited with being "five of the prettiest girls on the stage."

This farce-comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

"The City Directory" bids fair to equal the success of "The Burglar." The piece is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first class.

Alcazar Theatre.

Edward Harrigan closes the last nights of his fine eight-weeks engagement at the Alcazar with a reproduction of "Old Lavender." In the title-role Mr. Harrigan is inimitable. The play has many good characters, all well sustained by the company, and as a dramatic work ranks as his best and most popular piece.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens on Monday with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cleves, Louis Bennison, Leo Cooper, Miss Emily Wermett, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Edi.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey have the stage of the California this week in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy—its fourth visit to San Francisco—interpreted by two clever comedians who have made themselves welcome visitors repeatedly to every section of the Union. "The Parlor Match" was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Jollity and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an inimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

Grand Opera House—Eberle's Benefit.

Robert M. Eberle's friends will tender him a farewell testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, prior to his going East to assume the stage directorship of the Booth-Modjeska Company. The talented young gentlemen amateurs, who owe so much to his instruction, and who have carried themselves so creditably before the public on more than one occasion, will unite in performing "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Richard M. Hotaling whose excellent personage of Richelieu at the same theatre last year is remembered, will assume the role of Shylock, and the other names in the cast are Messrs. John J. Housman, W. H. Hallett, Percy Garvey, Harry Blinn, George Patterson, E. B. McCormick, Miss Della McQuade, Miss Oliver and Miss Maltman.

The benefit will draw a good deal of society influence to its aid.

Orpheum Opera House.

This week, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, opened at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, James Black, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Lena Hoffmann, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist; Rob't Harrison, eccentric comedian, and others.

Arrangements have been made with J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yo-Semite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum next week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastoral and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings must prove very interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for the week of August 26th, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

This week's attraction has been Jas. Carden's powerful emotional drama, in 4 acts, entitled "My Kingdom," with Chas. Chapelle, Darrell Vinton, James Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes divided into four episodes. The first act shows us the sweet Love condition; the second happy Matrimony; the third bitter Estrangement, and the fourth forgiving Reconciliation.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

The popular sensational life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There is almost a new company this week, consisting of Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, G. B. Brooks, Gibbons & Ford, Laura Huget and Brown & Mason—all first appearances.

In addition there remain Alexd. Davis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam next week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor, and Jessie Forrester are the new faces this week.

The laughable burletta by George Drew and Taylor Jahmes, entitled "Ordinary Conversation," will be given every evening.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London, Flora Hastings and the reigning favorites are retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here next week.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Five new stars appear at the Cremorne this week. They are Gibson & Boyle, acrobatic song and dance artists; Kittie King, the petite song and dance artist; the banjo king, Charles Morrell, and Miss Belle Almont, vocalist.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Carrie Monroe, Ruby Grant, Annie Clifton, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Charles Boyle's comedy, "Papa's Coachman," will be produced every evening, besides all the specialty talent enumerated.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards next week at the Cremorne. Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces this week and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "The Elixer of Life," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "Commission Merchant," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Elna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Stella Merriam, the popular balladist, puts in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, [illegible] May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woodward, Wm. Behren, James Post, G. [illegible] McDonald make up the com[illegible]

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY.....AUGUST 26, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"Bootle's Baby" is getting healthier; it is now credited with being a "success" at the Madison Square Theatre by some of the New York papers.

Robt. M Eberle leaves us after twenty years unexceptional work—from the commencement of the old California Theatre's era—as the drilled mind that directed most of the plays produced at that house, and subsequently at the Baldwin Theatre. As a stage manager he has had no equal in California. He goes East to take the stage management of the Booth-Modjeska Company. For details of his testimonial benefit at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday see amusement notice on another page.

"A Woman of the People," a strong melodrama, is this week's bill at Morosco's, the popular people's theatre on the East side of town.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street near Market, will be a marked feature of this week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

Every seat was sold at the matinee at the Bush Saturday, and Manager Gottlob filled the orchestra chairs with ladies.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the giant peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, of mountain glaciers and canyons, of gold and silver mining, and of the pastoral vallies and city scenes of our great state, will be a big feature of the Orpheum attrac on this week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state or commonwealth in the world. Mr. Hutchings will give brief descriptions of the scenes.

Kellar, the magician, opens his season at Chicago on Sept. 15th. His route is solidly booked until May 1st. After a few weeks' rest he opens at the Bijou Theatre, New York, on June 2nd, 1890, for twelve weeks.

Edwin Mayo, Frank Mayo's son, opened his season at the People's Theatre, New York, this week, in "The Silver Age."

Hammerstein's Harlem Theatre will be ready for opening on September 2nd, and among the attractions booked are Booth and Modjeska, Fanny Davenport, Marie Wainwright, W. H. Crane and Stuart Robson.

Lotta will not travel professionally during the coming season.

Henry Carl Vanderlubt, known on the stage as Henry Carl Lewis, was lately held in the Yorkville Police Court in $1,000 bail on the charge of abandoning his wife, Louise St. Quintin, of Daly's company. [Poor fellow! His fate was St. Quintin before he was tried.]

Fanny Davenport will open her Eastern season in Rochester, November 7th.

Effie Ellsler's "Governess" begins the season at Evansville, Ind., Sept 2nd.

Ullie Akerstrom's "Annette" did not please the Chicagoans.

Blanch Mellon is "at liberty." She has severed her connection with the Karl Gardner company, and also with her husband, Neil Florence.

Henrietta Crosman has signed a three-years contract with Augustin Daly, having been released from her engagement with Frederick Warde.

Nat C. Goodwin has filed his answer to Irene Ackerman's claim to the copyright of "A Gold Mine," which he asserts is the work of Brander Matthews and Geo. H. Jessop.

Duncan B. Harrison's "Paymaster" Co. has not closed its season, as reported.

Adelaide Moore has engaged an American company to support her in "The Love Story." As Adelaide is more than pretty, she found no difficulty in getting leading support to play with her in the "Love Story."

"The Stowaway," that comes to the California Sept. 2nd, brings two reformed burglars in its company, McCoy and Hennessey, who are experts at safe-cracking. One of the sensations is the manner in which they open a safe on the stage.

One of the tenderest and most lasting attachments was that existing between Roland Reed and Alice Hastings. It endured through many years. Among the new monuments erected in Mount Vernon Cemetery is one particularly noticeable for its unique design as well as for its costliness. It is a mass of rugged granite, whose base is polished. On this lies a heavy cross entwined with forget-me-nots. On the face of the monument is a life-size medallion of her who sleeps beneath. The whole is in an enclosure of six hundred feet blooming with shrubbery and vines. The erection of this superb monument evinces Roland Reed's regard for the memory of one he loved so well in life—Alice Hastings.

It is probable that Manager Gus Amberg will transfer his German company from his Irving Place to his Thalia Theatre, New York, this season, and that Harrigan's company will occupy the first named house.

Manager R. E. J. Miles, of Cincinnati, has purchased Rice's "Pearl of Pekin."

Jank Hoe, the Japanese juggler at the Union Square, N. Y., is an Italian and his assistant is said to have been born within hearing of London's "Bow" bells.

Margaret Mather opens at the Baldwin to-night in Juliet.

The Hanlons' "Fantasma" company open their season Sept. 2nd, in Lynn, Mass. Two weeks later the Hanlons send out another company giving the same performance. The scenery, costumes and properties used by both organizations will be an exact duplicate. Ninety people will be employed.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends.

Rehearsals of "Hands Across the Sea" are now in progress at the Standard Theatre, N. Y. The new play will be given its first American production Aug. 31st in Philadelphia, and on Sept. 16th will be seen in New York. Manager Gustave Kahn has engaged a strong company, including W. J. Ferguson, Gustavus Levick, John C. Buckstone, William H. Wallis, Joseph Adelman, J. R. Furlong, William Nolan, Alois Booth, Edna Carey, Percy Haswell and Lizzie Scanlan. Mr. Pettit, the author, comes from London to superintend its production.

Manager Frederick W. Bert has engaged the "Whirlwinds of the Desert," four Arabs, for his "Lost in Africa."

"Clover" has rounded its 100th performance at Palmer's Theatre, New York, and is still in the blossom of popularity.

Barry & Fay take possession of the Park, formerly Harrigan's Theatre, New York, in September, and are to continue there as long as it pays. They will be seen in "McKenna's Flirtation" and in a new comedy by J. J. McNally, entitled "Little Lord McElroy." Mr. Wm. M. Dunlevy is their manager.

The Grismer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma for the present week; Marysville, week of Sept. 2nd; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

The Hanlons have put up a large building at Cohasset, Mass., in which to construct and rehearse their new pieces. It has all the appointments of a theatre. Its size is 80x100, 65 feet high, and is supplied with a huge paint-frame. The building will be put to many uses, including storage, etc. Professional people who have had some experience in Hanlon's way of breaking them in for their acrobatic business call this building "Hanlon's Cohasset Bone Breaker."

John Allen, one of our pioneer leaders, goes as leader with Frank Tannehill, J.'s play, "Bric-a-Brac," this season. By the way, John's four pretty daughters—three of them San Francisco girls—the Allen Sisters, have left both Kiralfys. Two of them go with Leavitt and two with "Kajanka" this season.

The New York Dramatic News says: "George Osbourne will probably take up his permanent residence in New York city. He is desirous of becoming a partner in some first-class amusement enterprise, and is on the lookout for a proper investment." Mr. Osbourne is one of the best actors and stage directors, and there should be a very desirable place for him among the entertainers of the East.

The Webster-Brady "After Dark" Co. opened its season at Bridgeport. "She," under the control of the same management will fill a week's engagement at Miner's People's Theatre, opening Sept 9th. This will be the first appearance of the Webster-Brady "She" in New York.

W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, is back from Europe.

A New York journal informs us that, "Miss Rose Coghlan has made a genuine success at the Baldwin Theatre in San Francisco in 'Jocelyn.' The popular actress is drawing large audiences and is being enthusiastically received nightly." Good!

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush this week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See programme announcement in FIGARO for list of Co.

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knock-about comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam next week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Clair, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

Col. W. H. Menton, acting traveling and passenger agent of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad, has been appointed assistant general passenger agent of the company. The appointment was made by General Manager H. C. Whiting, and goes into effect at once. His popularity and efficiency won the promotion.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the Bush's stage this week in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme and is very amusing.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies, and are credited with being "five of the prettiest girls on the stage."

This farce-comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

"The City Directory" bids fair to equal the success of "The Burglar." The piece is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first-class.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

"Gwynn's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, will be next week's bill.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey are in their last week at the California in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy. It was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an inimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and new "appropriations" that add to its fun and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

"The Stowaway," a stirring melodrama and Eastern success, takes the stage of the California next week.

Grand Opera House—Eberle's Benefit.

Robert M. Eberle's friends will tender him a farewell testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, prior to his going East to assume the stage directorship of the Booth-Modjeska Company. The talented young gentlemen amateurs, who owe so much to his instruction, and who have carried themselves so creditably before the public on more than one occasion will unite in performing "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Richard M. Hotaling, whose excellent personage of Richelieu at the same theatre last year is remembered, will assume the role of Shylock, and the other names in the cast are Messrs. John J. Housman, W. H. Hallett, Percy Garvey, Harry Blinn, George Patterson, E. B. McCormick, Miss Della McCarle, Miss Oliver and Miss Maltman.

The benefit will draw a good deal of society influence to its aid.

Orpheum Opera House.

Arrangements have been made with Col. J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yosemite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastorial and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings must prove very interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill this week.

In addition, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, continue at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist, and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that will be given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The management announce that the exhibition will consist of over 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices will rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, is this week's bill, with Jas. Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes. The prologue opens in Paris, the first act transpires in Australia, and the last three in England.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Byner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nesteil looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, August 25th, grand picnic of the Cremorne Benevolent Society at Seaside Gardens.

Excursion to Vallejo and Wheatport Sunday.

The steamer Tamalpais will make excursions to Wheatport, or the Straits of Carquinez on Sundays, hereafter, in place of Martinez, landing at Vallejo going and returning. Wheatport is the new town between Vallejo Junction and Port Costa. Accommodations will be provided at its hotel. Its town hall will be tendered for dancing to the excursionists, and a general reception will be offered, including the fine fishing privileges from its wharves, where fish bite with avidity and big catches are the rule. The Tamalpais leaves Sausalito ferry at 10.15 A M. and returning, leaves Wheatport at 4 P.M.; Vallejo at 4.30, arriving in this city before 7 P. M. Single fares to Vallejo, 50 cents. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children, half-price. The U.S. First Infantry Band will furnish the music.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Charlie Reed at the Bush, and E. J. Buckley, Miss Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell at the Alcazar, old-time and worthy favorites, were honored with hearty and prolonged welcomes on their reappearances on Monday night. Every seat was occupied in both theatres.

Mr. Alf. Ellinghouse takes the position of treasurer of the Alcazar Theatre on Monday. The present treasurer, Mr. Sol Bloom, returning East to accept a position which has been offered him.

The sale of seats, at Sherman & Clay's, for the performance of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night, as a farewell testimonial to Robert M. Eberle, is very large. The house will be largely filled with society people.

The opening exercises of the Mechanics' Fair came off this afternoon at the Grand Opera House. The fair throws its Pavilion doors open to-night.

Mr. Ben Cotton and wife and his daughter Idalene go East next month, principally to find a play suitable for his talented daughter to star in. We hear a farewell testimonial will materialize to the Cottons before their departure, tendered by their many friends.

The Press Club has taken a $25 box for Robt. M. Eberle's benefit at the Grand to-morrow night. The best-looking members will be given the front chairs.

It is a question in those who know Joseph Murphy best whether he is best at fishing or acting that has not yet been decided, as he fills his net equally in both avocations. He will switch off at Truckee on his way East to devote a few days to his loved sport at Lake Tahoe in capturing the mountain trout that that grand lake is famed for. He has our address.

Adelaide Thornton has been engaged for "Lord Chumley" at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y.

Manager Charles Pope, of St. Louis, a stage veteran, has been appointed U. S. Consul at Toronto, Canada.

Miss Victory Bateman is shortly to become Mrs. Wilfred Clarke. This actor is a son of John S. Clarke, the comedian.

Marie Gordon, widow of the late John T. Raymond, is about to be married in London to the private secretary of Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

"Bootle's Baby" is getting healthier; it is now credited with being a "success" at the Madison Square Theatre by some of the New York papers.

Robt. M. Eberle leaves us after twenty years unexceptional work—from the commencement of the old California Theatre's era—as the drilled mind that directed most of the plays produced at that house, and subsequently at the Baldwin Theatre. As a stage manager he has had no equal in California. He goes East to take the stage management of the Booth-Modjeska Company. For details of his testimonial benefit at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday see amusement notice on another page.

"A Woman of the People," a strong melodrama, is this week's bill at Morosco's, the popular people's theatre on the East side of town.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street near Market, will be a marked feature of this week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the giant peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, of mountain glaciers and canyons, of gold and silver mining, and of the pastoral vallies and city scenes of our great state, will be a big feature of the Orpheum attraction this week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state or commonwealth in the world. Mr. Hutchings will give brief descriptions of the scenes.

Fanny Davenport will open her Eastern season in Rochester, November 7th.

Effie Ellsler's "Governess" begins the season at Evansville, Ind., Sept. 2nd.

Ned Thorne, the actor, did not sail for New York, via Panama, as we announced last week. His starring seasons have not been successes either in the East or here lately, and he had secretly laid his plans to visit Australia, with a stock of several plays to act in. Having no cash capital he used strategy in procuring his plays, and it is said took with him copies of several dramas—but he did not take "Siberia" to accompany his "Black Flag." As he was leaving on the Australian steamer on Saturday John M. Chretien, the attorney, acting for the copyright owners of Bartley Campbell's play, "Siberia," on this coast, rushed down to the steamer and made Mr. Thorne return a copy of that play which he alleged Mr. Thorne obtained from him by misrepresentation. Discovering after the steamer had left the wharf that there was one act still retained he had an officer go out to the anchored steamer and procure the missing Siberian link.

Ambroise Thomas has begun to work at "Circe," the new opera he is writing for the Opera Comique, the libretto for which has been furnished by Jules Barbier. The time of action is about 1809, and the scene is laid in Spain. Circe, the heroine, is a Spanish spy, whose fascinations, like those of her mythical prototype, are alluring.

Barnum and Bailey have arranged with Imre Kiralfy to produce his spectacle, "The Fall of Babylon," in conjunction with their great show to be given in London.

The variety contortionist, "Ajax," was killed by a railroad accident at Millboro, N. Y., recently. His proper name was Frank Maguire.

William H. Schultz an old and well known actor, died in Philadelphia recently.

Le Clair and Leslie, variety performers, are back from Liverpool.

This time it is Madeleine Ingelow, a wealty Southern belle, who will attempt to elevate the drama under Gustave Frohman's leadership.

Katie Putnam will return from her Australian tour in October to begin her season in San Francisco in November.

The Australian melodrama, "His Natural Life," had its first production in Boston on the 26th.

The heroine in "The Marquess," just produced at the Opera Comique, requires nearly half an hour for her death scene at the close of the play.

The Norcross Opera Company and "The Pretty Persian" have already come to grief. The company disbanded in Chicago after playing a week.

A Swedish scientist has advanced the idea that the stage of theatres should be built on wheels so as to be pushed away in the event of fire. This would be practical if theatres were located in the center of prairies.

One of the tenderest and most lasting attachments was that existing between Roland Reed and Alice Hastings. It endured through many years. Among the new monuments erected in Mount Vernon Cemetery is one particularly noticeable for its unique design as well as for its costliness. It is a mass of rugged granite, whose base is polished. On this lies a heavy cross entwined with forget-me-nots. On the face of the mounument is a life-size medallion of her who sleeps beneath. The whole is in an enclosure of six hundred feet blooming with shrubbery and vines. The erection of this superb monument evinces Roland Reed's regard for the memory of one he loved so well in life—Alice Hastings.

It is probable that Manager Gus Amberg will transfer his German company from his Irving Place to his Thalia Theatre, New York, this season, and that Harrigan's company will occupy the first named house.

Manager R. E. J. Miles, of Cincinnati, has purchased Rice's "Pearl of Pekin."

Jank Hoy, the Japanese juggler at the Union Square, N. Y., is an Italian and his assistant is said to have been born within hearing of London's "Bow" bells.

Margaret Mather opens at the Baldwin tonight in Juliet.

The Hanlons' "Fantasma" company open their season Sept. 2nd, in Lynn, Mass. Two weeks later the Hanlons send out another company giving the same performance. The scenery, costumes and properties used by both organizations will be an exact duplicate. Ninety people will be employed.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends.

"Clover" has rounded its 100th performance at Palmer's Theatre, New York, and is still in the blossom of popularity.

The Grismer combination play the principal county fairs: At Petaluma for the present week; Marysville, week of Sept. 2nd; Sacramento, Sept. 9th, for two weeks; Stockton, week of Sept. 23d; San Jose, week of Sept. 30th.

W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, is back from Europe.

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush this week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See programme announcement in FIGARO for list of Co.

The Grismer-Davies repertoire for their interior season will be "The Burglar," "The Tigress," "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax."

Edwin Mayo, Frank Mayo's son, opened his season at the People's Theatre, New York, this week, in "The Silver Age."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Clair, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Veteran Firemen of California and their friends will have a reunion and a four-days excursion to Santa Cruz, by invitation of the Mayor and citizens of that city, on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of September. It will be made eminently social by the citizens, and the freedom of the city will be granted to excursionists. Fare for the round trip only $3.

Steamer James M. Donahue will leave Tiburon ferry, Market street wharf, at 7.30 A. M., and connect with train at Point Tiburon for Ukiah, giving excursionists a view of the beautiful Sonoma, Healdsburg Cloverdale, Sanel and Ukiah valleys, passing Squaw rock and along the banks of the beautiful Russian river. Arriving at Ukiah at 11.45 A. M. Excursionists will be given four hours time to visit the world-renowned Vichy Springs, located two and one-half miles from Ukiah, the waters of which are famous the world over. An opportunity will also be given to visit the only Indian rancheria left in California. Returning—Train will leave Ukiah at 4 P. M., and arrive in San Francisco at 7.30 P. M. Tickets for the round trip, only $3. Children, under 12 years, half price.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company take the Bush's stage this week in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, bright, and amusing order, and the company is first-class.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. He is ably assisted by John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

The piece abounds in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. Miss May Yohe, a lively, breezy actress, has a remarkable contralto, and the other ladies of the company appear to great advantage in the concerted numbers, especially in "The Old Love Still" in the second act. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

This farce-comedy was written by Paul M. Potter, for many years the dramatic critic of the New York Herald, and at present on the Chicago Tribune. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

The theatre was crowded in all three circles.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors," opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded," the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmoure, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss A. a Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

The special feature of the performance was the appearance of Miss Morris in the part of the heroine, Francesca Remini, which she sustains with great force and feeling, and in Mr. Buckley, Sidney Norcott, rendered with manly strength and impressiveness. Stockwell in his eccentric character of Franklin Fitts makes his part tell with the audience in a noted degree, and the mounting and support of the play are unusually good.

"The Galley Slave" is only allotted this week, "Gwynn's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, will be next week's bill.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey are in their last week at the California in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy. It was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey, who steals a hot stove with the coolest nonchalance, and chalks $3 all over the furniture as a gentle reminder of the little sum that is owed to him in an intimitable manner. Miss Minnie French, as the Innocent Kidd, is as lively as ever in acting and dancing.

The play has new incidents, new songs, and make it more amusing than ever. Hoey's topical song, "Good-Bye," is very racy, and the French Sisters have a notable new number in "Strolling Through Green Fields."

It is drawing full houses.

"The Stowaway," a stirring melodrama and Eastern success takes the stage of the California next week.

Grand Opera House—Eberle's Benefit.

Robert M. Eberle's friends will tender him a farewell testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, prior to his going East to assume the stage directorship of the Booth-Modjeska Company. The talented young gentlemen amateurs, who owe so much to his instruction, and who have carried themselves so creditably before the public on more than one occasion, will unite in performing "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Richard M. Hotaling whose excellent personage of Richelieu at the same theatre last year is remembered, will assume the role of Shylock, and the other names in the cast are Messrs. John J. Housman, W. H. Hallett, Percy Garvey, Harry Blinn, George Patterson, E. B. McCormick, Miss Della McQuade, Miss Oliver and Miss Maltman.

The benefit will draw a good deal of society influence to its aid.

Orpheum Opera House.

Arrangements have been made with Col. J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yosemite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastorial and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings proves most interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill this week.

In addition, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, continue at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist, and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that is given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The exhibition consists 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, is this week's bill, with Jas. Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes. The prologue opens in Paris, the first act transpires in Australia, and the last three in England.

The play is mounted in the usual careful manner that Manager Morosco is credited for and is well acted by his company.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make zling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahnes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Elma Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Cremorne Benevolent Society, consisting of the attaches and company of the Cremorne, organized for the purpose of guaranteeing sick-fund payments, has a picnic and entertainment at the Seaside Garden on Sunday.

Carroll Johnson, the minstrel, will make his debut in Irish character in "The Fairy's Well," at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, on Sept. 9th.

Zeltner and Pizzarello, clever clowns, have been engaged to do the "heavy business" in Hanlons' "Fantasma."

The Olympic, Harlem's new variety theatre, opened under the management of Donaldson & Donnelly. This is the old Mount Morris Theatre.

Ted D. Marks is back from England bringing with him twenty-four people of Herrmann's Transatlantiques and the American rights for no less than eight plays in his own name. "Maybe I have a opera. I've done something for myself, you see," says San Francisco Teddy.

The variety contortionist, "Ajax," was killed by a railroad accident at Millboro, N. Y., recently. His proper name was Frank Maguire.

Le Clair and Leslie, variety performers, are back from Liverpool.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Cree, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Wallerstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

Charlie Reed at the Bush, and E. J. Buckley, Miss Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell at the Alcazar, old-time and worthy favorites, were honored with hearty and prolonged welcomes on their reappearances on Monday night. Every seat was occupied in both theatres.

Mr. Alf. Ellinghouse takes the position of treasurer of the Alcazar Theatre on Monday. The present treasurer, Mr. Sol Bloom, returning East to accept a position which has been offered him.

Mr. Ben Cotton and wife and his daughter Idalene go East next month, principally to find a play suitable for his talented daughter to star in. We hear a farewell testimonial will materialize to the Cottons before their departure, tendered by their many friends.

The Press Club has taken a $25 box for Robt. M. Eberle's benefit at the Grand to-night. The best-looking members will be given the front chairs.

It is a question with those who know Joseph Murphy best whether he is best at fishing or acting that has not yet been decided, as he fills his net equally in both avocations. He will switch off at Truckee on his way East to devote a few days to his loved sport at Lake Tahoe in capturing the mountain trout that that grand lake is famed for. He has our address.

Adelaide Thornton has been engaged for "Lord Chumley" at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y.

Katie Putnam will return from her Australian tour in October to begin her season in San Francisco in November.

"A Woman of the People," a strong melodrama, is this week's bill at Morosco's, the popular people's theatre on the East side of town.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth street near Market, will be a marked feature of this week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

Manager Charles Pope, of St. Louis, a stage veteran, has been appointed U. S. [illegible]

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Bulletin says of "The City Directory": "An audience composed of the fashion and culture of the city assembled last evening at this popular place of amusement to witness the first performance of a new musical farce-comedy, entitled 'The City Directory.' The piece is billed 'for laughing purposes only,' and as it has a considerable quantity of mirth-provoking scenes and situations, the purpose of the author is obtained and the audience is satisfied. There is one thing that is far above what has been accustomed to be heard in many of the so-called farce-comedies which have inflicted theatre-goers for over three years, and that is the music. Not only are all the selections new, taking and catchy, but they are sung either individually or as ensemble in a manner which does credit to the managers for their selection of people with good voices. The leading soubrette (Miss May Yohe) is a splendid contralto, her range being very low, coupled with sweetness and power."

Clever and pretty Rachel Booth is reengaged for her old part of Jumpsey in "Natural Gas."

Arthur Rehan has at last received Augustin Daly's permission to play the entire country with his pieces, which of course includes the cities of Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, where he was denied the right to play heretofore. The admirable company engaged by Mr. Rehan has to a great extent brought this about.

The following is the roster of N. C. Goodwin's company: Paul Authur, R. G. Wilson, John Brown, Frederic Corbett, John E. Ince, Frank Morse, Isabella Coe, Mac Duffee, Lisette Le Baron and Camille Rush. John E. Warner, manager; George J. Appleton, business manager. The season will open in "A Gold Mine," at Toronto, Ont., Sept. 2nd. During the season "The Bookmaker" and "The Nominee" will be produced.

"The Stowaway," a stirring melodrama and Eastern success, with its sensational burglars and safe-breaking scene, has its first production on the coast at the California next week.

A letter from Butte City, Montana, states that Holmes Grover, a well known actor, died in that city. Mr. Grover has starred in his drama, "The Boy Detective," and other plays repeatedly in the minor theatres in all the cities on the coast. Though slight in figure, he had a strong voice and was a competent actor and stage manager. He comes of good dramatic stock, his father, Holmes Grover, Sr., having been a popular London actor. The deceased was a man of education and culture, a gentleman in deportment, and had many friends.

E. H. Sothern will play next Spring and Summer at the Criterion Theatre, London.

Thomas F. Shea, after eight years on the executive staff of Robson and Crane, goes with "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

The new Midland Theatre, Kansas City, Mo., will open with "Jed Prouty" on Sept. 1st.

James O. Barrows, the San Francisco actor, who is in demand East as a fine dialect comedian and character actor, will play the Irish Sergeant in "Shenandoah."

Ned Thorne, the actor, did not sail for New York, via Panama, as we announced last week. His starring seasons have not been successes either in the East or here lately, and he had secretly laid his plans to visit Australia, with a stock of several plays to act in. Having no cash capital he used strategy in procuring his plays, and it is said took with him copies of several dramas—but he did not take "Siberia" to accompany his 'Black Flag." As he was leaving on the Australian steamer on Saturday John M. Chretien, the attorney, acting for the copyright owners of Bartley Campbell's play, "Siberia," on this coast, rushed down to the steamer and made Mr. Thorne return a copy of that play which he alleged Mr. Thorne obtained from him by misrepresentation. Discovering after the steamer had left the wharf that there was one act still retained he had an officer go out to the anchored steamer and procure the missing Siberian link.

Barnum and Bailey have arranged with Imre Kiralfy to produce his spectacle, "The Fall of Babylon," in conjunction with their great show to be given in London.

Marie Gordon, widow of the late John T. Raymond, is about to be married in London to the private secretary of Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

William H. Schultz, an old and well known actor, died in Philadelphia recently.

Ullie Akerstrom's "Annette" did not please the Chicagoans.

Effie Ellsler's "Governess" begins the season at Evansville, Ind., Sept. 2nd.

The heroine in "The Marquess," just produced at the Opera Comique, requires nearly half an hour for her death scene at the close of the play.

Miss Victory Bateman is shortly to become Mrs. Wilfred Clarke. This actor is a son of John S. Clarke, the comedian.

It is probable that Manager Gus Amberg will transfer his German company from his Irving Place to his Thalia Theatre, New York, this season, and that Harrigan's company will occupy the first named house.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends.

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush this week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See programme announcement.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the grand peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, of mountain glaciers and canyons, of gold and silver mining, and of the pastoral valleys and city scenes of our great state, will be a big feature of the Orpheum attraction this week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state or commonwealth in the world. Mr. Hutchings will give brief descriptions of the scenes.

Fanny Davenport will open her Eastern season in Rochester, November 7th.

The Veteran Firemen of California and their friends will have a reunion and a four-days excursion to Santa Cruz, by invitation of the Mayor and citizens of that city, on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of September. It will be made eminently social by the citizens, and the freedom of the city will be granted to excursionists. Fare for the round trip only $2.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company hold the Bush's stage this week in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. He is ably assisted by John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. Miss May Yohe, a lively, breezy actress, has a remarkable contralto, and the other ladies of the company appear to great advantage in the concerted numbers, especially in "The Old Love Still" in the second act. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted: Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The theatre was crowded in all three circles.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors" opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

The special feature of the performance is the appearance of Miss Morris in the part of the heroine, Francesca Remini, which she sustains with great force and feeling, and in Mr. Buckley, Sidney Norcott, rendered with manly strength and impressiveness. Stockwell in his eccentric character of Franklin Fitts makes his part tell with the audience in a noted degree, and the mounting and support of the play are unusually good.

"The Galley Slave" is only allotted this week, "Gwynn's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, will be next week's bill.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey are in their last week at the California in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy. It was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey; and its new songs and specialties give it a new flavor.

It is drawing good houses.

—o—

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California next week, seems to be a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen while doing penance and reformed. The management announce that the play will be put upon the stage, at the New California Theatre, with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production will be complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm. McVey and R. J. Moye.

Orpheum Opera House.

Arrangements have been made with Col. J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yosemite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastoral and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings proves most interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill this week.

In addition, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, continue at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist, and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple — Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that is given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition, Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The exhibition consist 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational life drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, is this week's bill, with Jas. Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes. The prologue opens in Paris, the first act transpires in Australia, and the last three in England.

The play is mounted in the usual careful manner that Manager Morosco is credited for and is well acted by his company.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Baldwin Theatre will be closed for two weeks, at the close of the Margaret Mather engagement, on September 7th.

Isabel Morris makes the central figure of 'The Galley Slave' very striking.

Virginia Marlowe in the Mather company is the daughter of the late Owen Marlowe.

John Gilbert is kept down, kind of subdued, as it were, in his old man's character in the "City Directory," but his humor flashes up brightly occasionally like a gas light reflection on his baldheaded wig.

Hattie Moore goes with Harrigan to take Mrs. Yeamans' place in his company. He also carried off Fanny Bowman as his soubrette.

Grismer will lay the foundation of his this year's season on "The Burglar" and "The Tigress," his new plays, and use his old ones, "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax," as cap stones.

Mr. Sol Bloom, who has been connected with the Alcazar since its opening, and is its present treasurer, has resigned to go East, where a lucrative position awaits him.

Emma Abbott begins her season Sept. 16th, in Cleveland, with 32 new dresses and an opera.

Eddy's New York Squib says: "Georgie Parker is not yet engaged as has been announced." That is consoling.

"The Lion and the Lamb" is being reconstructed and will go on the road in September. They have muzzled the lion and fattened the lamb.

Cora Van Tassell opens her season in Kansas City, Aug. 31st, as "The Little Sinner."

Miss Emma Juch, with an opera company, four Pullman cars, fifteen trunks, a maid, four baggage cars and a dresser, will begin a tour of the country shortly. Chas. H. Locke, the operatic barnacle, is manager.

W. J. Scanlan begins his season Sept. 2nd in Cleveland.

The Bulletin says of "The City Directory": "An audience composed of the fashion and culture of the city assembled last evening at this popular place of amusement to witness the first performance of a new musical farce-comedy, entitled 'The City Directory.' The piece is billed 'for laughing purposes only' and as it has a considerable quantity of mirth provoking scenes and situations, the purpose of the author is obtained and the audience is satisfied. There is one thing that is far above what has been accustomed to be heard in many of the so called farce-comedies which have filled our theatres for over three years, and that is the music. Not only are all the selections new, taking and catchy, but they are sung either individually or as ensemble in a manner which does credit to the managers for their selection of people with good voices. The leading soubrette (Miss May Yohe) is a splendid contralto, her range being very low, coupled with sweetness and power."

Mr. Ben Cotton and wife and his daughter Idalene go East next month, principally to find a play suitable for his talented daughter to star in. We hear a farewell testimonial will materialize to the Cottons before their departure, tendered by their many friends.

'A Woman of the People," a strong melodrama, is this week's bill at Morosco's, the popular people's theatre on the East side of town.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth St, near Market, has been a marked feature of this week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

Manager Charles Pope, of St. Louis, a stage veteran, has been appointed U. S. Consul at Toronto, Canada.

J. M. Hutchings' Pictorial California, a series of large first-class views of the Yosemite Valley, the giant peaks of the Sierra Nevadas, of big tree groves, etc., will be a big feature of the Orpheum attraction this week. Here will be presented before your eyes accurate counterparts of the wonders and glory of California—not equaled by those of any state [illegible] in the world. Mr.

May Yohe, in the "City Directory" cast, was a favorite of the New York dudedom.

Mr. Grismer took clever little Laura Crews with him as Editha for his interior season. Mabel Bowman's sister, Fanny, has gone East with Harrigan's company, and the little B. was not big enough to travel alone.

Ignacio Martinetti, of the "City Directory" Co., is one of the cleverest brisk comedians and the best and most graceful dancer on the stage. His poses are grace personified, and his triple aerial whirls are the champion pirouettes.

Is the Baldwin to go through another terra-cotta renovation?

The opening of "Kajanka" will show the Imp diving from the rigging loft into a cauldron of fire, six feet high, which is transformed into a star, eight feet high, from which the Fairy Queen appears.

Lawrence Barrett will be supported in his forthcoming production of "Ganelon" by Miss Minna Gale, Miss Minnie Monk, John A. Lane, Lawrence Hanley, J. J. Wallace, Charles Collins, Mark Lynch, Sydney Booth and others.

Manager Frederick W. Bert's spectacular melodrama, "Lost in Africa," is to be produced at the Windsor Theatre, N. Y., Sept. 2nd. A number of striking novelties are promised.

M. B. Leavitt has, East, only one company on the road this season. He will devote most of his time to the new spectacular pantomime burlesque, "Spider and the Fly," which will begin its season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 20th. Many novelties will be seen in this production.

The earlier openings of the New York theatres have proven quite successful. The domestic drama is presented by Miss Adelaide Moore with "The Love Story" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre; Eugene Tompkins revived "Mankind;" Herrmann's Transatlantics inaugurated the regular season at the Bijou, and "Antiope," at old time-honored Niblo's, introduced the Kiralfy spectacular in keeping with the traditions of the house. All the plays named were well received, and it now remains to be seen whether they will improve on acquaintance or fall behind in the race for popular appreciation. In "The Love Story," Miss Moore has surrounded herself with a company of excellent players, and though the play is not a great one it is sufficiently attractive to draw draw large audiences of people who like a well told story. Radically different from Miss Moore's domestic drama is "Mankind," the play which Mr. Rosenquest decided upon to open his Fourteenth street house. This work has many strong situations, and the story, though somewhat complicated, interests by reason of the way in which the plot is unraveled. W. H. Thompson has made a hit in the disagreeable part of Old Groodge. The Fourteenth St. Theatre never presented a brighter or prettier appearance than it does now in its new dress. At the Bijou Herrmann's Vaudeville Co. achieved a distinct triumph. The organization is a remarkably good one. The Kiralfys present a bewilderment of wonders in their new "Antiope."

"A Texas Steer," the piece written by Charles H. Hoyt for L. R. Stockwell, is considerably out of the line of farcical comedy with which Mr. Hoyt was identified prior to the production of "The Midnight Bell." There is no music in it, and there will be no specialties. The principal character is a bayseed Texan, who gets into funny complications in Washington. The piece is now about finished, and the manuscript will be placed in Mr. Stockwell's hands very shortly.

"The Stowaway," a stirring melodrama and Eastern success, with its sensational burglars and safe-breaking scene, has its first production on the coast at the California next week.

E. H. Sothern will play next Spring and Summer at the Criterion Theatre, London.

James O. Barrows, the San Francisco actor, who is in demand East as a fine dialect comedian and character actor, will play the Irish Sergeant in 'Shenandoah."

Marie Gordon, widow of the late John T. Raymond, is about to be married in London to the private secretary of Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

Miss Victory Bateman is shortly to become Mrs. Wilfred Clarke. This actor is a son of John S. Clarke, the comedian.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends. See announce programme in FIGARO.

"The City Directory," on the top wave of success in the East, comes to the Bush this week with a great company, including Charlie Reed. See programme in FIGARO.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Cremorne Benevolent Society, consisting of the attaches and company of the Cremorne, organized for the purpose of guaranteeing sick-fund payments, has a picnic and entertainment at the Seaside Garden on Sunday.

Carroll Johnson, the minstrel, will make his debut in Irish character in "The Fairy's Well," at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, on Sept. 9th.

Ted D. Marks is back from England bringing with him twenty-four people of Herrmann's Transatlantiques and the American rights for no less than eight plays in his own name. "Maybe I have an opera. I've done something for myself, you see," says San Francisco Teddy.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company hold the Bush's stage this week in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. He is ably assisted by John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. Miss May Yohe, a lively, breezy actress, has a remarkable contralto, and the other ladies of the company appear to great advantage in the concerted numbers, especially in "The Old Love Still" in the second act. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

"The City Directory" embraces the following list of popular talent in the company included in its roster of principal performers: John Gilbert, the comedian who headed the Gilbert, Donnelly & Girard combination; Ignacio Martinetti, the clever comedian of "Little Puck;" Harry Standish of the "Starlight" company; W. F. Mack, who made "Razzle Dazzle" famous—he was the original; William Collier, who was six years with Augustin Daly, and our own Charlie Reed, returning to us in one of its principal parts. W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The theatre was crowded in all three circles.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors," opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opens this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Elle.

The special feature of the performance is the appearance of Miss Morris in the part of the heroine, Francesca Remini, which she sustains with great force and feeling, and in Mr. Buckley, Sidney Norcott, rendered with manly strength and impressiveness. Stockwell in his eccentric character of Franklin Fitts makes his part tell with the audience in a noted degree, and the mounting and support of the play are unusually good.

"The Galley Slave" is only allotted this week, "Gwynn's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, will be next week's bill.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey are in their last week at the California in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy. It was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey; and its new songs and specialties give it a new flavor.

It is drawing good houses.

—o—

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California next week, seems to be a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as crackmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management announce that the play will be put upon the stage, at the New California Theatre, with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production will be complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and E. J. Moye.

Orpheum Opera House.

Arrangements have been made with Col. J. M. Hutchings, pioneer and guardian of Yosemite Valley, who has had a thirty years residence therein, to exhibit his "Pictorial California" at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with Gus Hill's World of Novelties Co. This presents a series of large views of our Yo-Semite Valley, the peaks and glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas, from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Whitney, our big trees, gold and silver mining, and the pastorial and city scenes of our State.

These views are grand and accurate ones of some of the grandest scenery in the world, and the descriptive matter given by Mr. Hutchings proves most interesting.

We congratulate Managers Walter & Co. upon having such an instructive and attractive feature on their bill this week.

In addition, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, continue at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist, and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that is given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition. Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The exhibition consist 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, is this week's bill, with Jas. Carden, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast. The play is an eventful drama of life and its vicissitudes. The prologue opens in Paris, the first act transpires in Australia, and the last three in England.

The play is mounted in the usual careful manner that Manager Morosco is credited for and is well acted by his company.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Nevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

We will have a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Byner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma" is the 1st rinde act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY.....AUGUST 30, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Burns & Donnelly, the returned San Francisco team, deserve credit for the very clever sketch work they have done at the Orpheum for the past two weeks.

Franks & Morrison, sketch team, and the four Carls, musical eccentrics, will be new features at the Wigwam next week. The "Phantasma" remains another week.

Admont Monastery Chamber Quartette (Kammer Musik) will be the novelty at the Orpheum next week in conjunction with the vaudeville company. They give a fine musical entertainment.

Hutchings' Picturesque California, a series of grand views of Yosemite Valley and other famed scenery of our state, is in its last week at the Orpheum.

Charley Day writes that the two minstrel companies which W. S. Cleveland has put on the road this season are far ahead of anything of the kind yet seen, and that his company "and the other" are both doing the best business on record. They cost Manager Cleveland $2500 a week each to run them. He is the first minstrel manager that has paid $1,000 a week for "end men," and yet he is making money hand over fist.

The Cremorne Benevolent Society, consisting of the attaches and company of the Cremorne, organized for the purpose of guaranteeing sick-fund payments, has a picnic and entertainment at the Seaside Garden on Sunday.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Carr, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in their appearances at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Baldwin Theatre will be closed for two weeks, at the close of the Margaret Mather engagement, on September 7th.

Isabel Morris makes the central figure of "The Galley Slave" very striking.

Virginia Marlowe in the Mather company, is the daughter of the late Owen Marlowe.

John Gilbert is kept down, kind of subdued, as it were, in his old man's character in the "City Directory," but his humor flashes up brightly occasionally like a gas light reflection on his baldheaded wig.

Hattie Moore goes with Harrigan to take Mrs. Yeamans' place in his company. He also carried off Fanny Bowman as his soubrette.

Grismer will lay the foundation of his this year's season on "The Burglar" and "The Tigress," his new plays, and use his old ones, "Forgiven," "The World Against Her" and "Fairfax," as cap stones.

Mr. Sol Bloom, who has been connected with the Alcazar since its opening, and is its present treasurer, has resigned to go East, where a lucrative position awaits him.

Emma Abbott begins her season Sept. 16th, in Cleveland, with 32 new dresses and no opera.

Billy's New York Squib says: "Georgie Parker is not yet engaged as has been announced." That is consoling.

Clara Van Tassell opens her season in Kansas City, Aug. 31st, as "The Little Singer."

Miss Emma Juch, with an opera company, four Pullman cars, fifteen trunks, a band, four baggage cars and a dresser, will begin a tour of the country shortly. Chas. H. Locke, the operatic barnacle, is manager.

May Yohe, in the "City Directory" cast, was a favorite of the New York dudedom.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Murray & Murphy's Company, playing under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, open at the Bush Sept. 9th. Mr. Mark Murphy, the clever comedian of the company, is a San Franciscan, and a brother of Senator Murphy.

Geo. Fawcett Rowe, distinguished as an author, playwright and actor, died in New York, of the kidney disease, at the age of 60, yesterday.

Captain Wm. A. Pinkerton, the famous detective, says the safe burglary scene in "The Stowaway" is the most thrilling act ever shown on the stage. "I went to see the play last Winter during its big run in Chicago," said Mr. Pinkerton, "and it was a treat to watch the spectators while the burglars were at work. I never witnessed such undivided attention from an audience as was accorded Hennessey and McCoy. Everybody was so deeply interested from the time the crooks made their appearance until the safe door was blown from its hinge, that while the burglar act really occupied but ten minutes time it seemed to be fully an hour before it was concluded. Why, it was so quiet in the theatre that the dropping of a pin would have created a panic. It's the greatest scheme to draw money that was ever introduced in a play."

The latest "City Directory" contains some catchy songs, glees and concerted pieces, a great number of good jokes and witticisms, has a sprinkling of grotesque matter all through it, and an unusual proportion of John Smiths. It is enough to make Langley send a remonstrance through some medium.

FIGARO'S dramatic critic not being posted on burglaring, we have specially engaged an educated and successful burglar to criticise the safe-cracking scene in "The Stowaway" next week—the only paper that will have a competent criticism.

Evans & Hoey, of quaint humor, and the lady specialists of The Parlor Match—who can't be matched in richness of wardrobe embellishments—put in their last appearances at the California Sunday night.

Isabel Morris essays Gwynne Archer, the heroine of Nelson Wheatcroft's strong play, 'Gwynne's Oath," at the Alcazar next week, with E. J. Buckley in the principal male role.

The Bush had not a vacant seat to spare last night.

J. J. Williams appears in "Peck's Bad Boy" for the first time at Morosco's next week. Imagine how that audience will enjoy the grocery scene and other funny scenes of the Bad Boy.

Miss Pauline Markham is engaged to create the leading part of Anarchy in the 'Spider and the Fly." She looks the same Markham as of old, and her deep, rich, contralto voice still continues to send forth its vibrations of vocal velvet. Miss Markham will sing a new and very taking topical song, "Well, I Think Not."

"Held by the Enemy" Company: Wm. Harcourt, Charles Stokes, H. A. Moray, Wm. Cody, J. Butler, Jos. Humphreys, Joseph Rickette, Charles McCullough, William Mandeville, George Masterson, Maud Haslam, Minnie Dupree and Mrs. Kate Denin-Wilson.

The child plays so far announced for next season, with others to hear from, are 'The Earl's Heir," 'A Little American," "Bootle's Baby" and "The Burglar."

W. J. Scanlan begins his season Sept. 2nd in Cleveland.

Mr. Grismer took clever little Laura Crews with him as Editha for his interior season. Mabel Bowman's sister, Fanny, has gone East with Harrigan's company, and the little B. was not big enough to travel alone.

Ignacio Martinetti, of the "City Directory" Co., is one of the cleverest brick comedians and the best and most graceful dancer on the stage. His poses are grace personified, and his triple aerial whirls are the champion pirouettes.

Is the Baldwin to go through another terra-cotta renovation?

The opening of "Kajanka" will show the Imp diving from the rigging loft into a cauldron of fire, six feet high, which is transformed into a star, eight feet high, from which the Fairy Queen appears.

Lawrence Barrett will be supported in his forthcoming production of "Ganelon" by Miss Minna Gale, Miss Minnie Monk, John A. Lane, Lawrence Hanley, J. J. Wallace, Charles Collins, Mark Lynch, Sydney Booth and others.

M. B. Leavitt has, East, only one company on the road this season. He will devote most of his time to the new spectacular pantomime burlesque, "Spider and the Fly," which will begin its season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 20th. Many novelties will be seen in this production.

"A Texas Steer," the piece written by Charles H. Hoyt for L. R. Stockwell, is considerably out of the line of farcical comedy with which Mr. Hoyt was identified prior to the production of "The Midnight Bell." There is no music in it, and there will be no specialties. The principal character is a hayseed Texan, who gets into funny complications in Washington. The piece is now about finished, and the manuscript will be placed in Mr. Stockwell's hands very shortly.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Tom. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends. See announce programme in FIGARO.

Manager Thornton's Grand Prize Stereopticon Exhibition at the Metropolitan Temple, Fifth St. near Market, has been a marked feature of this week's amusements. It is a show for the million. See programme announcement.

The new novel by Leander Richardson, editor of the New York Dramatic News, "Lord Dummeroy," is an interesting story in construction, with strongly drawn characters. The work partakes of the incisiveness of the author's journalistic writing. Its characteristics are vim, dash and brains. The first edition of 20 000 copies was snapped up by the dealers in two days. Work on the second edition is going on night and day.

The Society of Old Friends make an excursion on the Tamalpais to Vallejo and Wheatport on Sunday. It will be made very pleasant to all participating. The Tamalpais will run up to the scene of the late fire at Port Costa, giving the excursionists a view of the ruins and of the two burnt ships, beached in shallow water.

"The Lion and the Lamb" is being reconstructed and will go on the road in September. They have muzzled the lion and fattened the lamb.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company is drawing crowded houses here in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. The other John Smiths are ably impersonated by the popular comedians, John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors," opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opened this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

We have noticed the merits of the perform ance by principals and company, and can only add that the last chance to see the production is at Sunday night's performance.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, will be next week's bill with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Vesey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath comes into action. The local of the last three acts is on the Thames, near London.

John Jack, Miss Kate Chester and little Daisy Chester put in new appearances in the cast.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey are in their last week at the California in "A Parlor Match," a well known popular farce-comedy. It was Hoyt's pioneer play in this city, and it at once struck the fire of success, which has not burnt out yet.

Its drollery and humor found two of the best of representatives in the bright and breezy eccentricities of book-agent Evans, and in the quiet-humor of tramp Hoey; and its new songs and specialties give it a new flavor.

It is drawing good houses.

—o—

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California next week, seems to be a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management announce that the play will be put upon the stage, at the New California Theatre, with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production will be complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayter, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and R. J. Moye.

Orpheum Opera House.

Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening will be the last exhibitions of Col. J. M. Hutchings' grand views of Yosemite Valley and Picturesque California. A noble and instructive exhibition.

In addition, Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company, continue at the Orpheum. The company, headed by Gus Hill, the club-swinging monarch of the universe, includes Burns and Donnelly, Du Rell Brothers, the fantastic Trawy, the Tudors, Miss Freddie Stockmeyer, the popular vocalist, and others.

Managers Walter & Co. present another decided novelty at the Orpheum next week in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik), in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, will have a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday, Sept. 9th. James M. Ward Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple—Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that is given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition. Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The exhibition consist, 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational, life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, with Jas. Carden, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast, has drawn well this week at Morosco's.

The play is mounted in the usual careful manner that Manager Morosco is credited for and is well acted by his company.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the first time at Morosco's next week. G. W. Reynolds is the groceryman, Darrell Vinton the policeman, James Carden is the bad boy's father and Conchita is his sweetheart. It ought to do the banner business.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

We have had a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig Luigi del Oro, Haley & Flynn, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

Franks and Marion, the clever sketch team; the farewell week of the European musical, eccentrics, the four Carls, and Wm. Fischer the trombone soloist, will be new features at the Wigwam next week. The Phantasma is retained.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockabontism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The New York Truth thus classifies Kiralfy's new spectacle, "Antiope," produced at Niblo's Garden: "As an exhibition of stage setting, rich costumes and glittering accessories it may claim to be unsurpassed. As a performance of singing, dialogue or action, it is beneath criticism—of dancing everything good can be said." Of Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles it says: 'It is the best variety entertainment New York has seen for years. Its merit consists not alone of its novelty. Everything the Londoners did was well done. The audience was 'caught,' and they applauded and reapplauded with genuine appreciation."

The Orpheum company and the Wigwam company have volunteered, and, by the permission of Managers Walter & Co. and Chas. Meyer, will furnish a big entertainment at the Labor Day celebration at Woodward's Gardens, Monday, under the management of John Morrissey of the Orpheum.

John F. Raymond, a good performer, has been engaged to produce his popular pantomime, "The Comanches," at the Bella Union. Laura Huget and Paul La Drew will also be added to the company.

The Eureka calls on all its company for "A Trip to Paris" every night.

Signor Chiarini's Circus is delighting the Japanese and coining money again in Japan. A very successful season was recently played in Yokohama by the veteran manager.

Burns & Donnelly, the returned San Francisco team, deserve credit for the very clever sketch work they have done at the Orpheum for the past two weeks.

Franks & Morrison, sketch team, and the four Carls, musical eccentrics, will be new features at the Wigwam Sept. 2nd. The "Phantasma" remains another week.

Admont Monastery Chamber Quartette (Kammer Musik) will be the novelty at the Orpheum Sept. 2nd in conjunction with the vaudeville company They give a fine musical entertainment.

Charley Day writes that the two minstrel companies which W. S. Cleveland has put on the road this season are far ahead of anything of the kind yet seen and that his company "and the other" are both doing the best business on record. They cost Manager Cleveland $2500 a week each to run them. He is the first minstrel manager that has paid $1,000 a week for "end men," and yet he is making money hand over fist.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Clair, the vocalists, and Alex Davis, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, put in new appearances at the Cremorne this week.

If you go to see the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week you will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Cremorne Benevolent Society, consisting of the attaches and company of the Cremorne, organized for the purpose of guaranteeing sick-fund payments, has a picnic and entertainment at the Seaside Garden on Sunday.

The Baldwin Theatre will be closed for two weeks, at the close of the Margaret Mather engagement, on September 7th.

John Gilbert is kept down, kind of subdued, as it were, in his old man's character in the "City Directory," but his humor flashes up brightly occasionally like a gas light reflection on his baldheaded wig.

Emma Abbott begins her season Sept. 16th, in Cleveland, with 32 new dresses and an opera.

Cora Van Tassell opens her season in Kansas City, to-night, as "The Little Sinner"

Miss Emma Juch, with an opera company, four Pullman cars, fifteen trunks, a maid, four baggage cars and a dresser, will begin a tour of the country shortly. Chas. H. Locke, the operatic barnacle, is manager.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23d. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrman's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

The members of the Murray & Murphy Company, consisting of Thos. E. Murray, Chas. W. Young, John T. Carroll, Ada Melrose, Lotta Thornton, Helena Hardenburgh, Addie Boose and Louis F. Boose, also their celebrated band and orchestra of 12 pieces, arrived to-day on their special palace car, "The Irish Visitors," direct from the Union Square Theatre, New York City, under the management of J. M. Hill. Mr. Mark Murphy has been sojourning in this city for the past two weeks, visiting friends and relatives and arranging for the annual tour of his company, who open their season at Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre, Monday, Sept. 9th, in their celebrated and popular farce-comedy, "Our Irish Visitors," a play in which Messrs. Murray and Murphy have made a world-wide reputation, having performed the same in nearly every city and town in the United States during the past six years and have met with great success. Their engagement at the Bush Street Theatre is limited to two weeks, and an evening spent with the Booth and Barrett of Irish comedy will be highly enjoyed.

Harry Eytinge, the old-time favorite actor, is back again with us in the Mather company, as round in voice and form as ever, and is doing much better work than some of the younglings in the company.

"The Balloon," the English comedy that Wm. H. Crane purchased the American rights of, has become a great London success, and the Provincial rights of the play are in great demand. A half-dozen productions have been made in England of it already, and "The Balloon" is still in the ascendency.

When the European specialists engaged for the coming spectacle, "Kajanka—the Sisters Batchelor, Nellie Sennet and Edith Macklin, the four London Gaiety dancers; the Donazetti Family, seven in number, European acrobats, and Edith Cranke—arrived in New York, they were hurried off at once, much against their inclinations, for rehearsals of 'Kajanka" at Columbus, Ohio. "Where's Ho'o?" was the very natural inquiry of one of the Batchelor sisters.

The season of "Hans, the Boatman," opens in Chicago, at McVicker's Theatre, Sept. 8th. As Simmonds & Brown could not secure the time in New York for a run, "Hans, the Boatman," will not be seen in that city this season.

"Hands Across the Sea," the English melodrama, has its first American production in Philadelphia Aug. 31st. Its scenes will be the Grand Hotel in Paris, a French gambling house, the interior of a prison which revolves into the courtyard on the morning of an execution, and an open sea with a huge steamship modeled after the City of Paris. The cast will include a number of clever actors and actresses.

Murray & Murphy's Company, playing under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, open at the Bush Sept. 9th. Mr. Mark Murphy, the clever comedian of the company, is a San Franciscan, and a brother of Senator Murphy.

Geo. Fawcett Rowe, distinguished as an author, playwright and actor, died in New York, of the kidney disease, at the age of 60, on the 29th.

Captain Wm. A. Pinkerton, the famous detective, says the safe burglary scene in "The Stowaway" is the most thrilling act ever shown on the stage. "I went to see the play last Winter during its big run in Chicago," said Mr. Pinkerton, "and it was a treat to watch the spectators while the burglars were at work. I never witnessed such undivided attention from an audience as was accorded Hennessey and McCoy. Everybody was so deeply interested from the time the crooks made their appearance until the safe door was blown from its hinge, that while the burglar act really occupied but ten minutes time it seemed to be fully an hour before it was concluded. Why, it was so quiet in the theatre that the dropping of a pin would have created a panic. It's the greatest scheme to draw money that was ever introduced in a play."

The latest "City Directory" contains some catchy songs, glees and concerted pieces, a great number of good jokes and witticisms, has a sprinkling of grotesque matter all through it, and an unusual proportion of John Smiths. It is enough to make Langley send a remonstrance through some medium.

FIGARO'S dramatic critic not being posted on burglaring, we have specially engaged an educated and successful burglar to criticise the safe-cracking scene in "The Stowaway" Sept. 2nd—the only paper that will have a competent criticism.

Evans & Hoey, of quaint humor, and the lady specialists of The Parlor Match—who can't be matched in richness of wardrobe embellishments—put in their last appearances at the California Sunday night.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends. See announce programme in FIGARO.

Hattie Moore goes with Harrigan to take Mrs. Yeamans' place in his company. He also carried off Fanny Bowman as his soubrette.

Virginia Marlowe in the Mather company is the daughter of the late Owen Marlowe.

Isabel Morris essays Gwynne Archer, the heroine of Nelson Wheatcroft's strong play, 'Gwynne's Oath," at the Alcazar Sept. 2nd, with E. J. Buckley in the principal male role.

J. J. Williams appears in "Peck's Bad Boy" for the first time at Morosco's Sept. 2nd. Imagine how that audience will enjoy the grocery scene and other funny scenes of the Bad Boy.

Miss Pauline Markham is engaged to create the leading part of Anarchy in the "Spider and the Fly." She looks the same Markham as of old, and her deep, rich, contralto voice still continues to send forth its vibrations of vocal velvet.

Ignacio Martinetti, of the "City Directory" Co., is one of the cleverest brisk comedians and the best and most graceful dancer on the stage. His poses are grace personified, and his triple aerial whirls are the champion pirouettes.

May Yohe, in the "City Directory" cast, was a favorite of the New York dudedom.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company is drawing crowded houses here in a new Eastern success, "The City Directory." They come direct from the Chicago Grand Opera House. The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. The other John Smiths are ably impersonated by the popular comedians, John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors" opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

The dramatic season of the Alcazar opened this week with E. J. Buckley, Isabel Morris and L. R. Stockwell in an elaborate production of Bartley Campbell's strong play, "The Galley Slave." The cast includes Richard Foote, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Leo Cooper, Miss Emmie Wilmott, Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Ada Lewis, Fanny Young, and the child Little Ella.

We have noticed the merits of the performance by principals and company, and can only add that the last chance to see the production is at Sunday night's performance.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, is the bill Sept. 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Vesey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath, comes into action. The local of the last three acts is on the Thames, near London.

John Jack, Miss Kate Chester and little Daisy Chester put in new appearances in the cast.

New California Theatre.

Evans & Hoey close Sunday night at the California in "A Parlor Match." They have done a fine business.

—o—

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California Sept. 2d, seems to be a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management announce that the play will be put upon the stage, at the New California Theatre, with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production will be complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm McVay and B. J. Moye.

Orpheum Opera House.

Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening will be the last exhibitions of Col. J. M Hutchings' grand views of Yosemite Valley and Picturesque California. A noble and instructive exhibition. And also the last appearance of Gus Hill's World of Novelties Combination, a varied specialty company.

Managers Walter & Co. present another decided novelty at the Orpheum, Sept. 2d, in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik) in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment, with George Wood, the "somewhat different comedian," and other talent versatile.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, will have a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday, Sept. 9th. James M. Ward Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Metropolitan Temple — Prize Stereopticon Exhibition.

Mr. Augustus Thornton's grand stereopticon exhibition, that is given at the Temple for only the present week, must prove instructing and amusing—and beneficial, as well, to the parties who obtain the prizes offered. $100 in five different prizes will be awarded to the pupils of the public schools, graduated by their ages, for those who write the best essays on "An Evening at the Prize Stereopticon Exhibition. Metropolitan Temple, August —, 1889."

Valuable presents will be given nightly to all who visit the exhibition. The whole entertainment will be under the charge of a half dozen citizens.

See programme announcement in adjacent column.

The exhibition consist, 100 views of entirely new subjects of surpassing excellence, enlarged to giant proportions on an immense scale beautifully illuminated with calcium lights, presenting objects the size of life and with a beauty and distinctness never before shown in San Francisco.

Popular prices rule, 25 and 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The popular sensational, life-drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled "A Woman of the People," with Miss May Nanary and Darrell Vinton in the principal roles, with Jas. Carden, Miss Conchita and the whole company in the cast, has drawn well.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the first time at Morosco's Sept. 2d. G. W. Reynolds is the groceryman, Darrell Vinton the policeman, James Carden is the bad boy's father and Conchita is his sweetheart. It ought to do the banner business.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Franks and Morrison, the clever sketch team; the farewell week of the European musical eccentrics, the four Carls, and Wm. Tischbein, the trombone soloist, will be new features at the Wigwam Sept. 2d.

We have had a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, and other weird and unaccountable things, that are to be seen when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Claudie West, serio-comic; Joseph Natus, tenor; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; Franks & Marion, the California boys; Judd London and Flora Hastings, retained on the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

James E. Black, the legless dancer; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Hayes & Marion's comedy of "Spring Chicken" will be served up every evening.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Garry Hopper and Miss Carry Hall are the new faces here and they will present some of their most amusing comedy specialty sketches. Ida Conway, soubrette, and Miss Berth Weston, vocalist, also put in new appearances.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Steve Carroll, Garry Hopper, Ida Conway, Carry Hall, Berth Weston, Edna Earle and Josie Mayfield.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Miss Minnie Robinson, the popular balladist, puts in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Miss Robinson, Nettie Behren, Mamie Woods, Stella Morriam, W. Behrens, James Post, Gus Franks and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company, and is entitled "Our Glorious Fourth," musical and patriotic.

The Behrens, musical sketch artists, have made a decided hit in their original sketches. This week they introduce the famous "Musical Pastimes."

The Can-Can is retained on the bill. New songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

WANTED—Two lady performers for Bottle Mejers for Monday. Apply at FIGARO Office.

The greatest bill ever given at the Bella Union is promised for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. All the variety performers in town have volunteered. It will beat the record.

Franks & Morrison, sketch team, and the four Carls, musical eccentrics, will be new features at the Wigwam this week. The "Phantasma" remains another week.

The New York Truth thus classifies Kiralfy's new spectacle, "Antiope," produced at Niblo's Garden: "As an exhibition of stage setting, rich costumes and glittering accessories it may claim to be unsurpassed. As a performance of singing, dialogue or action, it is beneath criticism—of dancing everything good can be said." Of Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles it says: 'It is the best variety entertainment New York has seen for years. Its merit consists not alone of its novelty. Everything the Londoners did was well done. The audience was 'caught,' and they applauded and reapplauded with genuine appreciation."

John F. Raymond, a good performer, has been engaged to produce his popular pantomime, "The Comanches," at the Bella Union. Laura Huget and Paul La Drew will also be added to the company.

It is retained, the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week. You will think you have got 'em, when you see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously. It is a most puzzling exhibition, full of novel illusions, and will prove a great card for Manager Meyer.

The Eureka calls on all its company for "A Trip to Paris" every night.

Signor Coiarini's Circus is delighting the Japanese and coining money again in Japan. A very successful season was recently played in Yokohama by the veteran manager.

Admont Monastery Chamber Quartette (Kammer Musik) will be the novelty at the Orpheum Sept. 2nd in conjunction with the vaudeville company. They give a fine musical entertainment.

Charley Day writes that the two minstrel companies which W. S. Cleveland has put on the road this season are far ahead of anything of the kind yet seen, and that his company "and the other" are both doing the best business on record. They cost Manager Cleveland $2500 a week to run them. He is the first minstrel manager that has paid $1,000 a week for "attraction" and yet he is making money and ever fit.

Hyatt & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

James F. Bush, the "eglesdancer; Maggie Gordon and Stella Carr, the vocalists, and Alex Dove, who creates much amusement in his ventriloquial act, join in new appearances at the Cremorne this week.

Manager Watterson has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They pervade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Veteran Firemen of California and their friends will have a reunion and a four-days excursion to Santa Cruz by invitation of the Mayor and citizens of that city, on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of September. It will be made eminently social by the citizens, and the firemen of the city will be grateful to excursionists. Fare for the round trip only $3.

Mr. Stockrandle: Excuse my mentioning the matter, sir; but as you are paying quite some attention to my daughter, I feel it nothing more than right I should ask your intentions. Mr. Crawshaw—(displaying a large anchor Cutts navy)—I'll blow the head off that snarling bull-dog of yours if he is not chained when I call at the house to-night.

Miss Emma Juch, with an opera company, four Pullman cars, fifteen trunks, a maid, four baggage cars and a dresser, will begin a tour of the country shortly. Chas. E. Locke, the operatic barnacle, is manager.

"She is heartful and artless," said the admirer. But he was an Englishman and

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Gottlob is in receipt of the following telegram:

Chicago, September 2, 1889

Opening of my New Windsor Theatre here to-night a grand success in every way. Fashionable audience; people turned away. Receipts over $1200. M. B. LEAVITT.

Manager John Maguire, lessee of the Grand Opera House for three years from October 1st, telegraphed Thos. H. Andrews, on Monday, that he has arranged to open his season at the Grand on Saturday evening, October 12th, with a very strong Eastern combination.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23d. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrman's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

The members of the Murray & Murphy Company, consisting of Thos. E. Murray, Chas. W. Young, John T. Carroll, Ada Melrose, Lotta Thornton, Helena Hardenburgh, Addie Boose and Louis F. Boose, also their celebrated band and orchestra of 12 pieces, arrived to-day on their special palace car, "The Irish Visitors," direct from the Union Square Theatre, New York City, under the management of J. M. Hill. Mr. Mark Murphy has been sojourning in this city for the past two weeks, visiting friends and relatives and arranging for the annual tour of his company, who open their season at Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre, Monday, Sept. 9th, in their celebrated and popular farce-comedy, "Our Irish Visitors," a play in which Messrs. Murray and Murphy have made a world-wide reputation, having performed the same in nearly every city and town in the United States during the past six years and have met with great success. Their engagement at the Bush Street Theatre is limited to two weeks, and an evening spent with the Booth and Barrett of Irish comedy will be highly enjoyed.

Harry Eytinge, the old-time favorite actor, is back again with us in the Mather company, as round in voice and form as ever, and is doing much better work than some of the younglings in the company.

"The Balloon," the English comedy that Wm. H. Crane purchased the American rights of, has become a great London success, and the Provincial rights of the play are in great demand. A half-dozen productions have been made in England of it already, and "The Balloon" is still in the ascendency.

When the European specialists engaged for the coming spectacle, "Kajanka—the Sisters Batchelor, Nellie Sennet and Edith Macklin, the four London Gaiety dancers; the Donazetti Family, seven in number, European acrobats, and Edith Cracke—arrived in New York, they were hurried off at once, much against their inclinations, for rehearsals of 'Kajanka" at Columbus, Ohio. "Where's Hoio?" was the very natural inquiry of one of the Batchelor sisters.

"Hands Across the Sea," the English melodrama, has its first American production in Philadelphia Aug. 31st. Its scenes will be the Grand Hotel in Paris, a French gambling house, the interior of a prison which revolves into the courtyard on the morning of an execution, and an open sea with a huge steamship modeled after the City of Paris. The cast will include a number of clever actors and actresses.

Murray & Murphy's Company, playing under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, open at the Bush Sept. 9th. Mr. Mark Murphy, the clever comedian of the company, is a San Francisco, and a brother of Senator Murphy.

The latest "City Directory" contains some catchy songs, glees and concerted pieces, a great number of good jokes and witticisms, has a sprinkling of grotesque matter all through it, and an unusual proportion of John Smiths. It is enough to make Langley send a remonstrance through some medium.

FIGARO'S dramatic critic not being posted on burglary, we have secured engaged an educated and successful burglar to criticise the safe-cracking scene in "The Stowaway" this week—the only paper that will have a competent critic on.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends. See announcement programme in FIGARO

Hattie Moore goes with Harrigan to take Mrs. Yeamans' place in his company. He also carried off Fanny Bowman as his soubrette.

The Baldwin Theatre will be closed for two weeks, at the close of the Margaret Mather engagement, on September 7th.

Virginia Marlowe in the Mather company is the daughter of the late Owen Marlowe.

Isabel Morris says Gwynne Archer, the heroine of Nelson Wheatcroft's strong play, "Gwynne's Oath," at the Alcazar this week, with E. J. Buckley in the principal male role, supported by Stockwell and the Alcazar company.

J. J. Williams appears in "Pick's Bad Boy" for the first time at Morosco's this week. Imagine how that audience will enjoy the grocery scene and other funny scenes of the Bad Boy.

Ignacio Martinetti, of the "City Directory" Co., is one of the cleverest brisk comedians and the best and most graceful dancer on the stage. His poses are grace personified, and his triple aerial whirls are the champion pirouettes.

May Yohe, in the "City Directory" cast, was a favorite of the New York

WIGWAM THEATRE.

IL VAN P. M.

Drop the curtain; put out the light;
The play is ended, and, wrong or right,
The players weary, with mimic strutting,
Enter the bar room one by one.

What's the difference, do you care
That now, in the footlights' glare,
Do you question if they are ill or well,
As long as to "chestnuts" to you they tell?

"What are their troubles to you?" you say;
"At the end of the week they'll get their pay."
Yes, they'll get it; they are only hired,
To keep the world from getting tired.

Tiny, poor devils, with aching hearts,
Must hide their sorrows and play their parts;
In one short night, from eight to eleven,
Many an actor has earned a Heaven

So don't be grudge them a glass of beer,
(The Bohemian is sure to drop out here);
Their troubles are over. "Waiter!" I cry,
"Five!" Hello, Monty! Hats, make that seven!"

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company is drawing crowded houses here for their farewell week in "The City Directory." The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

The new songs and medleys introduced this week take well, and the "Johnny Get Your Gun" medley, Charlie Reed and May Yohe's dialect duet and Reed's burlesque song, "Sailing," have made deserved hits.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. The other John Smiths are ably impersonated by the popular comedians, John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be the next attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors" opening on September 9th. Play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, is the bill this week, with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Vesey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath, comes into action. The local of the last three acts is on the Thames, near London.

Miss Morris evinces decided ability in the different phases of the play, and in the third act, where she sees the face of the assassin in a somnambulistic trance, and waking, denounces Vesey as the murderer, shows great dramatic power. Mr. Buckley sustains his role with his usual impressiveness and ability. Stockwell falls into a young comedy part very successfully, John Jack earned a good mark as the jolly Pearce Parker, and all the company filled their parts acceptably. The scenery is new and the stage settings notably good.

John Jack, Miss Kate Chester and little Daisy Chester put in new appearances in the cast.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California the present week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as crackmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre, with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and R. J. Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light, and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. The theatre was crowded, and the play bids fair to do a fine two weeks' business.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present another decided novelty at the Orpheum this week in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik), in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment, with George Wood, the "somewhat different comedian;" Plon Plon, the Parisian crayon artist; Franz Reilhofer's Tyrolean Troupe; Miss Annie Dacre, prima donna soprano, and other talent versatile.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, will have a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday, Sept. 9th. James M. Ward Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

Mr. Cotton has made arrangements to have the benefit take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, Sept. 15th. It is assured that a great bill, with the choice of volunteers, and a full house will grace the occasion.

FIGARO furnishes the programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the first time at Morosco's this week. G. W. Reynolds is the groceryman, Darrell Vinton the policeman, James Carden is the bad boy's father and Conchita is his sweetheart. It ought to do the banner business.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Franks and Morrison, the clever sketch team; the farewell week of the European musical eccentrics, the four Carls, and Wm. Tichbein the trombone soloist, will be new features at the Wigwam this week.

There is also a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Holmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie La Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John F. Raymond makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "The Comanches," with all the company in the cast, and Lena Hoffman and Lizzie Russell are added to the vocal staff.

The greatest bill of the season will be for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. Forty-three artists, representing, by consent of the managers, all the variety theatres in town. Go early.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Mr. Owen Dale, supported by a strong array of talent, is underlined to appear very soon.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres during Jack Hallinan's absence East, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Haley and Flynn, knockabouts; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Two good acts this week: "The Four Shamrocks" and "Resurrection."

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Billy Akarman, the popular all around performer; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are new this week.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The laughable act, "The What-Not," with all the company in the cast, concludes the bill and the evening's fun.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

West & Fowler, popular sketch team, put in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, George West, James Post and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and West & Fowler are two versatile teams.

In the comedy, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Sunday, September 8th, grand picnic of the Old Friends of California at Seaside Gardens.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that variety theatre North-D. Fox, whose popula trict of the city his ho ture is a theatre with the street and a regul larger houses.

Ned Thatcher, a fine May Madison, a clev this week. The bill "High Life," with Fo the cast.

Kitty Goodwin, the c lady, opens the olio, fo Williams, James Fitz others in musical tu Billy Bently in his Thatcher adds to the from Sing-Sing," and with Comedian James Hod Carrier," calling cast.

THE PERFECTION OF MACHINERY.

The recent trip of the City of Paris, beating her time, the fastest record across the Atlantic, over three hours, classes her as the fleetest of ocean steamers. A New York World correspondent on her previous fast trip thus describes the marvelous power of her machinery: "The engines were put at full speed, and for something over four days they were driven at the average rate of ninety revolutions of the screws per minute. There was a variation from eighty-six to ninety-two revolutions. When the furnaces were opened to be cleaned the intensity of the steam would be diminished for a few minutes and the speed of the screw reduced to eighty-six turns in the minute. It will be noted that the average speed was three revolutions in two seconds, and the screws are twenty feet in diameter. It is astonishing that this velocity can be maintained day and night without a second's waiting, and avoid developing excessive and crippling heat. The fact that thirty men are employed to pour oil upon the bearings and all parts where the friction is severe will perhaps account in part for the phenomena, but certainly only the greatest perfection of material, and the most delicate adaptation of one part to the other, could provide for such a strain without disaster. I doubt whether so startling a test of integrity and absolute exactitude in manufacture can be found in any other machinery. During the run of the City of Paris the wind was so strong from the north one afternoon as to give the ship a decided list, elevating the larboard screw so that at each turn the blades threw showers of spray with a dazzling rush far behind the vessel. There are four blades in the screw, revolving three times in two seconds—so there were six white surges per second dashed to the wind, and a fine reminder of the snowy rapids of Niagara."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Manager Jack Hallinan, of the Cremorne, has returned from his extended trip East, looking well

Raymon Moore went East to-day to take his position as tenor balladist with Primrose & West's Minstrels, under engagement for one year.

WANTED—Two lady performers for Bottle Dances for Monday. Apply at FIGARO Office.

The greatest bill ever given at the Bella Union is promised for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. All the variety performers in town have volunteered. It will beat the record.

Franks & Morrison, sketch team, and the four Carls, musical eccentrics, will be new features at the Wigwam this week. The "Phantasma" remains another week.

John F. Raymond, a good performer, has been engaged to produce his popular pantomime, "The Comanches," at the Bella Union. Laura Huget and Paul La Drew will also be added to the company.

It is retained, the weird and wonderful "Phantasma" at the Wigwam this week. You see living, talking people vanish into air and then return again as mysteriously.

The Eureka calls on all its company for "A Trip to Paris" every night.

Admont Monastery Chambor Quartette (Kammer Musik) will be the novelty at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with the vaudeville company. They give a fine musical entertainment.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knockabout comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

The Veteran Firemen of California and their friends will have a reunion and a four-days excursion to Santa Cruz by invitation of the Mayor and citizens of that city, on the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th of September. It will be made eminently social by the citizens, and the freedom of the city will be granted to excursionists. Fare for the round trip only $3.

By paying $1 a week you can get a two and a quarter ounce solid 14 karat Elgin gold watch for $43 at Barrett & Sherwood's, one of the oldest firms in the city, or a filled gold one for $20. See ad.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Murray & Murphy, the Irish comedians, under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, commence Sept. 9th a two-weeks engagement at the New Bush Street Theatre in their laughable absurdity, "Our Irish Visitors," a play that is spoken of very highly by the critics throughout the country for the past four years. During the progress of the play there is introduced a large number of musical selections, Irish songs, ballads, jig and reel dancing. The N. Y. World says: "The Murray & Murphy Co. appeared at the Union Square Theatre in their highly amusing farce-comedy of 'Our Irish Visitors,' and the audience were kept in a continual laughter from beginning to end."

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See testimonial correspondence elsewhere in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

'King Cole II," the spectacular opera bit playing at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, will be one of the Fall attractions at the Bush.

The yacht "Success" in "The Stowaway" is a regular built up one, 38 feet in length, with masts 29 feet high. She is symetrical in proportion, with full rigging and sails, and the entire business of an act transpires on her deck.

They have the burglars also in "The City Directory." When Charley Reed drops a nickel in the slot of the safe it explodes, frightens a little dog tied to it, that runs off the stage dragging the safe after him.

The box office for Thos. H Andrews' benefit at the Grand on Sunday night opens on Friday. The fact that Prof. Jim Corbett has volunteered to have a four-round set-to with his favorite pupil, Mr. James Smith, has caused a big demand in "many families" for seats. Ladies know they can see a noted glove exhibition on the occasion with propriety, and are asserting their rights to do so. They naturally want to see the delight of the clubs—a glove contest,

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in "Gretchen" on the 16th inst.

Robt. M. Eberle leaves via. Southern route to-morrow, to take his position of stage director for the Booth-Modjeska Co. for the season. He takes his ability and years of experience with him, and the good wishes of all who know him. Good-by, Bob.

Mrs. L. R. Stockwell (Ethel Brandon), who has just returned from the East, brought little remembrances of her visit as presents to some of her friends, chosen with woman's rare tact and taste. Mark Thall's is a delicate burnished silver postage stamp holder. Something new and very pretty. Ask Mark for a stamp. He will like it.

"Leah," "Lady of Lyons," "As You Like It" and "Romeo and Juliet" will be Margaret Mather's bill the rest of the week.

Besides the burglars, who play so strong that they burst an iron safe every night, there are two strong comedy characters in "The Stowaway"—one a London street arab of the Poor Jo type, played by Marion Elmore, and the other a vagabond by Harry Booker. They are not in the safe explosion business, but it is safe to say they will attract attention.

Dan Morris Sullivan and Nora will play the Mirror of Ireland, the two State Fair weeks, from 9th inst., at Armory Hall, Sacramento. He will afterwards play the coast in his repertory of new Irish plays.

Sara Bernhardt's last season in London proved a financial failure. In fact, the whole engagement was not played out.

A railroad and cash girls' ballet, in which forty young women will take part, will be one of the novelties in Mr. M. B. Leavitt's production of "The Spider and the Fly."

A monument has been lately erected over the grave of Charles Dibdin, the writer of sea song, who, oddly enough, like Sir Joseph Porter, never was at sea. It is the gift of the Countess of Rosebery.

Dion Boucicault's younger son, Aubrey, is now appearing in "The Shaughraun," at the London Standard, and of course plays his father's famous role of Con, which he does with sufficient success to show that in his case the theory of heredity has some chance of holding good.

Ben Teal is one of the authors of "The Great Metropolis" that was produced at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, N. Y., on August 31st. This new melodrama is prolific of scenes. There is a billiard-room in a mansion near High Bridge, a sailors' lodging-house on the East River, the interior of Sandy Hook Lighthouse and a moonlit view of the beach at night, a real estate office on Broadway, the interior of a flat on Forty-fourth street, an ocean scene with the life-savers at work, the elevated railroad station at Twenty-eighth street and Sixth avenue, and a view of the East River at night, with the Brooklyn Bridge illuminated. It is quite a panorama of scenery.

The characters in M. B. Leavitt's "Spider and the Fly" are designated Progress, Industry, Knowledge, Ignorance, Idleness and Anarchy. Something of the order of Kiralfy's "Excelsior," where the triumphs of human progress were pictured dramatically.

Isabel Morris essays Gwynne Archer, the heroine of Nelson Wheatcroft's strong play, 'Gwynne's Oath," at the Alcazar this week, with E. J. Buckley in the principal male role, supported by Stockwell and the Alcazar company.

Manager Gottlob is in receipt of the following telegram:

Opening of my New Windsor Theatre here to-night a grand success in every way. Fashionable audience; people turned away. Receipts over $1200. M. B. LEAVITT.

Manager John Maguire, lessee of the Grand Opera House for three years from October 1st, telegraphed Thos. H. Andrews, on Monday, that he has arranged to open his season at the Grand on Saturday evening, October 12th, with a very strong Eastern combination.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23d. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrman's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

The latest "City Directory" contains some catchy songs, glees and concerted pieces, a great number of good jokes and witticisms, has a sprinkling of grotesque matter all through it, and an unusual proportion of John Smiths. It is enough to make Langley send a remonstrance through some medium.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. Mr. Andrews is custodian and acting manager of the Grand, and has troops of friends. See announce programme in FIGARO.

Sara Bernhardt will play "La Tosca" and "Theodora" at the Porte St. Martin, Paris, this month, prior to starting for her American tour.

When the alterations are complete the New York Academy stage will be one of the largest in the country. It will have a width of 157 feet and a depth of 96 feet.

EVENING EDITION

WEDNESDAY..... SEPTEMBER 4, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company is drawing crowded houses here for their farewell week in "The City Directory." The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

The new songs and medleys introduced this week take well, and the "Johnny Get Your Gun" medley, Charlie Reed and May Yohe's dialect duet and Reed's burlesque song, "Sailing," have made deserved hits.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. The other John Smiths are ably impersonated by the popular comedians, John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

W. S. Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be next week's attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded," the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, is the bill this week, with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Vesey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath, comes into action. The local of the last three acts is on the Thames, near London.

Miss Morris evinces decided ability in the different phases of the play, and in the third act, where she sees the face of the assassin in a romantic artistic trance, and waking, denounces Vesey as the murderer, shows great dramatic power. Mr. Buckley sustains his role with his usual impressiveness and ability. Stockwell falls into a young comedy part very successfully, John Jack earned a good mark as the jolly Pearce Parker, and all the company filled their parts acceptably. The scenery is new and the stage settings notably good.

John Jack, Miss Kate Chester and little Daisy Chester put in new appearances in the cast.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar on Monday.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California the present week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have been pensioned and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Shayter, Harry Booker, Wm McVay and R. J. Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. The theatre was crowded, and the play bids fair to do a fine two weeks' business.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present another decided novelty at the Orpheum this week in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik), in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment, with George Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Plon Plon, the Parisian crayon artist; Franz Reilhofer's Tyrolean Troupe; Miss Annie Dacre, prima donna soprano; the Leon Brothers, dashing acrobats and high somerset performers, and other talent versatile.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, will have a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday, Sept. 9th. James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The big Grand promises to be full on Sunday night.

Box office open on Friday.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

Mr. Cotton has made arrangements to have the benefit take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, Sept. 15th. It is assured that a great bill, with the choice of volunteers, and a full house will grace the occasion.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the first time at Morosco's this week. G. W. Reynolds is the groceryman, Darrell Vinton the policeman, James Carden is the bad boy's father and Conchita is his sweetheart. It ought to do the banner business.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be next week's attraction at Morosco's.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Franks and Morrison, the clever sketch team; the farewell week of the European musical eccentrics, the four Carls, and Wm. Tichbein the trombone soloist, will be new features at the Wigwam this week.

There is also a startling and novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

REPLY OF BEN COTTON.

To Hon. T. J. Clunie, John D. Siebe, Alex. Badlam, M. A. Gunst, C. A. Buckley, Geo. A. Knight, Martin Corcoran and others:

Gentleman—Your favor at hand tendering me a Farewell Testimonial, am pleased to accept the same, and will name

GRAND OPERA HOUSE, SUNDAY EVE, SEPT. 15th,

Respectfully yours, BEN COTTON.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John F. Raymond makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "The Comanches," with all the company in the cast, and Lena Hoffman and Lizzie Russell are added to the vocal staff.

The greatest bill of the season will be for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. Forty-three artists, representing, by consent of the managers, all the variety theatres in town. Go early.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan & Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Haley and Flynn, knockabouts; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Two good acts this week: "The Four Shamrocks" and "Ressurection."

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Billy Akarman, the popular all around performer; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are new this week.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Byrnes, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor open with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Ned Thatcher, a fine vocal comedian, and Miss May Madison, a clever serio-comic, are new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "High Life," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

Kitty Goodwin, the champion song and dance lady, opens the olio, followed by Thatcher, Eva Williams, James Fitz, Miss Rose Devere and others in musical turns and specialties, and Billy Bently in his fine musical act. Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "Escaped from Sing-Sing," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "The Hod Carrier," calling for the company in the cast.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The death of E. L. Blanchard is wired from London on the 4th, at the age of 69 years. He was a prominent author, dramatist and writer in various fields of literature for the half century past, and a close friend of Charles Dickens. Before he was twenty five he had attained such literary distinction as to win him the position of editor of Chambers' London Journal, published by that famous publishing house. Blanchard was also an excellent actor, and was a prominent comedian at the Covent Garden, London, for thirty-five years. He contributed nearly a hundred plays to the English stage, most of which were Christmas extravaganzas of an interesting character, and he was particularly happy in his illustrations of fairy mythology. For the last twenty-four years he was on the literary staff of the London Telegraph, and was identified with the paper at the time of his death.

Helen Reimer is not so pleasantly cast as some of the other ladies of "The City Directory," but deserves credit for doing her part ably and conscientiously.

Manager M. B. Leavitt was present at the opening of his New Windsor Theatre, Chicago—a large, handsome and elegantly appointed theatre—on Monday night, and telegraphed Manager Gottlob of its entire success. This gives him command at hand of a Chicago house for his combinations. His next stepping stone on the way to California for his attractions will be his new theatre in Denver, now building.

Dan Frohman has on his pay-roll four stars and a milky-way of fifty-one actors.

Besides the burglars, who play so strong that they burst an iron safe every night, there are two strong comedy characters in "The Stowaway"—one a London street arab of the Poor Jo type, played by Marion Elmore, and the other a vagabond by Harry Booker. They are not in the safe explosion business, but it is safe to say they will attract attention.

Dan Morris Sullivan and Nora will play the Mirror of Ireland, the two State Fair weeks, from 9th inst., at Armory Hall, Sacramento. He will afterwards play the coast in his repertory of new Irish plays.

Isabel Morris as Gwynne Archer, the heroine of Nelson Wheatcroft's strong play, "Gwynne's Oath," at the Alcazar this week, with E. J. Buckley in the principal male role, supported by Stockwell and the Alcazar company.

Manager John Maguire, lessee of the Grand Opera House for three years from October 1st, telegraphed Thos. H. Andrews, on Monday, that he has arranged to open his season at the Grand on Saturday evening, October 12th, with a very strong Eastern combination.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrmann's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

There will be many volunteers and a double bill, drama and specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. See announce programme in FIGARO.

When the alterations are complete the New York Academy stage will be one of the largest in the country. It will have a width of 157 feet and a depth of 96 feet.

Ben Teal is one of the authors of "The Great Metropolis" that was produced at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, N. Y., on August 31st. This new melodrama is prolific of scenes. There is a billiard-room in a mansion near High Bridge, a sailors' lodging-house on the East River, the interior of Sandy Hook Lighthouse and a moonlit view of the beach at night, a real estate office on Broadway, the interior of a flat on Forty-fourth street, an ocean scene with the life-savers at work, the elevated railroad station at Twenty-eighth street and Sixth avenue, and a view of the East River at night, with the Brooklyn Bridge illuminated. It is quite a panorama of scenery.

The characters in M. B. Leavitt's "Spider and the Fly" are designated Progress, Industry, Knowledge, Ignorance, Idleness and Anarchy. Something of the order of Kiralfy's "Excelsior," where the triumphs of human progress were pictured dramatically.

We don't know of anything that has improved so much in our California climate in so short a time as "The City Directory" at the Bush. Some new and taking feature has superseded a weaker one every night, until the piece now is strong all the way through. Mr. Russell has shown his editorial ability and his adaptitude as a piece-maker most successfully. Credit must also be given to the quickness and talent of the company. We believe that company could be put into rehearsal for the "Barber of Seville" or "Il Trovator" and in three nights render a very good performance of either opera—to say nothing of how they would shine in "Uncle Tom" or "Lights o' London."

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" next week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Colonel William E. Sinn has had his Park Theatre, Brooklyn, furnished with electric lights and opened his sixteenth season with a Labor Day matinee on Monday.

Nate Salsbury will again be seen on the stage at the head of a company of his own during the season of 1890-91.

Edward Harrigan and company put in the week of the 9th at Denver.

Prestidigitateur Herrmann's recently imported variety company has captured New York. It is reported the finest and most novel affair seen for a long time. The Bush gets it when it comes to California.

The Alcazar will probably produce "Mankind," the last big melodramatic hit. L. R. Stockwell has secured the California rights.

Five Little Lord Fauntleroys in costume introduced in "The City Directory" this week are Reed, Martinetti, Gilbert, Mack and Collier.

Charles Overton, A. M. Palmer's London representative, has secured the refusal of the new Adelphi melodramatic success, "London by Day." San Francisco fogs are nowhere compared with London ones. If it is a true picture we are afraid it will be so foggy that London will not be seen at all.

Murray & Murphy, the Irish comedians, under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, commence Sept. 9th a two-weeks engagement at the New Bush Street Theatre in their laughable absurdity, "Our Irish Visitors," a play that is spoken of very highly by the critics throughout the country for the past four years. During the progress of the play there is introduced a large number of musical selections, Irish songs, ballads, jig and reel dancing. The N. Y. World says: "The Murray & Murphy Co. appeared at the Union Square Theatre in their highly amusing farce-comedy of 'Our Irish Visitors,' and the audience were kept in a continual laughter from beginning to end."

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See testimonial correspondence elsewhere in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

"King Cole II," the spectacular opera bit playing at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, will be one of the Fall attractions at the Bush.

The yacht "Success" in "The Stowaway" is a regular built up one, 38 feet in length, with masts 29 feet high. She is symetrical in proportion, with full rigging and sails, and the entire business of an act transpires on her deck.

They have the burglars also in "The City Directory." When Charley Reed drops a nickel in the slot of the safe it explodes, frightens a little dog tied to it, that runs off the stage dragging the safe after him.

The box office for Thos. H. Andrews' benefit at the Grand on Sunday night opens on Friday. The fact that Prof. Jim Corbett has volunteered to have a four-round set-to with his favorite pupil, Mr. James Smith, has caused a big demand in "many families" for seats. Ladies know they can see a noted glove exhibition on the occasion with propriety, and are asserting their rights to do so. They naturally want to see the delight of the clubs—a glove contest.

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in "Gretchen" on the 16th inst.

Sara Bernhardt will play "La Tosca" and "Theodora" at the Porte St. Martin, Paris, this month, prior to starting for her American tour.

Robt. M. Eberle leaves via. Southern route to-morrow, to take his position of stage director for the Booth-McCaskeka Co. for the season. He takes his ability and years of experience with him, and the good wishes of all who know him. Good-by, Bob.

Mrs. L. R. Stockwell (Ethel Brandon), who has just returned from the East, brought little remembrances of her visit as presents to some of her friends, chosen with woman's rare tact and taste. Mark Thall's is a delicate burnished silver postage stamp holder. Something new and very pretty. Ask Mark for a stamp. He will like it.

"Leah," "Lady of Lyons," "As You Like It" and "Romeo and Juliet" will be Margaret Mather's bill the rest of the week.

By paying $1 a week you can get a two and a quarter ounce solid 14 karat Elgin gold watch for $43 at Barrett & Sherwood's, one of the oldest firms in the city, or a filled gold one for $20. See ad.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Bottle Meier's, a regular mini theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

The Wigwam gives a matinee on Monday, Admission Day.

Manager Jack Hallinan, of the Cremorne, has returned from his extended trip East, looking well.

WANTED—Two lady performers for Bottle Meiers for Monday. Apply at FIGARO Office.

The greatest bill ever given at the Bella Union is promised for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. All the variety performers in town have volunteered. It will beat the record.

Franks & Morrison, sketch team, and the four Carls, musical eccentrics, will be new features at the Wigwam this week. The "Phantasma" remains another week.

John F. Raymond, a good performer, has been engaged to produce his popular pantomime, "The Comanche," at the Bella Union. Laura Huget and Paul La Drew will also be added to the company.

The Eureka calls on all its company for "A Trip to Paris" every night.

Admont Mona-try Chamber Quartette (Kammer Musik) will be the novelty at the Orpheum this week in conjunction with the vaudeville company. They give a fine musical entertainment.

Hallet & Raymond, funny and knock-about comedians, appear at the Bella Union this week.

Manager Walterstein has eight lady specialists at the Eureka in his vaudeville bill. They prevade the stage, if they do not rule it.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company is drawing crowded houses here for their farewell week in "The City Directory." The comedy is novel in theme, is very amusing, is of the light, musical order, and the company is first-class.

The new songs and medleys introduced this week take well, and the "Johnny Get Your Gun" medley, Charlie Reed and May Yohe's dialect duet and Reed's burlesque song, "Sailing," have made deserved hits.

Charlie Reed, as the Chicago detective, shows great versatility in his various disguises and creates lots of fun. The other John Smiths are ably impersonated by the popular comedians, John Gilbert, Ignacio Martinetti, Wm. Collier, Wm. F. Mack and Harry Standish, who are with him in the laugh-making swim.

Nor are the ladies in "The City Directory" company less noted; Miss May Yohe was the star of the "Crystal Slipper;" Miss Helen Reimer was for five years with Hoyt's "Rag Baby" and the "School Mistress;" and Misses Wilson, Kirby, Archmere, Thorne and Howard come from the McCaull and Casino Opera Companies.

The piece is rich in charming songs and concerted pieces, and the lady members, all clever and refined, and all good singers, render them admirably. "The City Directory" is punctuated with laughter and applause and annotated with encores.

W S Mullaly, well known here, composed and arranged its music, and leads its orchestra.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be next week's attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded," the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar," it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play that has made its mark in the East, is the bill this week, with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Verey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath comes into action. The local of the last three acts is on the Thames, near London.

Miss Morris evinces decided ability in the different phases of the play, and in the third act, where she sees the face of the assassin in a mesmeristic trance, and wakes, denounces Verey as the murderer, shows great dramatic power. Mr Buckley sustains his role with his usual impressiveness and ability. Stockwell falls into a young comedy part very successfully. John Jack earned a good mark as the jolly Pearce Parker, and all the company filled their parts acceptably. The scenery is new and the stage settings notably good.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar next week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, G. C. B. Wood, and the regular Alcazar Co. Nov 6

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that takes the stage of the California the present week is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

One of the sensational features is the proposed sale of a slave by two lawless whites to avoid to have acquired their slaves by cruelty, men in a career of crime for which they have been persecuted and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm McVay and R. J. Moye. There is a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. The theatre was crowded, and the play bids fair to do a fine two weeks' business

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. present another decided novelty at the Orpheum this week in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik), in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment, with George Wood, the "somewhat different comedian;" Plon Plon, the Parisian crayon artist; Franz Reilhofer's Tyrolean Troupe; Miss Annie Darce, prima donna soprano; the Leon Brothers, dashing acrobats and high somerset performers, and other talent versatile.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, will have a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday, Sept. 9th. James M. Ward Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The big Grand promises to be full on Sunday night.

Box office open on Friday.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

Mr. Cotton has made arrangements to have the benefit take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, Sept. 15th. It is assured that a great bill, with the choice of volunteers, and a full house will grace the occasion.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the first time at Morosco's this week. G. W. Reynolds is the groceryman, Darrell Vinton the policeman, James Carden is the bad boy's father and Conchita is his sweetheart. It ought to do the banner business.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be next week's attraction at Morosco's.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is a rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Franks and Morrison, the clever sketch team; the farewell week of the European musical eccentrics, the four Carls, and Wm. Tischbein, the trombone soloist, will be new features at the Wigwam this week.

There is also a startling new novel sensation at the Wigwam this week in the Eastern craze, the dissolving tableaux by twenty-five young ladies, the wonderful illusion of the vanishing of living, acting, talking people into air, and their reappearance, when the strange "Phantasma" has its turn on the programme.

In addition, two Human Chameleons make their first appearance in America in their dazzling metamorphose. Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West put in new appearances in vocal and change specialties, and Sig. Luigi del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Johnes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John F. Raymond makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "The Comanches," with all the company in the cast, and Lena Hoffman and Lizzie Russell are added to the vocal staff.

The greatest bill of the season will be for Dick Foster's benefit on Friday night. Forty-three artists, representing, by consent of the managers, all the variety theatres in town. Go early.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Haley and Flynn, knockabouts; Alex. Davies, premier ventriloquist; Maggie Gordon the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Chas. Morrell, Ruby Grant, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Mattie Wallace and the versatile Nestell.

Two good acts this week: "The Four Shamrocks" and "Ressurection."

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Billy Akarman, the popular all around performer; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer are new this week.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma" is the last finale act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J Byrnes, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Ned Thatcher, a fine vocal comedian, and Miss May Madison, a clever serio-comic, are new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "High Life," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

Kitty Goodwin, the champion song and dance lady, opens the olio, followed by Thatcher, Eva Williams, James Fitz, Miss Rose Devere and others in musical turns and specialties, and Billy Bently in his fine musical act. Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "Escaped from Sing-Sing," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "The Hod Carrier," calling for the company in the cast.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

D. D. Lloyd, one of the staff of the New York Tribune, fell dead of heart disease on the 5th inst., at the age of 38 years. It was while Washington correspondent of that journal that he wrote his bright, satirical comedy, "For Congress," for John T. Raymond, and created for him a character, General Limber, that fitted him like a glove. Lloyd afterward wrote "The Woman-Hater," expressly for Raymond, which he was playing successfully at the time of his death. His other plays were "The Dominie's Daughter" and one he had just completed, "The Senator." Of late years he was one of the editorial staff of the Tribune, and was accounted one of its brightest writers.

At a deaf and dumb institute in Nebraska, recently, nine young ladies, radiant in white robes and flowers, sang the dear "Suanee River" by sign. This singing by sign is one of the most curious of all the mutes' accomplishments; the denoting of the rise and fall of the human voice, all the inflections and deflections, its pealing sounds and dying cadences, by graceful waves of the hands and facial expression is something that must be seen to be comprehended or appreciated.

Carleton, the opera manager, expended $5,000 in costumes for a production of "Les Bigands" before he discovered that Rudolph Aronson owned the copyright by purchase.

Suncoe Lee, an old actor, and Mrs. Henrietta De Bar, widow of the rare old Ben De Bar, the once famous St. Louis actor and manager, are to be admitted to the Forrest Home, Philadelphia.

Edwin Booth has donated $500 for the formation of a library to bear his name in the native town of Bel Air, Md.

Maurice Barrymore is dramatizing Leander Richardson's story, "Lord Dunmeresy," for production in New York.

Bunchett's "Wild America" circus is still doing a big business in Berlin, and will go next to Vienna.

"King Cole II," the spectacular opera now playing at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, will be one of the Fall attractions at the Bush.

Helen Renner is not so pleasantly cast as one of the other ladies of "The City Directory," but deserves credit for doing her part ably and conscientiously.

Manager M. B. Leavitt was present at the opening of his New Windsor Theatre, Chicago—a large, handsome and elegantly appointed theatre—on Monday night, and telegraphed Manager Gottlob of its entire success. This gives him command at least of a Chicago house for his combinations. His next stepping stone on the way to California for his attractions will be his new theatre in Denver, now building.

Besides the burglars, who play so strong that they burst an iron safe every night, there are two strong comedy characters in "The Stowaway"—one a London street arab of the Poor Jo type, played by Marion Elmore, and the other a vagabond by Harry Booker. They are not in the safe explosion business, but it is safe to say they will attract attention.

Manager John Maguire, lessee of the Grand Opera House for three years from October 1st, telegraphed Thos. H. Andrews, on Monday, that he has arranged to open his season at the Grand on Saturday evening, October 12th, with a very strong Eastern combination.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23d. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that the terms of Mr. Herrmann's contract will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

There will be many volunteers and a host of first class specialty features, at Thos. H. Andrew's testimonial at the Grand Opera House on Sunday, Sept. 8th. See announcement programme in FIGARO.

When the alterations are complete the New York Academy stage will be one of the largest in the country. It will have a width of 157 feet and a depth of 96 feet.

The characters in M. B. Leavitt's "Spider and the Fly" are designated Progress, Industry, Knowledge, Ignorance, Idleness and Anarchy. Something of the order of Kiralfy's "Excelsior," where the triumphs of human progress

Prof. Donaldson's giant and giantess were married at Cincinnati on Sunday week. It was the biggest wedding they ever had in Porkopolis.

Edmund Yates, editor of the London World, is the authority for the statement that Mrs. Langtry will not act any more in America, but will remain in London as manageress of a London theatre. She has been to the springs doctoring for the gout—horribly unromantic that Lily should have the gout.

They had a war drama in Chicago on the 2nd inst. A premier danseuse had taken several pairs of tights to a tailor for cleaning, and upon calling for them was assessed $10. This she thought too much, but the tailor assured her that it was a case of pay or no tights. The lady refused to pay the $10 and the tailor hung onto the clothes. Then her ballet education came to her aid, and the enraged dancer "lit" into him; she kicked him simultaneously with both feet, under the chin and in the stomach, but the tailor was not going to be knocked out that way. He countered with his hot goose, and the premier danseuse wilted. Wonder if it was a tailor's goose that saved Rome.

The yacht "Success" in "The Stowaway" is a regular built up one, 38 feet in length, with masts 29 feet high. She is symetrical in proportion, with full rigging and sails, and the entire business of an act transpires on her deck. If they move her from the California stage for the company to take a trip over to Sausalito on her Sunday, the yacht clubs will probably give the Success a grand reception.

Statuesque Mme De Nauczsa and Chas. H. Butler, the comedian, will support Victoria Vokes.

Mark Twain's "Prince and Pauper," written for Elsie Leslie, reveals the adventures of the young Prince of Wales at the close of Henry VIII's reign, who exchanges his clothes for those of a pauper and the difficulty he encountered in getting back to the palace in such a disguise.

W. H. Gillette is adapting the German comedy, "Ein Toller Einfall (A Stupid Idea)" for Imre Kiraify, who proposes to place it on the road when completed, notwithstanding its ominously suggestive title.

Weber's opera, "Sylvana," has been successfully revived in Berlin. It was first produced in a strong old dramatic fashion as the "Dumb Girl of the Forest."

Marie Van Zandt did not score so big a triumph as her friends hoped in her five performances at Covent Garden this season, and it is said now that after a tour in the Colonies she will retire from the stage. She is still young, and a little success may induce her to change her mind.

We don's know of anything that has improved so much in our California climate in so short a time as "The City Directory" at the Bush. Some new and taking feature has superseded a weaker one every night, until the piece now is strong all the way through. Mr. Russell has shown his editorial ability and his adaptitude as a piece-maker most successfully. Credit must also be given to the quickness and talent of the company. We believe that company could be put into rehearsal for the "Barber of Seville" or "Il Trovatore" and in three nights render a very good performance of either opera—to say nothing of how they would shine in "Uncle Tom" or "Lights o' London."

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" next week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Edward Harrigan and company put in the week of the 9th at Denver.

Prestidigitateur Herrmann's recently imported variety company has captured New York. It is reported the finest and most novel affair seen for a long time. The Bush gets it when it comes to California.

The Alcazar will probably produce "Mankind," the last big melodramatic hit. L. R. Stockwell has secured the California rights.

Five Little Lord Fauntleroys in costume introduced in "The City Directory" this week are Reed, Martinetti, Gilbert, Mack and Collier.

Murray & Murphy, the Irish comedians, under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, commence Sept. 9th a two-weeks engagement at the New Bush Street Theatre in their laughable absurdity, "Our Irish Visitors," a play that is spoken of very highly by the critics throughout the country for the past four years. During the progress of the play there is introduced a large number of musical selections, Irish songs, ballads, jig and reel dancing. The N. Y. World says: "The Murray & Murphy Co. appeared at the Union Square Theatre in their highly amusing farce-comedy of Our Irish Visitors,' and the audience were kept in a continual laughter from beginning to end."

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See testimonial correspondence elsewhere in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

They have the burglars also in "The City Directory." When Charley Reed drops a nickel in the slot of the safe it explodes, frightens a little dog tied to it, that runs off the stage dragging the safe after him.

A railroad and cash girls' ballet, in which forty young women will take part, will be one of the novelties in Mr. M. B. Leavitt's production of "The Spider and

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Billy Akarman, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, made themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Haley & Flynn and Hayes & Marion have done good work at the Cremorne in the "Four Shamrocks" and Ned Nestell has created plenty of fun in "Resurrection."

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

The Wigwam gives a matinee on Monday, Admission Day.

Manager Jack Hallinan, of the Cremorne, has returned from his extended trip East, looking well.

WANTED—Two lady performers for Bottle Meiers for Monday. Apply at FIGARO Office.

The box office for Thos. H. Andrews' benefit at the Grand on Sunday night is now open. The fact that Prof. Jim Corbett has volunteered to have a four-round set-to with his favorite pupil, Mr. James Smith, has caused a big demand in "many families" for seats. Ladies know they can see a noted glove exhibition on the occasion with propriety, and are asserting their rights to do so. They naturally want to see the delight of the clubs—a glove contest.

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY.....SEPTEMBER 6, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Russell's Farce-Comedy Company, that has drawn such crowded houses in "The City Directory," leaves us on Monday, with all its pleasant musical numbers, pretty, talented girls, and bright comedians. Piece and company deserve their success. Last "City Directory" performance Sunday night. Get your seats in advance, or you may not get them at all.

—o—

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be next week's attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in extra programme announcement in adjoining columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Gwynne's Oath," a strong play, made its mark with Miss Isabel Morris as the heroine Gwynne Archer, and E. J. Buckley in the principal role of Harry Vesey. The first act takes place on the Seine, near Paris, where the motive of the play, the murder and the oath, comes into action. The local of the last three acts, where the plot is evolved, is on the Thames, near London.

Miss Morris evinces decided ability in the phases of the play, and shows great dramatic power.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar next week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood, and the regular Alcazar Co.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that held the stage of the California the present week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayior, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and E. J. Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesteting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light, and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. Business has been very good, and the play bids fair to do a fine two weeks, business.

Orpheum Opera House.

Managers Walter & Co. presented another decided novelty at the Orpheum this week in the first appearance in this city of the celebrated Admont Monastry Chamber Quartet (Kammer Musik), in their unique musical programme, in conjunction with a grand vaudeville entertainment, with George Wood, the "somewhat different comedian;" Plon Plon, the Parisian crayon artist; Fratz Reilhofer's Tyrolean Troupe; Leon Brothers, dashing acrobats and high somerset performers, and other talent versatile.

The Orpheum gives us a double company, comedy and specialty, next week. Burns and Donnelly appear as Muldoon and Mulcahy, in "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever Irish character delineators, and the play will be well cast.

The specialty bill will introduce some new and taking artists.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. H. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as acting manager and superintendant, has a testimonial benefit tendered to him on Sunday evening. James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Holden and others will appear for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. James Smith. See programme announcement in FIGARO.

The big Grand promises to be full on Sunday night.

Box office now open.

The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

Mr. Cotton has made arrangements to have the benefit take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, Sept. 15th. It is assured that a great bill, with the choice of volunteers, and a full house will grace the occasion.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

J. J. Williams, the original "Peck's Bad Boy," will present that rattling fun-maker for the last time at Morosco's Sunday matinee and evening. It has drawn big.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be next week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

This is the last week of Franks & Morrison' the four Carls, the "Phantasma" with its great illusions, the Human Chameleons, Adeline Branon and Miss Claudie West.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on next week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Mlle Garretta, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Marrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme announcement.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, put in appearances here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Johnes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John F. Raymond makes his first appearance with all the company in the cast, and Lena Hoffman and Lizzie Russell are added to the vocal staff.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Haley and Flynn, knockabouts; Marrells Bros., shadowgraphers; Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are new cards this week at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

Two good acts this week: "The Four Shamrocks" and "Resurrection."

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Billy Akarman, the popular all around performer; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are new this week.

The comical farce-comedy, "Dinglespiel's Dilemma," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Byrnes, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Ned Thatcher, a fine vocal comedian, and Miss May Madison, a clever serio-comic, are new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "High Life," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

Kitty Goodwin, the champion song and dance lady, opens the olio, followed by Thatcher, Eva Williams, James Fitz, Miss Rose Devere and others in musical turns and specialties, and Billy Bently in his fine musical act. Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "Escaped from Sing-Sing," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "The Hod Carrier," calling for the company in the

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

West & Fowler, popular sketch team, put in a new appearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Mamie Sanford, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, George West, James Post and Bob McDonald make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and West & Fowler are two versatile teams.

In the comedy, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Rudolph Aronson, of the New York Casino Comic Opera Company, has contracted to take his company, headed by Helen Lamont, for a six months' tour through Australia, beginning directly after their engagement in San Francisco in April, 1890. "Erminie" and "Nadjy" will be the chief operas, though some of the other Casino successes will be added to the repertoire, and the scenery and costumes for all the operas will be carried on the trip. This will be the first comic opera company that has gone from this city to the antipodes.

Herrmann, the magician, will be handled by a syndicate in 1890. Contracts have been signed by which he is to receive $50,000 for the professional services of himself and wife for forty-two weeks in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The 1890 season will close in San Francisco. We shall see the great magician before that, though, as Herrmann plays an engagement at the Bush under his own management, opening Sept. 23 1.

Roland Gideon Israel Barnett, the ex-comic opera manager, is now filling a seven years' engagement in the tailor shop of the Kingston, Canada, Penitentiary with success.

D. D. Lloyd, one of the staff of the New York Tribune, fell dead of heart disease on the 5th inst., at the age of 38 years. It was while Washington correspondent of that journal that he wrote his bright, satirical comedy, "For Congress," for John T. Raymond, and created for him a character, General Limber, that fitted him like a glove. Lloyd afterward wrote "The Woman-Hater," expressly for Raymond, which he was playing successfully at the time of his death. His other plays were "The Dominie's Daughter" and one he had just completed, "The Senator." Of late years he was one of the editorial staff of the Tribune, and was accounted one of its brightest writers.

At a deaf and dumb institute in Nebraska, recently, nine young ladies, radiant in white robes and flowers, sang the dear "Suwanee River" by sign. This singing by sign is one of the most curious of all the mutes' accomplishments; the denoting of the rise and fall of the human voice, all the inflections and modifications, its pealing sounds and dying cadences, by graceful waves of the hands and facial expression is something that must be seen to be comprehended or appreciated.

Carleton, the opera manager, expended $5,000 for costumes for a production of "The Brigands" before he discovered that Rudolph Aronson owned the copyright by purchase.

Edwin Booth has donated $500 for the formation of a library to bear his name in his native town of Bel Air, Md.

Maurice Barrymore is dramatizing Leander Richardson's story, "Lord Dunmeray," for production in New York.

"King Cole II," the spectacular opera bit playing at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, will be one of the Fall attractions at the Bush.

Besides the burglars, who play so strong that they burst a chilled iron safe every night, there are two strong comedy characters in "The Stowaway"—one a London street arab of the Lord Dundreary type, played by Marion Elmore, and the other a negro boy by Harry Booker. They are not in the safe explosion business, but it is safe to say they will attract attention.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrman's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

When the alterations are complete the New York Academy stage will be one of the largest in the country. It will have a width of 157 feet and a depth of 96 feet.

The characters in M. B. Leavitt's "Spider and the Fly" are designated Progress, Industry, Knowledge, Ignorance, Idleness and Anarchy. Something of the order of Kiralfy's "Excelsior," where the triumphs of human progress

ELEVEN P. M.

Drop the curtain; put out the light;
The play is ended, and, wrong or right,
The players weary, with minds unstrung,
Enter the bar room one by one.

What's the difference, do you care
That saw them under the footlights' glare?
Do you question if they are ill or well,
As long as no "chestnuts" to you they tell?

"What are their troubles to you?" you say;
"At the end of the week they'll get their pay."
Yes, they'll get it; they are only hired,
To keep the world from getting tired.

They, poor devils, with aching hearts,
Must hide their sorrows and play their parts;
In one short night, from eight to eleven,
Many an actor has earned a Heaven.

So don't begrudge them a glass of beer,
(The Bohemian is sure to crop out here);
Their troubles are over. "Waiter!" I cry,
"Eins! Hello, Monty! Hans, make that zwei!"
—[New York Clipper.

The New York Mercury says: Modjeska is to be paid $800 a week for her services with Edwin Booth; Billy Emerson, the minstrel, receives $500 a week from W. S. Cleveland; Bob Slavin, the minstrel, is paid $300 a week, and Maurice Barrymore $250.

Louis R. Warwick, a well known actor, died recently in a Chicago hospital after the amputation of a leg. He fell down accidentally about three weeks ago and broke the limb which caused his death. He was buried in the Elks' Rest by the Actors' Fund.

Prestidigitateur Herrmann's recently imported variety company has captured New York. It is reported the finest and most novel affair seen for a long time. The Bush gets it when it comes to California.

Manager Daniel Frohman will begin his regular Lyceum Theatre season in November with Belasco's "Charity Ball."

Augustin Daly is about to erect a glass awning in front of his theatre.

Prof. Donaldson's giant and giantess were married at Cincinnati on Sunday week. It was the biggest wedding they ever had in Porkopolis.

Edmund Yates, editor of the London World, is the authority for the statement that Mrs. Langtry will not act any more in America, but will remain in London as manageress of a London theatre. She has been to the springs doctoring for the gout—horribly unromantic that Lily should have the gout.

They had a war drama in Chicago on the 2nd inst. A premier danseuse had taken several pairs of tights to a tailor for cleaning, and on calling for them was assessed $10. This she thought too much, but the tailor assured her that it was a case of pay or no tights. The lady refused to pay the $10 and the tailor hung onto the clothes. Then her ballet education came to her aid, and the enraged dancer "lit" into him; she kicked him simultaneously with both feet, under the chin and in the stomach, but the tailor was not going to be knocked out that way. He countered with his hot goose, and the premier danseuse wilted. Wonder if it was a tailor's goose that saved Rome.

Statuesque Mme De Nauczaz and Chas. H. Butler, the comedian, will support Victoria Vokes.

Mark Twain's "Prince and Pauper," written for Elsie Leslie, reveals the adventures of the young Prince of Wales at the close of Henry VIII's reign, who exchanges his clothes for those of a pauper and the difficulty he encountered in getting back to the palace in such a disguise.

W. H. Gillette is adapting the German comedy, "Ein Toller Einfall (A Stupid Idea)" for Imre Kiraify, who proposes to place it on the road when completed, notwithstanding its ominously suggestive title.

Weber's opera, "Sylvana," has been successfully revived in Berlin. It was first produced in a strong old dramatic fashion as the "Dumb Girl of the Forest."

Marie Van Zandt did not score so big a triumph as her friends hoped in her five performances at Covent Garden this season, and it is said now that after a tour in the Colonies she will retire from the stage. She is still young, and a little rest may induce her to change her mind.

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Edward Harrigan and company put in this week at Denver.

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in "Cortenia" on the 16th inst.

The Alcazar will probably produce "Mankind," the last big melodramatic hit. L. R. Stockwell has secured the California rights.

Murray & Murphy, the Irish comedians, under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, commence this week a two-weeks engagement at the New Bush Street Theatre in their laughable absurdity, "Our Irish Visitors," a play that is spoken of very highly by the critics throughout the country for the past four years. During the progress of the play there is introduced a large number of musical selection, Irish songs, ballads, jig and reel dancing. The N. Y. World says: "The Murray & Murphy Co. appeared at the Union Square Theatre in their highly amusing farce-comedy of 'Our Irish Visitors,' and the audience were kept in a continual laughter from beginning to end."

Blanchett's "Wild America" circus is still doing a big business in Berlin, and will go next to Vienna.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Manager Edward Foster sends up a fine San Francisco organized specialty company to play at the Cinnie Opera House, Sacramento, for the Fair season, consisting of the following talent: The Tudors, comedy sketch team; Sig Luigi Del Oro, musical specialist; Emery & Russell, sketch team; Millar Brothers' Dramatic Tour of the World; Frank Lawton, slack-wire act; Antoine Branco, operatic vocalist; Franks & Marion Bursell, and J. W. Leonte, well known pantomimist. The company will be accompanied by a uniformed brass band of fifteen pieces, with a lady cornetist to play solos in front of the theatre. This is a strong specialty organization to send out into the world outside of San Francisco; yet we think it will yield good returns in Sacramento for Fair week. The company will open under the management of Manager Chas. P. Ball, lessee of the Sacramento theatre, on the 8th inst.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

"Did you divide your bonbons with your little brother, Mollie?" "Yes, mam, I eat the candy and gave him the mottoes. He is awfully fond of reading."

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... SEPTEMBER 9, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be this week's attraction at the Bush in the amusing comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The play and players have been a success East. The New York Star says the play was received "with mirth unbounded;" the Herald speaks of "the continual uproar" it created, and the Sun says the play "makes the house a scene of uninterrupted mirth."

See cast in programme announcement.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of his father's.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that is on the stage of the California for its last week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and R. J Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesteating scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light, and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. Business has been very good, and bids fair to hold out to the end of the week.

Margaret Mather follows "The Stowaway" for the week of Sept. 16th in "Gretchen" at popular prices.

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gives us a double bill this week. Burns & Donnelly appear as Muldoon and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with some of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever [illegible] and the play is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry [illegible] and [illegible] Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and make things very lively.

[illegible] a grand instrumental concert is given [illegible] by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House.

Thos. D. Andrews, so long connected with the Grand as [illegible] manager and superintendent, had a benefit testimonial tendered to him on Sunday evening. James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Edmonds, E. J. Buckley and others appeared for the occasion in Dan. O'Connell's Irish drama of "The Red Fox," followed by some olio features, and closing with Prof. Jim Corbett in a friendly set-to with his pupil, Mr. [illegible] Smith, in which the ladies of the audience [illegible]

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

Mr. Cotton has made arrangements to have the benefit take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, Sept. 15th. It is assured that a great bill, with the choice of volunteers, and a full house will grace the occasion.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Mlle Garretta, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Marrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite Thomas C. Leary, remain.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, liven things up here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie La Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John W. Pholte makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchoo," with all the company in the cast, and Frank La Mondue does a daring wire-walking act.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New faces [illegible] Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Thompson & Rourke, Contortionists, and Wm. Zanders, comedian.

Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are late [illegible] at the Cremorne.

The [illegible] specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "the Spanish Beauty, or American Man-of-War men Abroad," in [illegible] scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one who can appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening, and especial attention is [illegible]

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Kitty Goodwin, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox.

Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "No Cure, No Pay," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "Full Hand," calling for the company in the cast.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Franks & Morrison, the Hebrew character sketch team, put in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, George West, James Post, Bob McDonald and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and West & Fowler are two versatile teams.

In the [illegible] afterpiece "Pim Plon," new songs and dances are [illegible] the original business [illegible] introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

The Eureka [illegible] very Sunday.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial benefit to-day, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See [illegible] and [illegible] in [illegible]. It presents a fine list of [illegible] and a very strong bill will be presented.

A [illegible] and [illegible] girls' ballet, in which [illegible] young women will take part, will be one of the novelties in Mr. M. B. Leavitt's production of "The Spider and the Fly."

Manager John Maguire, lessee of the Grand Opera House for three years from October 1st, wires that he has arranged to open his season at the Grand on Saturday evening, October 12th, with a very

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Phil Mack has gone to Chicago to take a position on Magician Keller's business staff.

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauty," the new piece at the Cremorne this week, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Slade knocked out. Slade had Gorilla in a barn and went in to interview him, when the lightweight sprang upon him, bore him to the ground, and was driven off with great difficulty. His fighting was foul. Slade had one eye badly gouged, his nose was partially torn off, his whiskers pulled out, besides having his arm badly bitten. This happened at Fort Wayne, Indiana. The gorilla had broken out of his cage.

Manager Edward Foster sends up a fine San Francisco organized specialty company to play at the Clunie Opera House, Sacramento, for the Fair season, consisting of the following talent: The Tudors, comedy sketch team; Sig Luigi Del Oro, musical specialist; Emery & Russell, sketch team; Millar Brothers' Dioramic Tour of the World; Frank La Monone, slack-wire act; Adeline Branon, operatic vocalist; Franks & Marion, Bursell, and J. W. Thoite, well known pantomimist. The company will be accompanied by a uniformed brass band of fifteen pieces, with a lady cornetist to play solos in front of the theatre. This is a strong specialty organization to send out into the world outside of San Francisco; yet we think it will yield good returns in Sacramento for Fair week. The company will play under the management of Manager Chas. P. Hall, lessee of the Sacramento theatres, opening Sept 15th.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See play, cast and other announcement in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

Manager Rudolph Aronson, of the New York Casino Comic Opera Company, has contracted to take his company, headed by Helen Lamont, for a six months' tour through Australia, beginning directly after their engagement in San Francisco in April, 1890. "Erminie" and "Nadjy" will be the chief operas, though some of the other Casino successes will be added to the repertoire, and the scenery and costumes for all the operas will be carried on the trip. This will be the first comic opera company that has gone from this city to the antipodes.

Herrmann, the magician, will be handled by a syndicate in 1890. Contracts have been signed by which he is to receive $50,000 for the professional services of himself and wife for forty-two weeks in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The 1890 season will close in San Francisco. We shall see the great magician before that, though, as Herrmann plays an engagement at the Bush under his own management, opening Sept. 23d.

Blanchett's "Wild America" circus is still doing a big business in Berlin, and will go next to Vienna.

Herrmann, the greatest living magician, will open at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on September 23d. We are authorized to state by Manager Gottlob that by the terms of Mr. Herrman's contract he will not appear at any other theatre in this city, either before or after his engagement at the Bush.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

McKee Rankin follows Chanfrau at the Alcazar.

"Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, opens at the California on the 23d, with "Barnes of New York" coming after the "Brass Monkey."

The entrances to both the Bush and the Alcazar Theatres are adorned with elegant floral pieces, last night's testimonials to Murray & Murphy at the Bush and Miss Ethel Brandon at the Alcazar.

The Examiner publishes a "special" dispatch from a New York Herald cable to-day—doubtless paid for by the parties interested—giving an account of Mrs. Langtry's appearance at the theatre at Wolverhampton, England, last night; in which her acting is described as "artistic," and a long rivelet of type is used to tell about her five dresses and "the Langtry chemise." What bosh! The Examiner man very properly headed the dispatch, "Mrs. Langtry's Dresses"—but he might have added something more.

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

The Baldwin closes for two weeks. Fanny Davenport in "La Tosca" opens it on the 23d. The same play on its last visit here opened the Baldwin after a five weeks' vacation. "La Tosca" will have an elaborate production.

Frank Hooge, who made himself popular during the recent Bijou season, is managing the business end of the Camilla Urso testimonial.

Louis Schmidt, leader of the Bush St. orchestra, is again in his seat. He has had his summer off, traveled over Europe, and not found a seat he likes as well as the old one.

Mr. Douglas White, manager of the coming Gilmore Jubilee Festival, is in town. Gilmore's great band of eighty instrumentalists opens in this city early in November.

J. J. Williams in "Peck's Bad Boy" held the banner week of receipts at Morosco's, and in his re-engagement in the same piece last week he beat his own record. He is now double champion of the box office.

Lawrence & Connor's "Widow O'Brien" Company open in Portland, at Cordray's Musee and Theatre, on the 16th.

Dan Morris Sullivan will strengthen his company, now at Armory Hall, Sacramento, playing the "Mirror of Ireland," for rehearsing his new Irish plays, "Sheil Logar," "Blarney" and "The Husking Bee," and start out from there on his interior season.

The people engaged for "The Spider and the Fly," M. B. Leavitt's new spectacular pantomime and burlesque, are Bessie Cleveland, Hilda Thomas, Pauline Markham, the Allen Sisters (Ray and Louise), Ada Dare, Catherine Hill, Lulu Reddan, Marguerite Wood, the Dare Brothers, James R. Adams, Aug. Siegrist, Dorst & Oreste, Joseph Mealey and the Lenten Brothers. The company will number fifty people, including a large ballet and chorus. This spectacle will be seen at the Bush Street Theatre during the holidays, and will be the first Christmas pantomime, strictly speaking, we have had in the city for some years.

Wm. H. Crane opens the season at the Chicago Opera House in his new comedy, "On Probation," this week.

Ada and Rillie Deaves try their new starring play on the 13th at Bridgeport, Connecticut.

John O'Brien, of circus fame, died at his home in Philadelphia on the 7th, aged 53.

The villain of a well known melodrama had to be shot. The supers came on and fired at him accordingly, but the property-man had omitted to load the guns, and the only sound was the faint click of the falling hammers. The villain had to die, and rose to the occasion. Throwing up his arms, he exclaimed, "I dies perforated by a thousand bullets, but I takes the opportunity of cursing with my last breath the niggardly government that supplies its army with air-guns."

The New York Mercury says: Modjeska is to be paid $800 a week for her services with Edwin Booth; Billy Emerson, the minstrel, receives $500 a week from W. S. Cleveland; Bob Slavin, the minstrel, is paid $300 a week, and Maurice Barrymore $250.

Augustin Daly is about to erect a glass awning in front of his theatre.

They had a war drama in Chicago on the 2nd inst. A premier danseuse had taken several pairs of tights to a tailor for cleaning, and on calling for them was assessed $10. This she thought too much, but the tailor assured her that it was a case of pay or no tights. The lady refused to pay the $10 and the tailor hung onto the clothes. Then her ballet education came to her aid, and the enraged dancer "lit" into him; she kicked him simultaneously with both feet, under the chin and in the stomach, but the tailor was not going to be knocked out that way. He countered with his hot goose, and the premier danseuse wilted. Wonder if it was a tailor's goose that saved Rome.

The characters in M. B. Leavitt's "Spider and the Fly" are designated Progress, Industry, Knowledge, Ignorance, Idleness and Anarchy. Something of the order of Kiralfy's "Excelsior," where the triumphs of human progress were pictured dramatically.

A railroad and cash girls' ballet, in which forty young women will take part, will be one of the novelties in Mr. M. B. Leavitt's production of "The Spider and the Fly."

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Edward Harrigan and company put in this week at Denver.

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in "Gretchen" on the 16th inst.

The Alcazar will probably produce "Mankind," the last big melodramatic hit. L. R. Stockwell has secured the California rights.

Roland Gideon Israel Barnett, the ex-comic opera manager, is now filling a seven years' engagement in the tailor shop of the Kingston, Canada, Penitentiary with success.

Murray & Murphy, the Irish comedians, under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square Theatre, New York, commence this week a two-weeks engagement at the New Bush Street Theatre in their laughable absurdity, "Our Irish Visitors," a play that is spoken of very highly by the critics throughout the country for the past four years. During the progress of the play there is introduced a large number of musical selections, Irish songs, ballads, jig and reel dancing. The N. Y. World says: "The Murray & Murphy Co. appeared at the Union Square Theatre in their highly amusing farce-comedy of 'Our Irish Visitors,' and the audience were kept in a continual laughter from beginning to end."

Manager Daniel Frohman will begin his regular Lyceum Theatre season in November with Belasco's "Charity Ball."

Prof. Donaldson's giant and giantess were married at Cincinnati on Sunday week. It was the biggest wedding they ever had in Porkopolis.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 10, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be this week's attraction at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

The Bush was crowded to the doors, and "Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced, and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

The house overflowed Monday night.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that is on the stage of the California for its last week is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars, who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayter, Harry Booker, Wm McVey and R. J. Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht scene is one of the most realistic ever seen on the stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light, and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. Business has been very good, and bids fair to hold out to the end of the week.

Margaret Mather follows "The Stowaway" for the week of Sept. 16th in "Gretchen" at popular prices.

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gives us a double bill this week. Burns & Donnelly appear as Mulcahy and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever Irish character delineators, and the play is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry Orndorff and Freddie Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and make things very lively.

In addition, a grand instrumental concert is given from the stage by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

The benefit takes place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening. The performance will consist of the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, the Ewings, Richard Thornton and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features. For details, see the programme in an adjacent column.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists: Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Great Ellwood, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Lu gi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, liven things up here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John W. Pholte makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchon," Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Thompson & Roberts, contortionists, and Will Zanders, comedian.

Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are late cards at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauty; or, American Man-of-Waramen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, May Madison, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox.

Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "No Cure, No Pay," and the very full bill closes

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

Murray & Murphy get a deal of fun out of their piece.

J. B. Donovan has made a big hit with Edwin F. Mayo.

Ethel Brandon plays her dual roles charmingly in "Kit."

Miss Lizzie Conway has been engaged for Kate Castleton's company.

Webster & Brady's "She" Company made its New York bow at the People's, Sept. 9th

Mrs. Potter and Kyrle Bellew have been spending the Summer in Paris.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll comprise the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

Minnie Palmer opened in Glasgow, Scotland, on August 26th. The house was sold out for the first night.

Milt G. Barlow has made an unmistakable hit in "Three Wives to One Husband." He bids farewell to minstrelsy.

The Olympic Theatre, London, is to be razed, and a new playhouse erected on its site. The Olympic has had a checkered career.

Mabel de Babian Bown has signed with the Grand Museum stock company of Boston. She will play the leading comedy roles. [What a name for a museum bill!]

Charles Vanderhoff has returned from Europe. He has been engaged to play the Duc de Beaumont in "Paul Kauvar" and to take general direction of the stage.

The yacht Success in "The Stowaway" is as clean a looking craft as any yacht can be and is as pretty as a picture.

Dr. Charles L. Howard has secured "The Main Line" for two years. He will use it to fill in the dates made for the late George Fawcett Rowe.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See play, cast and olio announcement in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Edward Harrigan and company put in this week at Denver.

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in "Gretchen" on the 16th inst.

The people engaged for "The Spider and the Fly," M. B Leavitt's new spectacular pantomime and burlesque, are Bessie Cleveland, Hilda Thomas, Pauline Markham, the Allen Sisters (Ray and Louise), Ada Dare, Catherine Hill, Lulu Reddan, Marguerite Wood, the Dare Brothers, James R Adams, Aug. Siegrist, Dorst & Oreste, Joseph Mealey and the Lenten Brothers. The company will number fifty people including a large ballet and chorus. This spectacle will be seen at the Bush Street Theatre during the holidays, and will be the first Christmas pantomime, strictly speaking, we have had in the city for some years.

Wm. H Crane opens the season at the Chicago Opera House in his new comedy, "On Probation," this week

McKee Rankin follows Chanfrau at the Alcazar.

John O'Brien, of circus fame, died at his home in Philadelphia on the 7th, aged 53.

The villain of a well known melodrama had to be shot. The supers came on and fired at him accordingly, but the property-man had omitted to load the guns, and the only sound was the faint click of the falling hammers. The villain had to die, and rose to the occasion. Throwing up his arms, he exclaimed, "I dies perforated by a thousand bullets, but I takes the opportunity of cursing with my last breath the niggardly government that supplies its army with air-guns."

John Maguire and Joy Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Miss Ada Rehan was toasted by Alex. Dumas at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris last week. The epigrammatic author of "Camille" said, lifting his glass: "This wine is honored by its application."

Flugard & Dana, the young men who fell from the trapeze at the Orpheum on Sunday afternoon, were not injured, as reported. They went on with their act the same evening.

Company in "Mr. Barnes of New York," which opened at Albany on Sept. 9th: B. R. Graham, Sheridan Block, Benjamin Hendrick, Horace Lewis, A. Roberts, J. A. Washburne, H. H. Baruch, E. N. Morrison, T. W. Fitzgerald, E. Prince, Emily Rigl, Emma Field, Effie Germon, Annie H. Blancke and Laura Palmer.

George Osbourne, for several years associated in the management of the Alcazar Theatre, has been engaged for the Portuguese in "Featherbrain." Mr. Osbourne will also appear with Miss Maddern in several new one-act comedies that are to be tried this season. We can vouch for his doing the Portuguese satisfactorily. Character acting is his strong suit.

One of the last letters John McCullough ever wrote was to Joseph Haworth, who was formerly in his support, and for whom he cherished a warm personal regard. Mr. Haworth treasures this letter as a precious memento. It contains these words: "We will write our names on the immortal pages of Shakespeare. They look better there and live a good deal longer. Let me guide you up the dark, steepy path to fame. There are none who can follow you."

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

Lewis Morrison began his "Faust" season in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 9th inst. His daughter Rosabel is the Marguerite, and Edw. J. Abraham enters his fourth season with him as business manager.

Lillian Lewis gave a poor widow, in black, a temporary loan of $5 on a play of her husband's, found among his papers, and on opening the role afterwards found a printed copy of "The Lady of Lyons."

Lou Harrison heard from. Louis Aldrich made his money and his fame in one success, which had the run of the States for some eight years. As he grew old he became aggressive against everything except the heavy entertainment he was fitted for. He met Louis Harrison the other day in a New York saloon and opened in his usual manner of commenting on his style of "acting." Harrison in reply indulged in a long and interesting homily on the virtues of Mr. Aldrich, and finally wound up by saying: "In a word, in my opinion, and in the opinion of the vast and seething body of actors in America, you are the crepe on the door-bell of the drama. If my business next season is as big as you think you are, I shall stay out fifty-two weeks, and come in on a special train with bells on the wheels and sky-rockets belching from the engine. But if it is the size of the brain which coyly lurks beneath your hat, I shall stay out less than a week—and will probably have to walk home then. Good-morning." This might read as offensively personal, but it was rattled off so pleasantly, with a half burlesque wink and spirit of raillery, that it robbed it of its sting—but it told, nevertheless.

Ada and Rillie Deaves try their new starring play on the 13th at Bridgeport, Connecticut.

"Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, opens at the California on the 23d, with "Barnes of New York" coming after the "Brass Monkey."

The entrances to both the Bush and the Alcazar Theatres are adorned with elegant floral pieces, Monday's testimonials to Murray & Murphy at the Bush and Miss Ethel Brandon at the Alcazar.

The Examiner publishes a "special" dispatch from a New York Herald cable to-day—doubtless paid for by the parties interested—giving an account of Mrs. Langtry's appearance at the theatre at Wolverhampton, Eng., Monday night; in which her acting is described as "artistic," and a long rivelet of type is used to tell about her five dresses and "the Langtry chemise." What bosh! The Examiner man very properly headed the dispatch, "Mrs. Langtry's Dresses"—but he might have added something more.

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

The Baldwin closes for two weeks. Fanny Davenport in "La Tosca" opens it on the 23d. The same play on its last visit here opened the Baldwin after a five weeks' vacation. "La Tosca" will have an elaborate production.

Mr. Douglas White, manager of the coming Gilmore Jubilee Festival, is in town. Gilmore's great band of eighty instrumentalists opens in this city early in November.

J. J Williams in "Peck's Bad Boy" held the banner week of receipts at Morosco's, and in his re-engagement in the same piece last week he beat his own record. He is now double champion of the box office.

Lawrence & Connor's "Widow O'Brien" Company open in Portland, at Cordray's Musee and Theatre, on the 16th.

Dan Morris Sullivan will strengthen his company, now at Armory Hall, Sacramento, playing the "Mirror of Ireland," for rehearsing his new Irish plays, "Sheil Logar," "Blarney" and "The Hacking Bee," and start out from there on his interior season.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Phil Mack has gone to Chicago to take a position on Magician Keller's business staff.

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauty," the new piece at the Cremorne this week, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Slade knocked out. Slade had Gorilla in a barn and went in to interview him, when the lightweight sprang upon him, bore him to the ground, and was driven off with great difficulty. His fighting was foul. Slade had one eye badly gouged, his nose was partially torn off, his whiskers pulled out, besides having his arm badly bitten. This happened at Fort Wayne, Indiana. The gorilla had broken out of his cage.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Frank Hoogs, who made himself popular during the recent Bijou season, is managing the business end of the Camilla Urso testimonial.

The Alcazar will probably produce "Mankind," the last big melodramatic hit. L. R. Stockwell has secured the California rights.

EVENING EDITION

WEDNESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 11, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr J M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be this week's attraction at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

The Bush was crowded to the doors, and "Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced, and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

The house overflowed Monday night.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that is on the stage of the California for its last week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audiences.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars who are said to have acquired their skill as crackesmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The management have kept their promise in staging the play at the New California Theatre with as fine scenic effects as has ever been used in melodrama, and the production is complete in every particular.

Among the best known members of the cast are: Miss Marion Elmore, Grace Thorne, Sara Holmes, Frank Losee, Joseph Slayton, Harry Hooker, Wm McVey and R. J. Moye. They all do a multiplicity of good work in the manifold vicissitudes of the drama. Its most interesting scenes are the safe-cracking episode and the yacht scene. We have already told how the safe scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic tain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the White-Wings. Nothing is missing. There she lies at anchor, full rigged and complete, with jib, foresail and mainsail lowered and hanging about the booms, her symetrical white hull glistening in the light, and men and women moving about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carrying on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. Business has been very good, and bids fair to hold out to the end of the week.

Margaret Mather follows "The Stowaway" for the week of Sept. 16th in "Gretchen" at popular prices.

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gives us a double bill this week Burns & Donnelly appear as Mulcahy and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever Irish character delineators, and the play is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry Orndorff and Freddie Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and make things very lively.

In addition, a grand instrumental concert is given from the stage by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

The benefit takes place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening. The performance will consist of the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, the Ewings, Richard Thornton and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features. For details, see the programme in an adjacent column.

Box office open Thursday, 12th inst.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Naunary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Great Ellwood, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, liven things up here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John W. Pholte makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchon," with all the company in the cast, and Frank

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Thompson & Roberts, contortionists, and Will Zanders, comedian.

Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are late cards at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauty; or, American Man-of-Warsmen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, May Madison, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox.

Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "No Cure, No Pay," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "Full

Franks & Morrison, the Hebrew character sketch team, put in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, George West, James Post, Bob McDonald and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and West & Fowler are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

TWO NEW MELODRAMAS.

Two new (to America) melodramas were produced on August 31st; "The Great Metropolis," an American play, the joint production of George Jessop and "Ben" Teal—both former residents of San Francisco—and "Hands Across the Sea," one of Pettit's English plays. The first was produced at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, and it takes that city and vicinity as the ground work of its scenic effects.

The New York Truth asserts that the text of the play is weak, too weak to sustain its six acts—in fact it applies the word "rubbish" to it. Of the scenery the Truth says: "The boudoir incident at the end of the third act, where the life-saving villain (Will Webster) discovers his sister (Gertrude) to be the victim and mistress of the villain (Walter Mowbray), is so creditably done that it is worthy of a successful play. And the open ocean with wreck of the ship Flying Fish, at the end of the fourth act, is quite capable in itself of making any other play successful. When two most powerful situations, together with excellent acting, are inadequate to make this play even tolerable, the imagination may picture the dampening possibilities in it. The plot is that so often worked of a sailor son reported lost at sea, a rich father leaving his wealth to a designing nephew, the nephew betraying an innocent maiden, whose brother knows all the circumstances of everything and straightens them out so his sister may kill herself respectably. In addition to the two incidents I have quoted, there are other powerful elements of success in the affair; six powerful element, in fact, made up of an accidental killing, four assaults with intent to kill, a suicide, and a flow of blood that even wipes out the record of 'Romeo and Juliet.' The company is far above the play. The claim of 'The Great Metropolis' rests upon the scenic effects. The first scene is an ornate, tawdry parlor. The lighthouse interior is realistic, the beach at Sandy Hook is good, including the peacock blue sky. The life-saving station is admirable, and the wreck scene grand. The L station is true to life, even the advertisements, while East River and Brooklyn Bridge is only marred by the disgusting spectacle of a corpse floating on the surface of the river."

'Hands Across the Sea" is a London success, transplanted across the sea, and produced for the first time in this country at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on August 31st. It has the advantage over the American play of a long run, and having been coached into a perfect dramatic condition. Of the piece the Truth says: "Pettit has put into 'Hands Across the Sea' some of his best work. There is nothing original, the subject is old and hackneyed, but it is treated in a good, healthy way. The language is terse and crisp, while the action is on the go constantly. It starts out at a good pressure and never flags. The managers have added to the value of the play some excellent scenery and have engaged a strong company to interpret it. W. J Ferguson has a character somewhat villainous, but a strong one, and he plays it with excellent discretion. I think it is one of his best pieces of work. The comedy part is entrusted to John Buckstone and he does it ample justice. Gus Levick is the hero and has a congenial part. It is well defined and Mr. Levick is equal to all its requirements. Edna Carey as the heroine was excellent. There are only two female parts of any consequence in the play. The title is rather misleading and is against the play. There is nothing in the work in connection with it. The play can be set down as the first of the present season's successes."

Margaret Mather will step in between "The Stowaway" and the Hoyt season on the stage of the California with a week in 'Gretchen' on the 16th inst.

Lillian Lewis gave a poor widow, in black, a temporary loan of $5 on a play of her husband's, found among his papers, a [illegible] the role afterwards found

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Miss Clara Morris begins her season Sept. 30th.

Adele Belgarde will play the principal part in Sardou's "Exiles" this season.

Imre Kiralfy's "Lagerdere" Company begin their season Sept. 17th.

W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel manager, is looking for a New York theatre.

The Booth-Modjeska Company begin rehearsals Sept. 16th at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y.

Neil Burgess begins his season at the Union Square Theatre, N. Y., early in November, in 'A Country Fair."

Charles Abbott and Maggie Mitchell will be married on the latter's return from Europe. This is certain.

Miss Delia Stacey has replaced Fanny Rice in "The Brigands" during the latter's absence from the New York Casino on a brief vacation.

John A. Mackey has one of the best parts in "A Stuffed Dog," the new farce comedy which H. S. Taylor puts on the road shortly.

The reserved chair portion of the balcony of Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre has introduced the dime-in-the-slot opera glass system.

Miss Delia Stacey, a daughter of Col. Stacey, formerly of the United States Army, is one of the most attractive members of the New York Casino Company.

Annie Barclay, who plays Mme. Gerard in "Lights and Shadows," is pronounced "not only a very handsome and shapely woman and exquisite dresser, but also a clever actress."

Sol Smith Russell has made a hit at Daly's Theatre, N. Y., as Noah Vale in Edward E. Kidder's comedy-drama, "A Poor Relation," and is drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in that house.

Walter Mathews, the young tragedian, intends making "Aramis, the Master Mind,' a feature of his tour this season. The plays of his repertory will all be handsomely staged with new scenery and costumes, and his supporting company will be a competent one.

John Maguire and Jay Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Miss Ada Rehan was toasted by Alex. Dumas at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris last week. The epigrammatic author of "Camille" said, lifting his glass: "This wine is honored by its application."

Company in "Mr. Barnes of New York," which opened at Albany on Sept. 9th: B. R. Graham, Sheridan Block, Benjamin Hendrick, Horace Lewis, A. Roberts, J. A. Washburne, H. H. Baruch, E. N. Morrison, T. W. Fitzgerald, E. Prince, Emily Rigl, Emma Field, Effie Garmon, Annie H. Blancke and Laura Palmer.

George Osbourne, for several years associated in the management of the Alcazar Theatre, has been engaged for the Portuguese in "Featherbrain." Mr. Osbourne will also appear with Miss Madden in several new one-act comedies that are to be tried this season. We can vouch for his doing the Portuguese satisfactorily. Character acting is his strong suit.

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

Lewis Morrison began his "Faust" season in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 9th inst. His daughter Rosabel is the Marguerite, and Edw. J. Abraham enters his fourth season with him as business manager.

Lou Harrison heard from. Louis Aldrich made his money and his fame in one success, which had the run of the States for some eight years. As he grew old he became aggressive against everything except the heavy entertainment he was fitted for. He met Louis Harrison the other day in a New York saloon and opened in his usual manner of commenting on his style of "acting." Harrison in reply indulged in a long and interesting homily on the virtues of Mr. Aldrich, and finally wound up by saying: "In a word, in my opinion, and in the opinion of the vast and seething body of actors in America, you are the crepe on the door-bell of the drama. If my business next season is as big as you think you are, I shall stay out fifty-two weeks, and come in on a special train with bells on the wheels and sky-rockets belching from the engine. But if it is the size of the brain which coyly lurks beneath your hat, I shall stay out less than a week—and will probably have to walk home then. Good-morning." This might read as offensively personal, but it was rattled off so pleasantly, with a half burlesque wink and spirit of raillery, that it robbed it of its sting—but it told, nevertheless.

Ada and Rillie Deaves try their new starring play on the 13th at Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See play, cast and olio announcement in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

The yacht Success in "The Stowaway" is as clean a looking craft as any yacht can be and is as pretty as a picture.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll comprise the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

Minnie Palmer opened in Glasgow, Scotland, on August 26th. The house [illegible] for the first night

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Phil Mack has gone to Chicago to take a position on Magician Keller's business staff.

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauty," the new piece at the Cremorne this week, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

'Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, opens at the California on the 23d, with "Barnes of New York" coming after the "Brass Monkey."

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

J. J Williams in 'Peck's Bad Boy" held the banner week of receipts at Morosco's, and in his re-engagement in the same piece last week he beat his own record. He is now double champion of the box office.

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

EVENING EDITION

THURSDAY.....SEPTEMBER 12, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, will be this week's attraction at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her compation character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

—c—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J. Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their mettle and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

The house overflowed Monday night.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that is on the stage of the California for its last week is a picturesque melodrama with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars who are said to have acquired their skill as crackmen in a career of crime for which they have done penance and reformed. The scene is wrecked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the Whitewings. Nothing is missing. Men and women move about her decks, entering and emerging from her cabin, and carry on the business of the play with all the semblances of nature. The scene is a beauty.

"The Stowaway" is a well constructed melodrama and has an unusually good company to give it interest. Business has been very good, and bids fair to hold out to the end of the week.

Margaret Mather and company put in a farewell week at the California, at popular prices, next week in "Gretchen."

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gives us a double bill this week. Burns & Donnelly appear as Mulcahy and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever Irish character delineators, and the play is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry Orndorff and Freddie Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and make things very lively.

In addition, a grand instrumental concert is given from the stage by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

The benefit takes place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening. The performance will consist of the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, J. W Thompson, Richard Thornton, Miss Kate Dalgleish and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features. For details, see the programme in an adjacent column.

Box office now open.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Great Ellwood, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, liven things up here this week, in conjunction with a full company consisting of Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others.

John W. Phoite makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchon," with all the company in the cast, and Frank La Mondue does a daring wire-walking act.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Thompson & Roberts, contortionists, and Will Zanders, comedian.

Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are late cards at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauty; or, American Man-of-Waramen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, May Madison, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox.

Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "No Cure, No Pay," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "Full Hand," calling for the company in the cast.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Franks & Morrison, the Hebrew character sketch team, put in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Merriam, George West, James Post, Bob McDonald and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and West & Fowler are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Plon Plon," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY..... SEPTEMBER 13, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Geo. C. Miln, the Chicago preacher-actor, who has met with such wonderful success in Shakespearean characters in Australia, has leased the Melbourne Opera House for one year, and will open there the last of this month in "Henry V," to be followed by other Shakespearean revivals produced in a grand style. We would not accept Miln here as an actor.

The talented Idalene Cotton makes her last appearance at her father's testimonial on Sunday night at the Grand, prior to her departure East.

The following is a list of the maximum nightly receipts at the principal London theatres: Toole's, $750; Globe, $1040; Avenue, $1450; Prince of Wale's, $1450; Haymarket, $1500; Savoy, $1000; Lyceum, $2150; Drury Lane, $2250.

Nothing of the "variety" style of theatricals seems to exist in Russia, where, indeed everything patronized by the masses is of the crudest and most primitive type.

A new French version of "Romeo and Juliet" will be produced at the Paris Odeon early in the Autumn with two prize winners of the Conservatoire, M. Maury and Mlle. Moreno, as the hero and heroine.

Booth and Barrett inaugurate the dramatic festival at the Amphitheatre Auditorium, Louisville, commencing September 23d, at a certainty of $20 000 for the week. Barrett will produce his new tragedy, "Cinelon," at the Chicago Opera House, October 7th.

Miss Mary Anderson, says the London Figaro, is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles, at least not for any continued period, as in addition to the rest she has already enjoyed eighteen months' more relaxation is the medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York, and not London.

Nobody except the diligent critic has any notion how many new plays are produced in a London season. In the August number of the Theatre, edited by Clement Scott, it is shown that twenty four new plays and eight important revivals were put on the stage between June 19th and July 23d—that is to say that, allowance being made for Sundays, a new play was produced or an old one revived at rather more than the rate of one a day.

Ada and Billie Deaves try their new starring play to-night at Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See play, cast and other announcement in our columns. It presents a fine list of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

The yacht Success in "The Stowaway" is as clean a looking craft as any yacht can be and is as pretty as a picture.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll comprise the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

Minnie Palmer opened in Glasgow, Scotland, on August 26th. The house was sold out for the first night.

Lillian Lewis gave a poor widow, in black, a temporary loan of $5 on a play of her husband's, found among his papers, and on opening the role afterwards found a printed copy of "The Lady of Lyons."

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, is playing in California on the 23d.

The late George Fawcett Rowe was a man of mark in the profession. He had played many parts, and was a prolific writer for the stage. He had traveled the world over as actor and manager. Among his plays produced in this country were "Little Em'ly," "Brass," "Geneva Cross," "Fifth Avenue" and "Beauty." Of late years Mr. Rowe had not been very successful either as player or playwright. But he did not know the meaning of the word "despair," and was ever up and doing. He was much of a Bohemian, and was invested with many of the eccentricities of genius. He was a painter of no mean pretentions, and an ardent collector of bric-a-brac. The death of George Fawcett Rowe removes a prominent figure from the world of the stage.

The Dramatic News says: "Miss Hope Booth, cute, cunning and curly, is engaged for "Featherbrain." Is it a poodle?

"Bric-a-Brac," Frank Tannehill's new farce-comedy, is a success.

The critics have had a private rehearsal by the four "imported" English specialty girls that are to appear in "Kajanka." One of them says: "They are Miss Nellie Sinnett, Miss Edith Macklin and the Batcheler Sisters. They are dancers of the Letty Lind style. One of their dances is a minuet, during which they sing the latest London concert success. This is an innovation, and will be a taking feature, as all four of the young ladies can really sing. The air of their song is very taking. It is a sort of revised edition of 'Annie Lauri,' that is likely to be whistled from one end of the country to the other when it gets a start. The chorus is catchy, and will make an immense hit. The costumes of these Gaiety dancers, as they are called, are very bewitching. They wear twelve skirts, requiring seventy-five yards of material. Added to their dancing, one of the girls is a phenomenal alto singer, and while all are comely, two are above the average for good looks, and one of them, Miss Sinnett, is remarkably handsome. If the balance of the specialty people in 'Kajanka' are like these Managers Miller and Stern will make a pot of money with their new spectacle." Imagine Ben Stern's open smile when he read that notice.

Miss Clara Morris begins her season Sept. 30th.

Adele Belgarde will play the principal part in Sardou's "Exiles" this season.

Imre Kiralfy's "Lagerdere" Company begin their season Sept. 17th.

W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel manager, is looking for a New York theatre.

The Booth-Modjeska Company begin rehearsals Sept. 16th at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y.

Neil Burgess begins his season at the Union Square Theatre, N. Y., early in November, in "A Country Fair."

Charles Abbott and Maggie Mitchell will be married on the latter's return from Europe. This is certain.

John A. Mackey has one of the best parts in "A Stuffed Dog," the new farce comedy which H. S. Taylor puts on the road shortly.

The reserved chair portion of the balcony of Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre has introduced the dime-in-the-slot opera glass system.

Annie Barclay, who plays Mme. Gerard in "Lights and Shadows," is pronounced "not only a very handsome and shapely woman and exquisite dresser, but also a clever actress."

Sol Smith Russell has made a hit at Daly's Theatre, N. Y., as Noah Vale in Edward E. Kidder's comedy-drama, "A Poor Relation," and is drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in that house.

John Maguire and Jay Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Miss Ada Rehan was toasted by Alex. Dumas at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris last week. The epigrammatic author of "Camille" said, lifting his glass: "This wine is honored by its application."

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

Lou Harrison heard from. Louis Aldrich made his money and his fame in one success, which had the run of the States for some eight years. As he grew old he became aggressive against everything except the heavy entertainment he was fitted for. He met Louis Harrison the other day in a New York saloon and opened in his usual manner of commenting on his style of "acting." Harrison in reply indulged in a long and interesting homily on the virtues of Mr. Aldrich, and finally wound up by saying: "In a word, in my opinion, and in the opinion of the vast and seething body of actors in America, you are the crepe on the door-bell of the drama. If my business next season is as big as you think you are, I shall stay out fifty-two weeks, and come in on a special train with bells on the wheels and skyrockets belching from the engine. But if it is the size of the brain which coyly lurks beneath your hat, I shall stay out less than a week—and will probably have to walk home then. Good-morning." This might read as offensively personal, but it was rattled off so pleasantly, with a half burlesque wink and spirit of raillery, that it robbed it of its sting—but it told, nevertheless.

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

J. J. Williams in "Pack's Bad Boy" held the banner week of receipts at Morosco's, and in his re-engagement in the same piece last week he beat his own record. He is now double champion of the box office.

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

"The Spanish Beauty," the new piece at the Cremorne this week, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Port are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

The Chronicle publishes this morning a trade circular cut of one of Sam Davis' lank, Carson Valley, sagebrush fed mules, known among breeders as the long-eared Davis stock, and labels it Sunol, the California colt that recorded 2.16½ at the State Fair. It is supposed a suit for heavy damages will follow.

"Did you divide your bonbons with your little brother, Mollie?" "Yes, mam. I eat the candy and gave him the mottoes. He is awfully fond of reading.

Punctilious Traveler—Now, what ought little boys to say when a gentleman gives them a nickle for carrying his satchel? Small Boy—Tain't 'nough.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre will be this week's attraction at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

—o—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opens at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective. Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

The house overflowed Monday night.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway," that is on the stage of the California for its last week, is a picturesque melodrama, with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Chief among the sensational features is the breaking open of a safe by two burglars who are said to have acquired their skill as cracksmen in a convict prison for which they have done penance and reformed. The scene is worked up by the use of drills, jimmies, gunpowder and explosion—and away goes the safe door.

The yacht setting is one of the most realistic ones ever on the California's stage. The curtain rises on a perfect built up schooner yacht of the size of the Whitewings. Nothing is missing. Men and women move about her decks entering and emerging from her cabin, and carry on the business of the play with all give it interest. Business has been very good, and bids fair to hold out to the end of the week.

Margaret Mather and company put in a farewell week at the California, at popular prices, next week. The first three nights of the week and Wednesday matinee Miss Mather will appear as Gretchen in W. S. Gilbert's romantic drama of that title.

"Romeo and Juliet" will be given for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gives us a double bill this week. Burns & Donnelly appear as Mulcahy and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny business abridged. These are two very clever Irish character delineators, and the play is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry Orndorff and Freddie Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and make things very lively.

In addition, a grand instrumental concert is given from the stage by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

By referring to an announcement in our columns it will be seen that that popular minstrel, actor and old-time resident of San Francisco, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East. The testimonial is from some of our best citizens and is a bona fide one.

The benefit takes place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening. The performance will consist of the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, J. W Thompson, Richard Thornton, Miss Kate Dalgleish and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features. For details, see the programme in an adjacent column.

Box office now open.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, will be this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid. The action of the play moves from Castle Garden to the New York streets and dens, sometimes on the wharf and sometimes in a deadfall, but always active and eventful. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Reynolds, Owens, Donley, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Margaret Marshall and full company are called for the cast.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms next week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noitier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Great Ellwood, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Stanley, the exhibition of the rack and other old instruments of torture, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, complete.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, the clever and funny exponents of knockaboutism, liven things up here this week, in conjunction with a full

John W. Pholte makes his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchon," with all the company in the cast, and Frank La Mondue does a daring wire-walking act.

Friday night, amateur night, is one of the most interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Thompson & Roberts, contortionists, and Will Zanders, comedian.

Miss Maggie Gordon, the charming balladist, and Stella Clair, the popular vocalist, are late cards at the Cremorne.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Dot Melville, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, V. A. Everett, and the versatile Nestell.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauty; or American Man-of-Waramen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, May Madison, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox.

EVENING EDITION

SATURDAY..... SEPTEMBER 14, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after once (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Sunday night will be the last night of "The Streets of New York," with its burglars in safe-cracking and its realistic yacht on the stage. It has recorded a good engagement, and goes away to new fields for the burglars to operate in and new seas for the yacht to spread her sails on.

It looks as though our worthy old-timer, Ben Cotton, would have a big house for his farewell benefit testimonial at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night. See programme and take it in.

The only Leon, formerly of Kelly & Leon's Minstrels, is organizing a white face company for the presentation of short burlesques.

Edward Strauss and his orchestra have been engaged for next season at Manhattan Beach.

Alf. Hayman, a well known gymnast, whose right name was Albert Hopkins, and who was also a partner of Farini's sensational Lulu in this country, died in London recently, aged 35.

A late London paper says that Charles Wyndham will make "The Headless Man" his piece de resistance in America, and it adds: "If the Yankees will plank down dollars to see this then there are lots of shows here that are not without hope."

James L. Dempsey, the Irish comedian of the Howard Athenæum Company, died lately at Lowell, Mass.

Geo. C. Miln, the Chicago preacher-actor, who has met with such wonderful success in Shakespearean characters in Australia, has leased the Melbourne Opera House for one year, and will open there the first of this month in "Henry V.," to be followed by other Shakespearean revivals produced in a grand style. We would not accept Miln here as an actor.

The talented Idalene Cotton makes her last appearance at her father's testimonial on Sunday night at the Grand, prior to her departure East.

The following is a list of the maximum nightly receipts at the principal London theatres: Toole's, $750; Globe, $1040; Avenue, $1450; Prince of Wales, $1450; Haymarket, $1500; Savoy, $1000; Lyceum, $2150; Drury Lane, $2250.

Nothing of the "variety" style of theatres seems to exist in Russia, where, indeed, everything patronized by the masses is of the crudest and most primitive type.

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

"Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

Murray & Murphy get a deal of fun out of their piece.

Booth and Barrett inaugurate the dramatic festival at the Amphitheatre Auditorium, Louisville, commencing September 23d, at a certainty of $20 000 for the week. Barrett will produce his new tragedy, "Ganelon," at the Chicago Opera House, October 7th.

Miss Mary Anderson, says the London Figaro, is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles, at least not for any continued period. She has been to the east she has already enjoyed seven months' more relaxation than medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York, and not London.

Nobody except the diligent critic has any memory how many new plays are produced in a London season. In the August number of the Theatre, edited by Clement Scott, it is shown that twenty four new plays and eight important revivals were seen on the stage between June 19th and July 23d—that is to say that, allowance being made for Sundays, a new play was produced or an old one revived at rather more than the rate of one a day.

Ada and Rillie Deaves try their new starring play to-night at Bridgeport.

The phonograph has raised a curious question in Europe in regard to copyright. It appears that lately in Venice, the baritone Kaschmann sang the romance from "Hamlet" into an instrument which was owned by Edison's representative, and now the singer threatens legal proceedings if his tones are reproduced. As such tones can be multiplied ad lib., the question arises, would such reproductions be an infringement of copyright? This would be a perplexing legal knot to unravel but for the fact that the vocalist voluntarily furnishing the phonograph with his tones thereby bars any subsequent claims for redress.

Marie Wainwright's production of "Twelfth Night," made at McVicker's on Aug. 26th, is said by Chicago critics to be fully the equal in elaboration, beauty and correctness of any of Henry Irving's Shakespearean revivals. The acting of Miss Wainwright and her company is also warmly praised. [But, will it draw?]

The company who are to appear in Chattan Donnelly's new farce comedy, "Mamma," includes Frank Deshon, Amy Ames, Della Fox, May Duryes, Clara Washburn, Emily Aiken, Mildred Meredith, Gus Hennessey, Wm. Sloane, Sol Aiken and Fred C. Palmer, with W. F. Falk as manager. They open Sept. 14th. They are booked at the Bush.

Robert Mantell is in Kansas City this week. He reaches St. Louis Sept. 30th.

Miss Rose Coghlan, who "is having very great success on the Pacific Coast," says Eddy's Squib, "will play a New York engagement at the Fourteenth St. Theatre."

A sheriff is now superintending "The Fall of Babylon" at Philadelphia. Pompeii stands in ruins here.

Among the guests at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris were Augustin Daly, Ada Rehan, Chauncy Depew, Thomas Edison, John Hoey and the United States Minister.

It is probable that George Thatcher and Lewis Dockstader will become partners in a minstrel enterprise.

Mlle. De Rosa, the dancer, goes with Imre Kiralfy's "Largadere" Co.

Mayor Grant, of New York, vetoed the Aldermanic resolution permitting Augustin Daly to erect a glass awning in front of his theatre.

The Dramatic News says: "Miss Hope Booth, cute, cunning and curly, is engaged for "Featherbrain." Is it a poodle?

"Bric-a-Brac," Frank Tannehill's new farce-comedy, is a success.

Miss Clara Morris begins her season Sept. 30th.

Adele Belgarde will play the principal part in Sardou's "Exiles" this season.

Imre Kiralfy's "Lagerdere" Company begin their season Sept. 17th.

W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel manager, is looking for a New York theatre.

The Booth-Modjeska Company begin rehearsals Sept. 16th at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y.

Neil Burgess begins his season at the Union Square Theatre, N. Y., early in November, in "A Country Fair."

Charles Abbott and Maggie Mitchell will be married on the latter's return from Europe. This is certain.

John A. Mackey has one of the best parts in "A Stuffed Dog," the new farce comedy which H. S. Taylor puts on the road shortly.

The reserved chair portion of the balcony of Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre has introduced the dime-in-the-slot opera glass system.

Annie Barclay, who plays Mme. Gerard in "Lights and Shadows," is pronounced "not only a very handsome and shapely woman and exquisite dresser, but also a clever actress."

Sol Smith Russell has made a hit at Daly's Theatre, N. Y., as Noah Vale in Edward E. Kidder's comedy-drama, "A Poor Relation," and is drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in that house.

John Maguire and Jay Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Miss Ada Rehan was toasted by Alex. Dumas at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris last week. The epigrammatic author of "Camille" said, lifting his glass: "This wine is honored by its application."

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

A new French version of "Romeo and Juliet" will be produced at the Paris Odeon early in the Autumn with two prize winners of the Conservatoire, M. Maury and Mlle. Morene, as the hero and heroine.

Ethel Brandon plays her dual roles charmingly in "Kit."

Ethel Brandon reappears at the Alcazar as stock star with Chanfrau in "Kit" this week. The cast is very full, including E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Company.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll commence the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

Minnie Palmer opened in Glasgow, Scotland, on August 26th. The house was sold out for the first night.

Lillian Lewis gave a poor widow, in black, a temporary loan of $5 on a play of her husband's, found among his papers, and on opening the role afterwards found a printed copy of "The Lady of Lyons."

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, opens at the California on the 23d, with "Barnes of New York" coming after

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauty," the new piece at the Cremorne this week, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Ben Cotton is to have a grand testimonial tendered to him, prior to his departure East, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, the 15th inst. See play, cast and other announcement in our columns. It presents a fine lot of names as tenderers. A very strong bill will be presented.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, have been this week's attraction at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

—c—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," opened at the Alcazar this week, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that cannot be equalled on the present stage, and compares most favorably with that of the elder Chanfrau's. The play is one of standard merit, and is filled with action and humor to commence with and this Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Jonas Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will be continued for its second week.

New California Theatre.

"The Stowaway" has its last representation at the California on Sunday night. It is a picturesque melodrama with an abundance of exciting incidents to stimulate the interest of the audience.

Margaret Mather and company put in a farewell week at the California, at popular prices, next week. The first three nights of the week and Wednesday matinee Miss Mather will appear as Gretchen in W. S. Gilbert's romantic drama of that title.

"Romeo and Juliet" will be given for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

Orpheum Opera House.

The Orpheum gave us a double bill this week. Burns & Donnelly appeared as Mulcahy and Muldoon, respectively, in the full version of "Muldoon's Picnic," with none of its funny work left out. The specialty company is well cast. Fred Page, Horace Barnes, Harry Orndorff and Freddie Stockmeyer take parts in the "Picnic" and made things very lively.

In addition, a grand instrumental concert is given from the stage by the augmented Hungarian Orchestra in a repertoire of popular selections.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

That popular minstrel, actor and old-timer, Ben Cotton, will be the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East, tendered by some of our best citizens, at the Grand Opera House to-morrow, Sunday evening.

The bill includes the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, J. W. Thompson Richard Thornton, Miss Kate Dalgleish and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features. For details, see the programme in an adjacent column.

Box office now open.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"The Waifs of New York," a graphic dramatic story of New York life and characters, has been this week's attraction at Morosco's, with J. J. Williams as Billy the Kid, and full company in the cast. The piece has drawn largely.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms next week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noitier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Wigwam presents eleven new faces on this week's bill. They are Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Great Ellwood, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Gibbons & Ford and Prof. Martinez.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Luigi Del Oro, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; La Drew, the female impersonator; V. A. Stanley in acrobatic songs and dances, and the clever and versatile Langs are the new features at the Wigwam next week.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Hallet & Raymond, Annie Ryner, song and dance artist; Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others livened things up here this week.

John W. Pholte made his first appearance in his funny pantomime of "Never Catchon," with all the company in the cast.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, are the new things for next week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New next week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berben and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is the first production of the nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or, American Man-of-Waramen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo are new. John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Jennie Dixon, the Scottish nightingale, and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The comical farce-comedy of "Crosby's Capers," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pepie next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Marie Morino, operatic vocalist, and a fine singer, is new this week. The bill opens with Fox's act, "On the Force," with Fox and all the company in the cast.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, May Madison, Eva Williams, Rose Devere, Ned Thatcher, James Fitz and J. D. Fox

Ned Thatcher adds to the olio his act, "No Cure, No Pay," and the very full bill closes with Comedian James Fitz' afterpiece, "Full Hand," calling for the company in the cast.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards next week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company under the stage management of Mr. Bob McDonald.

Franks & Morrison, the Hebrew character sketch team, put in a reappearance this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrill, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jennie Fowler, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Stella Mariam, George West, James Post, Bob McDonald and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Plon Plon," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Biggs is down from fairtown Sacramento. He says they are crying out for tank dramas up there; one with a whole swimming bath in would be preferred.

Ben Cotton had a very good house for his farewell benefit testimonial at the Grand Opera House Sunday night, and everybody was glad of it.

Edly's New York Squib says: "Geo. Knight is slowly dying of a broken heart in Asbury Park N. J., and Sophie Worrell Knight, his devoted wife, is nearly broken hearted. She has been obliged to sell her diamonds and other jewelry in order to pay for the attendance of physicians and a professional nurse on her unfortunate husband. But Mrs. Knight has not entirely lost courage, for on Sept 9 th she went on the road as a star in musical comedies. She does this as a necessity, and will leave Mr. Knight in good hands during her absence."

Edward Strauss and his orchestra have been engaged for next season at Manhattan Beach.

Ada, a well known gymnast, whose right name was Albert Hopkins, and who was also a partner of Farini's sensational Lulu in this country, died in London recently, aged 35.

A late London paper says that Charles Wyndham will make "The Headless Man" his piece de resistance in America, and it adds: "If the Yankees will plank down dollars to see this then there are lots of shows here that are not without hope."

James L. Dempsey, the Irish comedian of the Edward Atherton Company, died lately at Lowell, Mass.

"Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

Geo. C. Miln, the Chicago preacher-actor, who has met with such wonderful success in Shakespearean characters in Australia, has leased the Melbourne Opera House for one year, and will open there the last of this month in "Henry V." to be followed by other Shakespearean revivals produced in a grand style. We would not accept Miln here as an actor.

The following is a list of the maximum nightly receipts at the principal London theatres: Toole's, $750; Globe, $1040; Avenue, $1450; Prince of Wale's, $1450; Haymarket, $1500; Savoy, $1000; Lyceum, $2150; Drury Lane, $2250.

Nothing of the "variety" style of theatricals seems to exist in Russia, where, indeed everything patronized by the masses is of the crudest and most primitive type.

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

Murray & Murphy get a deal of fun out of their piece.

Booth and Barrett manipulate the dramatic festival at the Amphitheatre Auditorium, Louisville, commencing September 23d, at a certainty of $20 000 for the week. Barrett will produce his new tragedy, "Ganelon," at the Chicago Opera House, October 7th.

Miss Mary Anderson, says the London Figaro, is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles, at least not for any continued period, as broad hint to the fact she has already enjoyed eighteen months more relaxation is the medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York, and not London.

Nobody except the diligent critic has any notion how many new plays are produced in a London season. In the August number of the Theatre, edited by Clement Scott, it is shown that twenty four new plays and eight important revivals were put on the stage between June 19th and July 23d—that is to say that, allowance being made for Sundays, a new play was produced or an old one revived at rather more than the rate of one a day.

Talented Idalene Cotton went on to fill up a missing specialty turn at her father's benefit at the Grand, and did Juliet's potion scene in imitation of Margaret Mather with great success. There was a mental force and expression to it that won her warm encomiums both before and behind the footlights. Idalene Cotton will be heard from yet.

Dunlop's Stage News says Jay Rial starts for San Francisco to take the management of the Grand Opera House. Several stock companies are booked to produce their Eastern successes there. It also adds: "Mr. Rial is the most courteous manager in America, and everybody in the profession wishes him the best kind of luck."

If W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel mogul, can't arrange for a theatre to his liking in New York he says he will build one.

The California Opera Company—the Tivoli "Said Pasha" company—began their Fall season at St. Louis, Sept. 15th, with H. W. Frillman, the minstrel and operatic basso, as the Rajah in place of Greenefelder.

Victoria Morosini, the young lady who won fame by marrying her father's coachman, and afterwards joined the ranks of the New York burlesquers and dropped out of sight, is home again in the "bosom" of her family. Her hubby does not appear in the home scene act. Their loves have soured and their pathways in life lead in different ways.

Lulu, the beautiful daughter of Alice Dunning Lingard, is shortly to become the wife of a London, Eng., lawyer.

Herr Vogl, the new Metropolitan tenor, is to be paid $32,000 for twenty-four performances and Richmann, the Vienna baritone, is to receive $25,000 for a like period.

A report from Philadelphia states that the Carleton Opera Company propose to play "The Brigands" in that city despite Rudolph Aronson's claim to the copyright.

The phonograph has raised a curious question in Europe in regard to copyright. It appears that lately in Venice, the baritone Kaschmann sang the romance from "Hamlet" into an instrument which was owned by Edison's representative, and now the singer threatens legal proceedings if his tones are reproduced. As such tones can be multiplied ad lib., the question arises, would such reproductions be an infringement of copyright? This would be a perplexing legal knot to unravel but for the fact that the vocalist voluntarily furnishing the phonograph with his tones thereby bars any subsequent claims for redress.

Marie Wainwright's production of "Twelfth Night," made at McVicker's on Aug. 26th, is said by Chicago critics to be fully the equal in elaboration, beauty and correctness of any of Henry Irving's Shakespearean revivals. The acting of Miss Wainwright and her company is also warmly praised. [But, will it draw?]

The company who are to appear in Grattan Donnelly's new farce comedy, "Mamma," includes Frank Deshor, Amy Ames, Della Fox, May Duryer, Clara Washburn, Emily Asker, Mildred Meredith, Gus Hennessey, Wm. Sloan, Sol Aiken and Fred C. Palmer, with W. F. Falk as manager. They open Sept 14th. They are booked at the Bush.

Robert Mantell is in Kansas City this week. He reaches St. Louis Sept. 30th.

A sheriff is now superintending "The Fall of Babylon" at Philadelphia. Pompeii stands in ruins here.

Among the guests at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris were Augustin Daly, Ada Rehan, Chauncey Depew, Thomas Edison, John Hoey and the United States Minister.

It is probable that George Thatcher and Lewis Dockstader will become partners in a minstrel enterprise.

Mlle. De Ross, the dancer, goes with Imre Kiralfy's "Largadere" Co.

Mayor Grant, of New York, vetoed the Aldermanic resolution permitting Augustin Daly to erect a glass awning in front of his theatre.

Conafrau in "Kit" this week, with Ethel Brandon, E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Co.

The Dramatic News says: "Miss Hope Booth, cute, cunning and curly, is engaged for "Featherbrain." Is it a poodle?

"Bric-a-Brac," Frank Tannehill's new farce-comedy, is a success.

Adele Belgarde will play the principal part in Sardou's "Exiles" this season.

Imre Kiralfy's "Lagerdere" Company begin their season Sept. 17th.

W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel manager, is looking for a New York theatre.

The Booth Modjeska Company began rehearsals today at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y.

Charles Abbott and Maggie Mitchell will be married on the latter's return from Europe. This is certain.

"A Brass Monkey," with pretty Flora Walsh-Hoyt and Charles Drew as principals, opens at the California on the 23d, with "Barnes of New York" coming after the "Brass Monkey."

The reserved chair portion of the balcony of Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre has introduced the dime-in-the-slot opera glass system.

John Maguire and Jay Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Miss Ada Rehan was toasted by Alex. Dumas at Buffalo Bill's breakfast in Paris last week. The epigrammatic author of "Camille" said, lifting his glass: "This wine is honored by its application."

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Billy Versatile Akarman takes the stage management of the Eureka this week.

Ned Foster's variety company had a warm reception in Sacramento—in fact it was deuced hot up there.

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

West & Fowler, Bob McDonald and James Post are the comedian quartette at the Eureka.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

The Golden Gate Quartette, with Murray & Murphy, render several new and taking numbers very finely.

Ethel Brandon plays her dual roles charmingly in "Kit."

Miss Clara Morris begins her season Sept. 30th.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll comprise the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

John A. Mackey has one of the best parts in "A Stuffed Dog," the new farce comedy which H. S. Taylor puts on the road shortly.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... SEPTEMBER 16, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, are in their farewell week at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

—o—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," is in his last week here, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that follows very closely that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J. Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain Gus Heatings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will draw for its second week.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play "The Runaway Wife."

New California Theatre.

Margaret Mather and company put in a fortnight's work at the California, a popular place, this week. The first three nights of the week and Wednesday matinee Miss Mather will appear as Gretchen in W. S. Gilbert's romantic drama of that title; her first appearance here in the character.

"Romeo and Juliet" will be given for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Grand Opera House—Ben Cotton's Benefit.

That popular minstrel, actor and old-timer, Ben Cotton, was the recipient of a worthy testimonial prior to his taking himself off with his wife and daughter for the East, tendered by some of our best citizens, at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening.

The bill included the Cottons, Ben, Idalene and Nellie, in their favorite domestic drama of "The Old Home," with Geo. Y. Stevens, J. W. Thompson, Richard Thornton, Miss Kate Dalgleish and others in the cast, and a taking olio of musical and specialty features.

The performance went off smoothly and the attendance was large.

FIGARO furnished the house programme.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted to good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noitier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; La Drew, the female impersonator; V. A. Stanley in acrobatic songs and dances, and the clever and versatile Langs are the new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, are the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie La Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zanders, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berben and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or, An American Man-of-War Amen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects. It is in its second week.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "Thompson's Dead," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burne, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new peple next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artistically and cleverly.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akarman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Mr. Stockranch—Excuse my mentioning the matter, sir; but as you are paying quite close attention to my daughter, I feel it nothing more than right I should ask your intentions. Mr. Cowboy—(displaying a large caliber Colt's navy)—To blow the head off that snarling bull-dog of yours if he is not chained when I call at the house to-night.

The road to ruin leads through the wicket gate.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 17, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

P. S Gilmore will reproduce his great musical work, the Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869 at the Mechanics' Pavilion, in this city, November 11th. He will bring here his New York band, together with his battery of artillery, anvil chorus, so that the Jubilee will be produced with all its original Boston features, and also a combination of fine vocalists. Mr. Gilmore's agent has succeeded in effecting an arrangement with our Handel and Haydn Society by which their valuable aid will be given to the event. They will add to the Jubilee their fine soloists and concerted singers and a trained chorus of 500 voices. The Jubilee will commemorate the twentieth anniversary of the Boston production, and will be a four days musical event.

Barry & Fay have played the circuit of the Pacific Coast and up and down the Union everywhere for years with their "McKenna's Flirtation," and New York city is now getting it for the first time, after it is played out in the "provinces," and it has made a hit too. It is funny to read the extended criticisms of the good old chestnut that is now running through the New York papers.

Dunlop's Stage News fears that Fred Bryton's revival of the "Red Pocket-Book" play, "Lost in Africa," will be lost somewhere in America.

When Manager Aronson's New York Casino Opera Company starts out on its across the Continent tour it will be heralded by elegant life-size paintings of Helen Lamont in the characters of Erminie and Princess Eteika assumed by that lady in the operas of "Erminie" and "Nadjy," for window displays.

Edward Strauss and his orchestra have been engaged for next season at Manhattan Beach.

A late London paper says that Charles Wyndham will make "The Headless Man" his piece de resistance in America, and it adds: "If the Yankees will plank down dollars to see this then there are lots of shows here that are not without hope."

James L Dempsey, the Irish comedian of the Howard Athenæum Company, died lately at Lowell, Mass.

"Our Irish Visitors" is full of ballads, songs, jigs and reel dancing.

The following is a list of the maximum nightly receipts at the principal London theatres: Toole's, $750; Globe, $1040; Avenue, $1450; Prince of Wale's, $1450; Haymarket, $1500; Savoy, $1000; Lyceum, $2150; Drury Lane, $2250.

Nothing of the "variety" style of theatricals seems to exist in Russia, where, indeed everything patronized by the masses is of the crudest and most primitive type.

John Maguire and Jay Rial, managers of the Grand Opera House, are coming here together and are expected daily.

Murray & Murphy get a deal of fun out of their piece.

Booth and Barrett inaugurate the dramatic festival at the Amphitheatre Auditorium, Louisville, commencing September 23d, at a certainty of $20 000 for the week. Barrett will produce his new tragedy, "Cleneloe," at the Chicago Opera House, October 7th.

Miss Mary Anderson, says the London Figaro, is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles at least not for any continued period, as in addition to the rest she has already enjoyed eighteen months more relaxation is the medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York, and not London.

John A. Mackey has one of the best parts in "A Stuffed Dog," the new farce comedy which H. S. Taylor puts on the road shortly.

"Gretchen" is handsomely staged.

Our holiday attractions are booked. Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre holiday card will be his Eastern spectacular burlesque company in the new pantomime of "The Spider and the Fly." The California's will be the new Kiralfy spectacle. The Baldwin's, the Duff Opera Company. The Grand Opera House, which enters the field permanently under John Maguire's management on Oct. 12th, is yet to be heard from.

Romeo and Juliet will recount their woes for the last nights of the week at the California.

"The Stowaway" was produced at Oakland with a background view of Lake Merritt in the yacht scene, and yet it didn't draw. As for the burglar scene, it fell flat. They could not understand it. Who ever heard of a burglar trying to crack an Oakland safe?

Miss Clyde Herron has a six months' engagement for Portland, Or., in leads.

Henry Chanfrau will visit Australia next season with a new play and "Kit."

Murray & Murphy will star in a new musical comedy next season, entitled "Pugs; or, Holding the Fort," by Frank Gassaway of Los Angeles.

Isabel Morris will open her road season in Reno, Nev., Sept. 30th, in Nelson Wheatcroft's "Gwynne's Oath" her own property.

During the last operatic year, at the Imperial Opera of Vienna, there have been 258 performances of opera, comprising sixty-four different works by thirty-two composers.

Talented Idalene Cotton went on to fill up a missing specialty turn at her father's benefit at the Grand, and did Juliet's potion scene in imitation of Margaret Mather with great success. There was a mental force and expression to it that won her warm encomiums both before and behind the footlights. Idalene Cotton will be heard from yet.

Dunlop's Stage News says Jay Rial starts for San Francisco to take the management of the Grand Opera House. Several stock companies are booked to produce their Eastern successes there. It also adds: "Mr. Rial is the most courteous manager in America, and everybody in the profession wishes him the best kind of luck."

If W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel mogul, can't arrange for a theatre to his liking in New York he says he will build one.

The California Opera Company—the Tivoli "Said Pasha" company—began their Fall season at St. Louis, Sept. 15th, with H. W. Frillman, the minstrel and operatic basso, as the Rajah in place of Greensefelder.

Victoria Morosini, the young lady who won fame by marrying her father's coachman, and afterwards joined the ranks of the New York burlesquers and dropped out of sight, is home again in the "bosom" of her family. Her hubby does not appear in the home scene act. Their loves have soured and their pathways in life lead in different ways.

Lulu, the beautiful daughter of Alice Dunning Lingard, is shortly to become the wife of a London, Eng., lawyer.

Herr Vogl, the new Metropolitan tenor, is to be paid $32,000 for twenty-four performances and Richmond, the Vienna baritone, is to receive $25,000 for a like period.

A report from Philadelphia states that the Carleton Opera Company propose to play "The Brigands" in that city despite Rudolph Aronson's claim to the copyright.

The company who are to appear in Grattan Donnelly's new farce comedy, "Mamma," includes Frank Deshor, Amy Ames, Della Fox, May Duryea, Clara Washburn, Emily Aiker, Mildred Meredith, Gus Hennessey, Wm. Sloane, Sol Aiken and Fred C Palmer, with W. F. Falk as manager. They open Sept. 14th. They are booked at the Bush.

A sheriff is now superintending "The Fall of Babylon" at Philadelphia. Pompeii stands in ruins here.

It is probable that George Thatcher and Lewis Dockstader will become partners in a minstrel enterprise.

Mlle. De Rosa, the dancer, goes with Imre Kiralfy's "Largadere" Co.

Mayor Grant, of New York, vetoed the Aldermanic resolution permitting Augustin Daly to erect a glass awning in front of his theatre.

Chanfrau in "Kit" this week, with Ethel Brandon, E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, James M. Ward, Carrie Clark Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the Alcazar Co.

The Dramatic News says: "Miss Hope Booth, cute, cunning and curly, is engaged for "Featherbrain." Is it a poodle?

Barry Sullivan is reported to be once more seriously ill.

Parties are already being made up for the first night of Herrmann's season at the Bush, on Monday week.

Murray, Murphy, Young and Carroll comprise the ballet in "Our Irish Visitors."

Eddy's New York Squib says: "Geo. Knight is slowly dying of a broken heart in Asbury Park, N. J., and Sophie Worrell Knight, his devoted wife, is nearly broken hearted. She has been obliged to sell her diamonds and other jewelry in order to pay for the attendance of physicians and a professional nurse on her unfortunate husband. But Mrs. Knight has not entirely lost courage, for on Sept. 9th she went on the road as a star in musical comedies. She does this as a necessity, and will leave Mr. Knight in good hands during her absence."

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Primrose & West's Minstrels this year have Primrose and Bob Slavin on the ends, ten comedians, a dozen vocalists, Crystal Palace first part, silk and satin costumes, new specialists, with Barney Fagin in new musical acts and West in fresh novelties.

Billy Versatile Akarman takes the stage management of the Eureka this week.

Ned Foster's variety company had a warm reception in Sacramento—in fact it was deuced hot up there.

Talking about walking, go and see Stanley walk the wire at the Wigwam.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr J M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, are in their farewell week at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement

—c—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," is in his last week here, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that follows very closely that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E J Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will draw for its second week.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play "The Runaway Wife."

New California Theatre.

Margaret Mather and company put in a farewell week at the California, at popular prices, this week. The first three nights of the week and Wednesday matinee Miss Mather will appear as Gretchen in W. S. Gilbert's romantic drama of that title; her first appearance here in the character. The story is the old one of Faust and Marguerite brightened up by Gilbert's incisive pen.

Miss Mather gives to Gretchen youth, grace comeliness, and commands the sympathies of her audience in the part. Her company rendered efficient support, and the play is well

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noitier, E. J. Holden as Fernaud, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; La Drew, the female impersonator; V. A. Stanley in acrobatic songs and dances, and the clever and versatile Langs are the new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides, Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, are the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Johnes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zanders, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berhen and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or American Man-of Warsmen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and mechanical effects. It is in its second week.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant,

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pople next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artisticly and cleverly.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akarman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franke make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

W. J. Scanlan began his tour in Cleveland, opening in "Strange as Lawn." His supporting company includes Mattie Ferguson, Helen Weatherbee, Millie Sackett, Cecil Wallace, Constance Wallace, Dora Vinton, Charles Mason, E. B. Marsden, Robert McNair, Thaddeus Shine, E. R. Webster, J. O. Le Brasse, A. Morrell, and George Loesch, musical director. H. F. Sandford is the business manager, and Isaac Newton, treasurer.

Donnelly & Girard began a two weeks' engagement at the New York Bijou Theatre on the 9th, appearing in "Natural Gas," in which they introduce new music and specialties. Their company this season includes Jennie Satterlee, Rachel Booth, Katherine B. Howe, Fanny Johnston,

William Horace Lingard made a deal of money in this country some twenty-odd years ago in a facial entertainment, something like Petrolf's. He afterwards acted with his wife, Alice Dunning, and lost it. He went to England, became a London manager, and is on top again. He is estimated to be worth $250,000, and has no Dunning now. She is Mrs. Alice Dunning Lingard now.

The new comic opera, entitled "Paola," has been well received in Philadelphia and New York. It will be put on the road this season.

WEDNESDAY..... SEPTEMBER 18, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

BOB EBERLE TALKS OF COMING BACK.

Bob Eberle has commenced his work of rehearsing the Booth-Modjeska Company, and met with a big setback on his first rehearsal. He writes to FIGARO as follows:

I arrived all right in New York. Not being ready for the new piece, Booth requested that I would take the company and run them through the business of "Hamlet" to see how they were up in it. They all done very well until I came to our new comedian in the grave scene. He was a burlesque stage graduate, and was a little full and very fresh. When he got to work in Ophelia's grave he commenced singing "Nickel in the Slot." I reprimanded him, and told him that those were not his lines.

"O, yes, guv'nor, I know," said Mr. Fresh, "but I don't want to give them the old chestnut. I'll give them something else when the time comes. I'll work the scene up, never fear. I'll give them the 'R zzle-Dazz e' or something that'll knock them, you know. No old-fashioned business for me, cully."

I never heard of such a thing in my life. I could not go on with the rehearsal. I felt so agrieved with the fellow's conduct that I snaked out of the grave and hustled out of the stage door in no time. Think of what poor old Bill Barry would have done to a fellow like that. I have reported him to Booth. Either he or I will have to go.

The company except the comedian is a very good one. Give my regards to all friends in good old San Francisco, and tell them I may be back with them sooner than expected. Send me my FIGARO regularly, anyhow. And Oblige

EBERLE.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre on Monday. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Primrose & West's Minstrels this year have Primrose and Bob Slavin on the ends, ten comedians, a dozen vocalists, Crystal Palace first part, silk and satin costumes, new specialists, with Barney Fagin in new musical acts and West in fresh novelties

Billy Versatile Akarman takes the stage management of the Eureka this week.

Ned Foster's variety company had a warm reception in Sacramento—in fact it was deuced hot up there.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other meen nical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

When Manager Aronson's New York Casino Opera Company starts out on its across the Continent tour it will be heralded by elegant life-size paintings of

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Female stars are getting very scarce. The withdrawal of three made-to-order stars—for lack of better—this season, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., and Mrs. Helen Dauvray (baseball) Ward, for alleged sickness or other reasons, but in truth, most probably, for the conclusions their managers arrived at that they would not pay as stars, has left us short-handed in feminine luminaries. We have only that triumvirate of talent, youth and beauty, Fanny Davenport, Clara Morris and Maggie Mitchell, for our dramatic stage divinities. Lydia Thompson and Mrs. Langtry, the oleaginous satellites, have gone back on us. Margaret Mather we have had. Rose Coghlan is not a paying star, and even Modjeska has not paid lately and has consented to join Booth as a stock star in his company—where she will be overshadowed completely by his fame. What shall we do for female stars?

"The City Directory," with all its clever people and clever things, is at Los Angelis this week.

Mr. W. J. Marshall, manager for Zoe Gayton, of Mezappa fame, is in town. Miss Gayton has been playing Mazeppa in Europe and lately in Spain, her native country, with success. After playing a farewell season on the Pacific Coast it is her intention to proceed to Australia.

Herrmann's Vaudeville Company, pronounced to be the best seen in New York for years, comes to the Bush this Fall.

The "Little Lord Fauntleroy" tour under Mr. Hayman's direction begins at Seattle on Monday.

Charley Drew is the Jonah of "The Brass Monkey." Charley was drilled in Mikado to make the punishment fit the crime. He will do it at the California next week.

Magician Herrmann comes to the Bush next week. He will present some taking new mysteries and his decapitation and cremation acts.

Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson in 'The Henrietta" are among the near attractions at the Baldwin.

Charlotte Tittel made her New York debut in "Chumley." The critics cut her a little on her first appearance, but since then they have treated her kindly.

Mr. B. Desher, advance representative of Charley Hoyt's comedy company, that opens at the California on Monday night in "A Brass Monkey," is in town. He ran the burnt bridge blockade on the Central Pacific to get here.

The New York Truth in its gossip says: "If the rumor is true that Mr. Daly will produce 'As You Like It' this year as the old comedy revival, the news will be hailed with real delight by his patrons and the multitudinous admirers of his company. Ada Rehan as Rosalind should make one of the greatest successes of her life, which, as far as 'hits' go, might compare favorably with the champion pugilist of the day. Except Ellen Terry, for Mrs. Kendal has dropped it from her repertoire, one cannot imagine anyone who would render equal justice to the part—one of the most charming of the comedy heroines of 'The Bard'—and Rosaline, too, in 'Love's Labor Lost,' would be another triumph for the actress. Then James Lewis as Touchstone ought to be truly Sakespearean, for doesn't Jacques declare that 'his brain is as dry as the remainder biscuit after a voyage,' a characteristic that Mr. Lewis has at his command at all times. The regret, of course, incidental to the production is that it will furnish no part for Mrs. Gilbert, who is far too clever to be kept in the background. She reminds one immensely, both in appearance and method, of Mlle. Jouassain, of the Theatre Francais, one of the greatest actresses living. John Drew will, naturally, be the Orlando, a part in which some ten years ago Kyrle Bellew first made his mark. It was one of the most poetic and romantic performances which the modern stage has seen. But he had not then acquired a reputation for his facial beauty, and he didn't pose; he only acted. It was altogether a delightful production in which Hermann Vezin was the Jacques and the late Marie Litton the Rosalind."

Mr. Berrie Jarrett, advance agent of Herrmann, who opens his Budget of Wonders at the Bush next week, has tramped the burned bridge canyon and is in town.

Our holiday attractions are booked. Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre holiday card will be his Eastern spectacular burlesque company in the new pantomime of "The Spider and the Fly." The California's will be the new Kiralfy spectacle. The Baldwin's, the Duff Opera Company. The Grand Opera House, which enters the field permanently under John Maguire's management on Oct. 12th, is yet to be heard from.

Romeo and Juliet will recount their woes for the last nights of the week at the California.

'The Stowaway" was produced at Oakland with a background view of Lake Merritt in the yacht scene, and yet it didn't draw. As for the burglar scene, it fell flat. They could not understand it. Who ever heard of a burglar trying to crack an Oakland safe?

Miss Clyde Herron has a six months' engagement for Portland, Or., in leads.

Henry Chanfrau will visit Australia next season with a new play and 'Kit."

During the last operatic year, at the Imperial Opera of Vienna, there have been 258 performances of opera, comprising sixty-four different works by thirty-two composers.

Dunlop's Stage News fears that Fred Bert's revival of the "Red Pocket-Book" play, "Lost in Africa," will be lost some-

Dunlop's Stage News says Jay Rial starts for San Francisco to take the management of the Grand Opera House. Several stock companies are booked to produce their Eastern successes there. It also adds: "Mr. Rial is the most courteous manager in America, and everybody in the profession wishes him the best kind of luck."

If W. S. Cleveland, the minstrel mogul, can't arrange for a theatre to his liking in New York he says he will build one.

'Gretchen" is handsomely staged.

P. S. Gilmore will reproduce his great musical work, the Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869 at the Mechanics' Pavilion, in this city, November 11th. He will bring here his New York band, together with his battery of artillery, anvil chorus, so that the Jubilee will be produced with all its original Boston features, and also a combination of fine vocalists. Mr. Gilmore's agent has succeeded in effecting an arrangement with our Handel and Haydn Society by which their valuable aid will be given to the event. They will add to the Jubilee their fine soloists and concerted singers and a trained chorus of 500 voices. The Jubilee will commemorate the twentieth anniversary of the Boston production, and will be a four days' musical event.

Barry & Fay have played the circuit of the Pacific Coast and up and down the Union everywhere for years with their "McKenna's Flirtation," and New York city is now getting it for the first time, after it is played out in the "provinces," and it has made a hit too. It is funny to read the extended criticisms of the good old chestnut that is now running through the New York papers.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, are in their farewell week at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Adele Boone, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Box sheet now open.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," is in his last week here, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that follows very closely that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J. Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will draw for its second week.

McKee Rankin formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife."

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Margaret Mather and company put in a fair week at the California, at popular prices, this week. The first three nights of the week and Wednesday matinee Miss Mather will appear as Gretchen in W. S. Gilbert's romantic drama of that title; her first appearance here in the character. The story is the old one of Faust and Marguerite brightened up by Gilbert's incisive pen.

Miss Mather gives to Gretchen youth grace comeliness and commands the sympathies of her audience in the part. Her company rendered efficient support, and the play is well day matinee, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

"The Private Secretary" will be produced for Sunday night's bill with J. N. Long in his original character.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California next week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. The announcement is sufficient.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmen in the leading roles, will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noirtier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; La Drew, the female impersonator; V. A. Stanley in acrobatic songs and dances and the clever and versatile Langs are the new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, are the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Johnson, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Gallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Gallinan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zandere, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kitty King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berben and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or American Man-of

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Loscor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first-part.

The comical farce-comedy of "Thompson's Dead," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayneld and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new peple next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artistically and cleverly.

Pete Smith and Lotta Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company next week.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akarman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger

William Horace Lingard made a deal of money in this country some twenty-odd years ago in a facial entertainment, something like Petroff's. He afterwards acted with his wife, Alice Dunning, and last it he went to England, became a London manager, and is on top again. He is estimated to be worth $250,000, and has no Dunning now. She is Mrs. Alice Dunning Lingard now.

The new comic opera, entitled "Pepita," has been well received in Philadelphia and New York. It will be put on the road this season.

EVENING EDITION

THURSDAY.....SEPTEMBER 19, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

"SHENANDOAH" A GREAT SUCCESS.

Bronson Howard's new military play of "Shenandoah," produced at the Star Theatre, New York, last week, is pronounced by the press to be a decided success. The N. Y. Truth says: "Bronson Howard has solved the problem of creating a drama based upon the military exploits of the country, free from bluster, spread-eagleism and excessive gunpowder. The plot is a complication of love affair, the threads of the story that string the battle scenes together and make the battle incidents necessities."

The spectacular scene of the play is where the Butternuts charge the Union lines and drive them back across the stage. There is a moment's pause, when hurrahs and cries of 'Sheridan!" are heard, as the General dashes on in front of his panic-stricken troops. A wild rush and tumultuous conflict follows, and the Union line surges back in the tide of victory. The scene is described as one of strongest effect, and remarkable in its dissimilarity to ordinary stage spectacles.

The artistic construction of 'Shenandoah,' in its intricacies of plot and counterplot and good characterizations, are favorably commented on by all the critics. It must bear the clever stamp of Howard's other plays. The Herald pronounces it to be 'greater than 'The Henrietta.'" The Times declares that "the popular success of 'Shenandoah' is as distinct and indisputable as that of 'The Henrietta.'" The Morning Journal says "it will take rank with 'The Banker's Daughter' and his 'Henrietta.'" Evidently Bronson Howard is not written out, and we have another successful play from his pen.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Chiarini, the circus king, who has routed South America, Australia, Japan, China, Sumatra, the Indies and the Orient everywhere, since his last visit here, ten years ago, will be back here in November. He is now en voyage from Japan to the Sandwich Islands, where he will show for two weeks, en route for this city.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday week.

A Milwaukee dime museum broke the record one day last week—a local holiday. It opened at 7 o'clock in the morning, and its performers gave thirty-eight shows before they went to bed at 2 o'clock the next morning.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre on Monday. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Primrose & West's Minstrels this year have Primrose and Bob Slavin on the ends, ten comedians, a dozen vocalists, Crystal Palace first part, silk and satin costumes, new specialties, with Barney Fagin in new musical acts and West in fresh novelties.

Billy Versatile Akarman takes the stage management of the Eureka this week.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a [illegible] and taking vaudeville pro-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Kate Castleton began her season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12th. She will only appear in her success, "A Paper Doll."

Dunlop's N. Y. News says: "Nellie McHenry will produce her new play when she reaches San Francisco in October."

When Augustin Daly takes his company to Europe next year he will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Adelaide Moore is actively preparing for her starring tour in "The Love Story," which begins in the West on Oct. 1st.

The Joseph Jefferson-Florence Co. are rehearsing the old comedies in one of Mr. Jefferson's barns at Buzzard's Bay, Mass. They will not remain barnstormers all the season.

Henry E. Dixey has begun rehearsals on "The Seven Ages," his new piece.

"Running Wild" is to make another tour this season under the management of Frank Goodwin, with John Wild and Dan Collyer in the leading roles.

Col. J. Armoy Knox and Ed Atwells tried their new comedy, "A Stuffed Dog," on the Elizabethans, in the land of mosquitos, and made only a fair impression. The last act don't wag well. The "Dog" will have a new tail.

Primrose & West wired Harry Mann that their newly organized minstrel company made a big success on their opening night, and that they "are all right."

When New York was about the size of San Francisco, and had only four theatres, the Park, Mitchell's Olympic, Chatham and old Bowery Theatres, three graceful young women, the Vallee Sisters, used to dance a pas de trio between acts at the Bowery. They confined themselves almost exclusively to Spanish dances, and were the only dancers on the stage except Julia Turnbull at the Park. One of the sisters married well in marrying Ben De Bar, a fine actor, a popular man, who held a long time afterwards the position of leading manager of St. Louis. The little paragraph we copy below winds up the story of her life:

The widow of Ben De Bar, formerly of St Louis, has been admitted to the Forrest Home at Homesbury, Pa. She was in her day a popular dansense, and afterwards a good actress. Her maiden name was Henrietta Vallee, and she is a native of Philadelphia.

Dunlop's Stage News says: "Mr. John Drew began his twenty-ninth season as manager of the Arch Street Theatre on last Saturday with 'The Burglar,' which was seen for the first time in Philadelphia. The pretty play made as decided a hit there as it did in New York. In fact, 'The Burglar' is one of the greatest money winners on the road this season, and will be well received wherever it goes."

Female stars are getting very scarce. The withdrawal of three made-to-order stars—for lack of better—this season, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., and Mrs. Helen Dauvray (baseball) Ward, for alleged sickness or other reasons, but in truth, most probably, for the conclusions their managers arrived at that they would not pay as stars, has left us short-handed in feminine luminaries. We have only that triumvirate of talent, youth and beauty, Fanny Davenport, Clara Morris and Maggie Mitchell, for our dramatic stage divinities. Lydia Thompson and Mrs. Langtry, the oleaginous satellites, have gone back on us. Margaret Mather we have had. Rose Coghlan is not a paying star, and even Modjeska has not paid lately and has consented to join Booth as a stock star in his company—where she will be overshadowed completely by his fame. What shall we do for female stars?

"The City Directory," with all its clever people and clever things, is at Los Angelis this week.

Mr. W. J. Marshall, manager for Zoe Clayton, of Mazeppa fame, is in town. Miss Clayton has been playing Mazeppa in Europe and lately in Spain, her native country, with success. After playing a farewell season on the Pacific Coast it is her intention to proceed to Australia.

Herrmann's Vaudeville Company, pronounced to be the best seen in New York for years, comes to the Bush this Fall.

The "Little Lord Fauntleroy" tour under Mr. Hayman's direction begins at Seattle on Monday.

Charley Drew is the Jonah of "The Brass Monkey." Charley was drilled in Mikado to make the punishment fit the crime. He will do it at the California next week.

Magician Herrmann comes to the Bush next week. He will present some taking new mysteries and his decapitation and cremation acts.

Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson in "The Henrietta" are among the near attractions at the Baldwin.

Charlotte Tittel made her New York debut in "Caumley." The critics cut her a little on her first appearance, but since then they have treated her kindly.

Mr. B Dasher, advance representative of Charley Hoyt's comedy company, that opens at the California on Monday night in "A Brass Monkey," is in town. He ran the burnt bridge blockade on the Central Pacific to get here.

Murray & Murphy will star in a new musical comedy next season, entitled "Pug; or, Holding the Fort," by Frank Gossaway of Los Angeles.

Dunlop's Stage News says Joy Rial starts for San Francisco to take the management of the Grand Opera House. Several stock companies are booked to produce their Eastern successes there. It also adds: "Mr. Rial is the most courteous manager in America, and everybody in the profession wishes him the

BOB EBERLE TALKS OF COMING BACK.

Bob Eberle has commenced his work of rehearsing the Booth-Modjeska Company, and met with a big setback on his first rehearsal. He writes to FIGARO as follows:

I arrived all right in New York. Not being ready for the new piece, Booth requested that I would take the company and run them through the business of "Hamlet" to see how they were up in it. They all did very well until I came to our new comedian in the grave scene. He was a burlesque stage graduate, and was a little full and very fresh. When he got to work in Ophelia's grave he commenced singing "Nickel in the Slot." I reprimanded him, and told him that those were not his lines.

"O, yes, guv'nor, I know," said Mr. Fresh, "but I don't want to give them the old chestnut. I'll give them something else when the time comes. I'll work the scene up, never fear. I'll give them the 'Razzle-Dazzle' or something that'll knock them, you know. No old-fashioned business for me, cully."

I never heard of such a thing in my life. I could not go on with the rehearsal. I felt so agrieved with the fellow's conduct that I snaked him out of the grave and hustled him out of the stage door. Think of what poor old Bill Barry would have done to a fellow like that. I have reported him to Booth. Either he or I will have to go.

The company except the comedian is a very good one. Give my regards to all friends in good old San Francisco, and tell them I may be back with them sooner than expected. Send me my FIGARO regularly, anyhow. And Oblige

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr J M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, are in their farewell week at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings, assisted to a noted degree by Chas W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs and Mr Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement

—o—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens the season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears advertisement.

Herrmann will present his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," is in his last week here, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that follows very closely that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; EtLel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will draw for its second week.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company in his new play "The Runaway Wife."
